Resignation Calls Soar

By United Press International
Demands for President Nixon's resignation spread among his supporters and opponents alike Saturday night. Citing disintegrating public confidence, moderate Republican congressmen speculated openly that Nixon might step down, while major newspapers and commentators, some among his oldest, staunchest backers, demanded the President's resignation.

The New York Times, generally considered to be among the President's critics, said in an editorial today that Nixon should quit because of "the visible disintegration of (his) moral and political authority, of his capacity to act as chief executive, of his claim to leadership and to credibility."

"The one last great service that Mr. Nixon can now perform for his country is to resign," the Times said.

The Denver Post said in an editorial today that President Nixon should resign in order to restore confidence to the nation and to its allies overseas.

Meanwhile, President Nixon, seemingly braced to "tough it out" against a deluge of demands for his resignation, Saturday summoned two of his Watergate lawyers from Washington to discuss their court strategy in the controversy over two non-existent White House tapes.

In Nixon's defense, Sen. Carl Curtis, R-Neb., said he would not "desert my President because of a massive conspiracy to destroy him that has been in operation the past 10-11 months."

In a speech to the North Carolina GOP convention at Raleigh, Curtis said Nixon was so preoccupied with foreign affairs that it was "physically impossible" for him to devote his full attention to the domestic front in recent months.

Curtis said Nixon's 1972 presidential campaign "had to be managed by others. I am convinced that President Nixon not only was not involved (in the Watergate scandal) but never condoned any wrongdoing in that the real facts were withheld from him far too long."

Rep. Robert H. Michel, chairman of the Republican Congressional Campaign Committee, acknowledged that House and Senate cloakrooms are full of talk of a possible Nixon resignation. He said most legislators are primarily concerned at the moment with House GOP Leader Gerald Ford's confirmation as vice president.

Rep. John B. Anderson, R-Ill., chairman of the House Republican Conference, said even congressmen who were reluctant to consider impeachment must now do so "on an evidentiary basis." He said "the entire burden of proof has shifted to the administration ... to convince the American people" it is telling the truth about Watergate.

House Democratic Leader Thomas P. O'Neill said, "In my opinion, President Nixon will never finish out his term. How long can a man go with his credibility being what it is?" In recent days, columnist

Joseph Alsop and ABC television commentator Howard K. Smith—both regarded in the past as Nixon supporters—urged the President to resign. Smith said his statement prompted Ziegler to summon him to the White House for a meeting. "I frankly felt sorry for him, but it didn't change anything," Smith said.

Others calling for Nixon's resignation included syndicated columnist Jack Anderson and The Detroit News, which said in an editorial today that "the matter of the tapes is the final blow to public trust."

The News said "that final disillusionment makes three more years of a Nixon administration too bleak, too dangerous, a prospect." Both the paper and Alsop said Nixon should resign after Congress confirms House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford as vice president.

Conservative editor William F. Buckley predicted Nixon would resign, probably at the urging of such close friends as Sen. Barry M. Goldwater, R-Ariz., in the belief history would vindicate him.

The State Department sources indicated that Kissinger, shuttling between separate meetings with Mrs. Meir and Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy, was concentrating on breaking the deadlock over cease-fire lines along the Suez Canal and the release of prisoners captured by both sides.

Mrs. Meir had planned to fly back to Israel Saturday night, but the sources said it appeared she would delay her departure until sometime today.

State Department spokesman Robert McCloskey said Kissinger met with Mrs. Meir from 10 p.m. Friday until after midnight, and he met first with Fahmy and again with Mrs. Meir late Saturday. The meeting with the Egyptian foreign minister took place at the State Department and the week-old crisis. ## Mideast POW Swap Near Units of the trapped Egyptian 3rd Army tried Saturday to smash out of the Israeli stranglehold on the Sinai Desert, but the attacks—one lasting three hours—were repulsed by infantry, artillery and mortar barrages, Israel reported.

Mayor Charges 'Irresponsibility'

Koenig Raps Foe's Letter

In the waning days of the 1973 campaign, with the election being held Tuesday, Mayor Francis R. Koenig, the Democratic-Liberal candidate for re-election, has closed with a blast at his opponent for a letter written to the voters of the 11th Ward, and charged his opponent with "irresponsibility."

William B. Merrill, Koenig's Republican-Conservative challenger, wrote a letter to the 11th Ward voters which in part read, "If you continue to support the Democratic team and there is a change, I hope you will consider yourselves as a minority and will not ask help from a new administration."

Koenig said that was "...

the most irresponsible statement I have ever seen from a candidate for the office of mayor."

"To threaten the voters of an entire ward," said Koenig, "in a last minute attempt to gain votes is inexcusable. I'm appalled and shocked that he would stoop so low in his campaign, but then again his entire campaign has been based on innuendos and half truths in an attempt to mislead the general public."

As proof of Merrill's "irresponsibility," Koenig said Merrill had said he would increase the police budget to $1 million, but had not told the general public that this would be an additional cost of about $260,000 and mean a tax increase of $6.50 per thousand of assessed valuation.

A further proof of irresponsibility, according to Koenig, Merrill has proposed to equalize the sales tax county-wide, which the mayor said would mean a loss for the city of $360,000 and a tax rate boost of $9 per thousand, and Merrill's proposals on mass transportation, which Koenig said would cost an additional $80,000 a year, and mean a $2 tax rate raise.

"Just those three items alone represent a tax increase of $17.50 per $1,000 of assessed valuation," Koenig said "and this does not include his proposal to put on the payroll two deputy mayors, at what salary I do not know!"

"Our taxpayers cannot possibly afford this type of irresponsible spending," said Koenig.

The mayor continued, "The prime concern of every municipal official should be the creation of programs aimed at improving the quality of life for the citizens he serves, but always keeping in mind the taxpayers' ability to afford such programs. This we have done for the past four years. This we will continue to do for the next two years."

"Continue in office the Koenig-Gallo team of responsible city officials," the mayor urged. "and please give this team the help of a Democratic Common Council."

Merrill on 11th Note ... Threat Was Not Intended

William B. Merrill, the Republican-Conservative candidate for mayor, closed out his campaign Saturday night saying he was seeking "the hidden vote, the little vote, and better person to person communication with the city."

His opponent, Democratic-Liberal incumbent Mayor Francis R. Koenig, has charged that Merrill has been "irresponsible" in a campaign letter to the voters of the 11th Ward, which Koenig said was written to "threaten" that ward's voters.

Merrill said the letter was not a threat at all, but was only telling that ward's voters that "This is the year for change."

Saying that people could misinterpret the letter "five different ways," Merrill said he was only pointing out that the ward's voters had been "under Democratic domination for 25 years" and had nothing good to show for it.

"I said they have been a minority for so long, they had better change," Merrill added.

The Republican-Conservative challenger said he hoped for a large turnout of voters Tuesday, "rather than apathy" being shown at the polls.

"A large turnout of voters is a vote of confidence for any campaign," said Merrill.

"I want to extend my personal thanks to everyone that I have been able to see," Merrill said.

"The most important thing is," Merrill said, "It's time for a change."

Two New York State Men Crash Victims

Three men, including two from New York State, were killed Saturday when a Pan American cargo plane crashed and burned trying to make an unscheduled landing at Logan International Airport in Boston, Mass. Body of one of the victims is shown being carried past the wreckage. The dead were identified as Capt. John Zammatt, 53, Cold Spring Harbor, N.Y., Flight Engineer Davis Melvin, 37, of Ithaca and First Officer Gene Ritter, 34, of New Canaan, Conn. (UPI Telephoto)

Rulings on Lawyers Due Monday

Chicago Seven Freed of 19

CHICAGO (UPI) — A federal judge Saturday freed the Chicago Seven of 19 of 38 contempt charges imposed by U.S. District Court Judge Julius J. Hoffman during their tumultuous riot-conspiracy trial four years ago. U.S. District Court Judge Edward T. Gignoux announced his ruling after four days of arguments on defense motions for a blanket dismissal of charges and for acquittal. Gignoux denied the dismissal demand but acquitted the one-time unruly Chicago Seven defendants of 18 charges and dismissed another one. The ruling left Lee Weiner and John Froines free from further prosecution. The judge said he would announce Monday his ruling on motions to dismiss 14 counts of contempt against the Chicago Seven lawyers, William Kunstler and Leonard I. Weinglass. Five of the seven defendants were left to face contempt citations during a trial to begin next week. The defendants and number

Texas Cyanide Search

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (UPI) — Coast Guard helicopters Saturday patrolled a 250-mile stretch of South Texas coast in search of more corroded barrels of potentially deadly cyanide that may be drifting northward from an August shipping accident off the Mexico coast. Two of the barrels were found Friday along Padre Island, about 30 miles south of Corpus Christi. One of the casks had broken and a fish kill was evident in the area, a Coast Guard spokesman said. "We are warning everyone to stay away from any small strange barrels they might see floating in the Gulf, or caught in the drift areas along the coast or in the sand," the spokesman said. "The barrels aren't dangerous at all if they aren't messed with," he said. "But if broken open, then the cyanide could kill. It can be ingested through the skin. That's how dangerous it is." The barrels found Friday were believed to be part of a 390-barrel cargo jettisoned Aug. 5 about 90 miles off the coast of Cabo Catoche, Yucatan, Mexico. Those barrels contained potassium cyanide and sodium cyanide.

VC Denies Attack

SAIGON (UPI) — The Viet Cong denied Saturday the Communists would be the first to launch an offensive "big or small" in South Vietnam, but said they "must fight back in self-defense" if Saigon government troops encroach on their territory. Col. Vo Dong Giang, deputy chief of the Provisional Revolutionary Government delegation to the two-party Joint Military Commission, said at the weekly Viet Cong news conference: "The Provisional Revolutionary Government of the Republic of South Vietnam and the People's Liberation Armed Forces of South Vietnam do not have the intention to launch an offensive, big or small, in early 1974, as the Saigon administration clamors about." President Nguyen van Thieu said in a speech delivered at a graduation ceremony for 6,000 government employees at a training school at the beach resort of Vung Tau Saturday that Communist plans call for a major offensive after the end of the rainy season in the Saigon area. The rains are due to end within a matter of weeks.

AG Choice Caught in Middle

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress' attempt to establish an independent Watergate prosecutor's office is complicating the confirmation of President Nixon's attorney general. In normal times, it would be a cinch to get a senator approved without a hearing for a Cabinet post. But Nixon's selection of Sen. William Saxbe, R-Ohio, has become caught up in the fight over a prosecutor. It's part of a situation in Washington's Watergate world where appearance and reality often have become blurred.

But Senate Democrats are planning to press ahead on the legislation before confirming Saxbe. Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott conceded Friday on the Judiciary Committee that "in these days of broken precedents," it would at least be necessary for a hearing to be held on Saxbe. He added that he doubted assurances from Saxbe on the Democratic senators "will be independent status of Nixon's that discourteous to a fellow newly named special Watergate senator" as to delay his confirmation. Leon Jaworski.

Amtrak Money Bill Approved by Nixon

KEY BISCAIYNE, Fla. (UPI) — President Nixon, overruling the recommendation of his own transportation secretary, signed into law Saturday an Amtrak money bill that will give the passenger train corporation greater independence from the administration. The bill allows Amtrak to spend $154.3 million in federal funds, including $107.3 million in new money and $47 million left over from last year. It also increases Amtrak loan guarantee authority from the present $200 million to $500 million. Transportation Secretary Claude S. Brinegar recommended that the bill be vetoed because it would take away much of his department's power to control how Amtrak spends the federal funds. He also was reported to have objected a provision giving the Interstate Commerce Commission expanded power over quality and adequacy of passenger service.

Mayoral Race... Some Plusses, Minuses

CAMPAIGN REFLECTIONS—This year's mayoral campaign seemed to boil down to Bill Merrill talking about trolley cars and Frank Koenig talking about Urban Renewal.

Merrill, of course, talked about a lot of other things, too many things in the opinion of some of his supporters—"He should have stuck with three or four issues"—and Koenig talked about a few other things other than urban renewal, but that seems to be the impression left with the voters, who from what we can gather aren't exactly fired up about this particular election, if any.

We're not about to rehash the whole thing at this point in time but there were a few late breaking developments worthy of comment.

First of all, the mayor deserves a solid round of applause on his securing state funds for a swimming pool in the up-town area. This particular project took a lot of imagination and initiative, and in this case, Koenig can take most if not all of the credit, along with the Andretta Foundation which is supplying the city's share of the cash.

On the other hand, we find appalling the sudden rash of endorsements by city employe unions of the incumbents whom they will or have negotiated contracts with. Frankly, we were surprised the mayor and Alderman-at-Large Bob Gallo even accepted them.

As far as the unions go, the firemen seemed to have a reason, contending that Merrill was promoting dissension between them and the volunteers, as if there wasn't enough already. The endorsement from the other two unions, the Public Works workers and the Water Department, gives the impression of little more than a backslapping deal for future considerations.

City Beat

By HUGH REYNOLDS
Freeman City Hall Reporter

Bill Merrill gets the nod for at long last hitting the crime issue with something other than vague warnings of Armageddon. Merrill, at a press conference on Friday, pointed out that while overall spending in the city has jumped by 29 per cent in the past four years, spending on the police department has increased by only 14 per cent. Merrill questioned the administration's priorities, and looking at those figures and the rising crime problem we have, a lot of other people must be, too.

On the other hand, and here comes the other hand, we also find appalling Merrill's letter to 11th Ward residents warning them that if they vote Democratic, as they usually do, they will be considered a minority if Merrill gets elected and will be treated accordingly. Never have we seen a naked political threat like that. There is no other word for it. It was outrageous.

Merrill should have stayed on that trolley car.

As a final word on the mayoral race, we thought we'd pass along this observation which we cribbed from Jack Reynolds, head of the county's assessment and equalization agency.

Reynolds was talking about "his people" when he observed that: "Assessors can be divided into three groups:

1. Those who make things happen.
2. Those who watch things happen.
3. Those who wonder what happened."

Politicians and voters can be divided into the same categories.

COUNCIL CAPERS—Last week, we "wrote off" four candidates for alderman, contending, perhaps inaccurately, that their incumbent opponents had it made.

Naturally, we didn't hear from any of the guys we prematurely declared winners, Jack Finch, Don Quick, Gippy Sinsabaugh and Pete Mancuso in the Fifth, Sixth, 10th and 12th Wards respectively.

But we have heard from supporters of Richie Kelderhouse and Jim Amato in the 10th Ward and the Fifth Ward. All took umbrage with our predictions. Their men had been working long and hard and we were confident of victory owing to the warm response while making the rounds. Or words to that effect.

We didn't pick a winner in the Fourth Ward, but it seems we were guilty of a mistake in fact. We said that Ed Schrowang, the Republican had been beaten in that ward in previous elections. Ed called up and informed us he had never tasted defeat; he passed that cup in 1965, bowing out with three straight wins under his belt.

And as a finale, we give Bob Kreines our award for the best slogan this year, winning out over a host of trite truisms. "A man who stands for nothing," declares Kreines, "will fall for anything." Amen.

Dinnerstein UCCAC Choice

KINGSTON

The Ulster County Community Action Committee, Inc. Agency has named Joel Dinnerstein of Hopewell Junction the new executive director according to Jenny Krevolin, interim executive director.

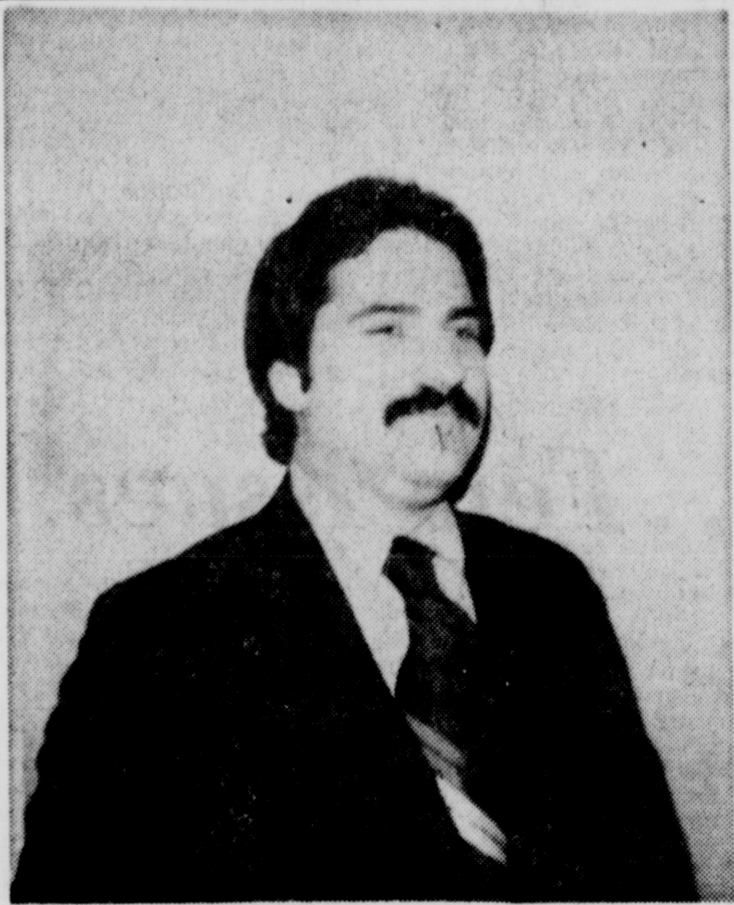

Dinnerstein, a former staff member of the Office of Mayor, and Comprehensive Health Planning Agency in New York City during the Lindsay Administration, was selected to fill the post out of some 36 applicants. The former executive director, Lou Grimaldi, resigned earlier this year.

The new executive director started his social work career in 1965 in rural West Virginia. Later, Dinnerstein spent several years working with the OEO program in disadvantaged ghetto areas of New York City.

In 1971, Dinnerstein gained national recognition for his leadership in the development of comprehensive community health planning techniques. Under this, his model plan, Dinnerstein involved and united 260 health and health related agencies as well as local community groups and organizations for the purposes of planning for new health services and facilities in an area with the population of 200,000 people.

Under his directorship, funds were secured for children day-care services, drug rehabilitation programs and programs in mental health and mental retardation.

Dinnerstein attended the Graduate School of Public Administration at New York University.

Coroner Chipp Is Unopposed

KERHONKSON
With 24 years of experience as an Ulster County coroner, Arthur C. Chipp, Republican candidate is unopposed for reelection this year.

That no one chose to challenge him is perhaps evident in the 20,000 vote victory he chalked up the last time he ran in 1970. He polled 32,000 votes to his Democratic opponent Charles Johnson's 13,000 vote total.

The 65-year old native of Kingston, who also has Conservative endorsement, is president of the H. B. Humiston

Funeral Home in Kerhonkson.

Chipp has a long record of civic activity in Ulster County most recently serving on the Board of Directors of the Ulster County Blood Bank. He has also served on the Ellenville Community Hospital Board as its secretary and as chairman of the Ulster County Heart Fund for several years.

He is a past president of the Kerhonkson Lions Club, past president of the Kerhonkson Fire Department, treasurer of The Salvation Army of Accord and Kerhonkson and has held membership in Wawarsing Lodge 582 Izaak Walton League of America, Wawarsing Sportsmen's Association, Shokan Lodge 491 IOOF, charter member of Ellenville Lodge BPOE and has served on the executive board of the Federated Church of Kerhonkson.

Clear Sailing for Fred DuBois

NEW PALTZ
Treasurer of Ulster County since 1959, Fred H. DuBois of New Paltz is unopposed for reelection to another three year term.

DuBois has in recent years won reelection with pluralities of about 20,000 votes.

A native of New Paltz, he served as town councilman and as supervisor of the town prior to becoming county treasurer in 1959.

He has been associated with his brother, Harold, in the operation of a dairy and fruit farm and has been a member of the Advisory Council of the Animal Husbandry Department, Cornell University.

He served as president of the board of the Federal Land Bank Association of Kingston and on the board of directors of the Agricultural Department of the Extension Service.

DuBois has also actively served the TB and Health Association on its board of directors and executive committee.

While supervisor, DuBois was chairman of the Community College Committee and is a past secretary-treasurer of the Ulster County, Sullivan and Orange County Holstein Club.

Transportation Bond Issue Is 'Largest Ever'

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — At $3.5 billion, the transportation bond issue on the ballot this November is the largest spending proposal ever put before New York voters.

In fact, just about all the ideas and figures associated with it are big—except, in the view of the state officials who are boosting it, the year-by-year cost to the taxpayer.

By state estimates, the $3.5 billion in state bond funds would generate a total federal, state and local expenditure on transportation capital programs of $12.5 billion. It would take 10 years to allocate all the money, and several years longer before all of the projects contemplated would be completed.

Here are some of the other figures:

—A total of $65 billion in economic activity in the state generated by the spending of the bond funds.

—Some 830,000 man-hours of work to complete the transportation construction.

—Some $7.25 billion for mass transportation construction, counting federal aid.

—Another $5.25 billion for highway construction and improvements.

—The state's $3.5 billion would divide $2.1 billion for mass transit, and $1.4 billion for highways.

—New York City would get $1.35 billion of the state spending, its suburbs $1 billion and upstate $1.15 billion.

—The interest payments on the bonds would add about $2.4 billion to their cost, and the cost of paying off the principal and interest would be about $145 million a year for the next 40 years. But state officials say that can be borne without a tax increase, and only comes to $6.69 per capita per year.

Woven in among these huge figures is a host of smaller, specific projects on which the money is supposed to be spent — and also a series of problems and complications.

The most important item hidden in the figures is the fact that the bond issue referendum is also a referendum on a permanent program of state subsidies for mass transit programs.

Passage of the bond issue will enable the state to use some $369 million over the next two years to subsidize every publicly owned mass transit system in the state and guarantee that its local fares will be no higher than 35 cents.

The subsidies will not actually come from the bond money. Instead, bond funds will be used to pay for some transportation capital projects that are now supposed to be paid for out of regular tax revenues, freeing those revenues for the subsidies. Each state subsidy payment will have to be matched by localities.

After the first two years, the state is still committed to split mass transit subsidies with localities, but bond funds may no longer be available for that purpose. At the moment state officials have not decided where the funds will come from.

Passenger and freight railroads also would get subsidies of up to $30 million under the program, but there is no commitment to continue them after two years.

The mass transit capital construction projects contemplated by the bond issue range across New York. They include such diverse programs as air-conditioning subways in New York City, building rail transit systems in Rochester and Buffalo, buying 1,000 new, air-conditioned buses for cities across the state and upgrading other buses, building bus-only lanes on some urban freeways and establishing so-called "dial-a-bus" service in such upstate areas as Corning, Hornell, Glens Falls, Plattsburgh, Kingston and other similar, small cities.

Also included is up to $10 million to buy railroad rights-of-way in various parts of the state, which state officials say may be needed to maintain freight service to some areas. Some $38 million is supposed to go to develop high-speed rail service between Albany and New York City.

Some of the mass-transit projects outlined, such as the dial-a-bus service, depend heavily on local governments being willing to participate in the cost, so voting for the bonds does not guarantee them.

Others, particularly the bus purchases and major rail transit construction, depend on full funding of the federal mass transit programs, which has not yet occurred.

State Transportation Commissioner Raymond Schuler says he is confident, however, that the federal aid programs for mass transit will not only be fully funded but enriched in coming years. He attributes this, in part, to growing awareness of what he says are the environmental advantages of mass transit, including energy conservation and reduced air pollution.

Koenig Seeks Win Over Merrill

KINGSTON This year's mayoral race features an apparently entrenched incumbent running on his record against an often volatile challenger who is attacking that record.

Francis R. Koenig, 39, is the Democratic-Liberal incumbent elected by an all-time plurality of 3,900 votes (in round figures) in 1969 and reelected by another all-time plurality of 4,400 votes in 1971. Koenig and his supporters are obviously hoping for more of the same.

William B. Merrill Jr., 35, the Republican-Conservative, says he's in the race to win and seems non-plussed by that huge, 1971 plurality.

Both candidates have campaigned on two levels, with Koenig emphasizing his experience in government and his administration's record of accomplishment over the past four years. There is no discounting Koenig's experience. In 1959 he was secretary to former Mayor Edwin F. Radel. He ran for alderman that year, was elected from the old Ninth Ward and reelected in 1961, the youngest alderman at the time to serve on the Common Council. In 1963, Koenig ran for alderman-at-large but was defeated by Joseph Carroll. In 1965 Koenig was elected alderman-at-large, chose not to run in 1967 and then was elected to his first term as mayor in 1969.

Koenig has emphasized urban renewal redevelopment during his terms of office, contending that he provided the leadership that led to major private redevelopment and public improvements in the Uptown Project and a series of public improvements and construction, the new city hall, the new fire station, the UDC housing complex, in the Broadway East Project.

Merrill's campaign like Koenig's, has been carried out on two levels with Merrill attacking the Koenig record — Merrill calls the Koenig experience, "government by crisis" — on one hand, while issuing policy statements on a host of other issues on the other. Perhaps the positions most closely associated with Merrill in the public mind is a proposal to use abandoned railroad tracks in the city for mass transit via trolley cars; joining of the town of Ulster and the city into a form of Unigov and equalization of the sales tax between the city and the surrounding areas.

Alderman-at-Large... Few Issues

KINGSTON Burt A. Ellis and T. Robert Gallo are the candidates for alderman-at-large of the city, the presiding officer of the Common Council and the deputy mayor.

Gallo, the incumbent three terms as alderman-at-large, is a veteran legislator, having first won election 10 years ago as an alderman from the old Ninth Ward, repeating in 1965 and then moving up to his first of backgrounds. Ellis is president of Utility Platers Inc. on Washington Avenue and owner of the A & W Rootbeer franchise on Converse Street. Gallo is owner of the Carriage House Florist and Greenhouse on Albany Avenue and a partner in the McCord-Leahy Funeral Home on Smith Avenue.

The duties of the alderman-at-large consist primarily in presiding over the Common Council. As president of the Council, the alderman-at-large also names Council committees and their chairmen and also, when the occasion warrants, appoints special committees of the Council.

In the absence of the mayor, the alderman-at-large becomes acting mayor. In the event that the mayor is permanently absent through death or illness, the alderman-at-large, by city charter, becomes mayor. The job pays $3,500 per year for a two-year term.

There have been few issues in this race for alderman-at-large. Gallo has cited his record presiding over the "open meetings" where Council, the alderman-at-large also names Council committees and their chairmen and also, when the occasion warrants, appoints special committees of the Council.

'Gets Easier All the Time'

KINGSTON over Thomas F. Saccoman was more than enough.

This year the Republicans chose not to field a candidate against Richter.

Richter is a 1941 graduate of Kingston High School and a decorated veteran of World War 2. A 1950 graduate of Albany Law School, he practices law at 86 John Street with Seymour Werbalowsky.

Richter has a lengthy record of community involvement, ranging from fundraising drives for numerous charities, to work in Little League to leadership in veterans groups.

He will be reelected to a four-year term beginning Jan. 1, 1974 at an annual salary of $9,000.

GOP Seeking More Common Council Seats

KINGSTON All 13 seats in the Common Council are up for grabs in this year's elections with Republicans hoping to make inroads into what has been a solid Democratic majority for the past eight years.

The Democrats currently hold a 9-4 edge, the same as they enjoyed after the 1971 elections. The Democratic tide, which began with an 8-5 majority in 1965 and which was retained in 1967, crested in 1968 with a 12-1 margin.

The aldermen, which represent the 13 wards in the city, are paid an annual salary of $2,150 a year. Majority and minority leaders of the Council are paid an additional $350 a year.

The Democrats are fielding incumbents in eight of the 13 wards while the Republicans have incumbents in two of them.

Republican and Kay Cole, the Conservative.

Second Ward — Democratic incumbent Joseph McGrane is seeking his second term, opposed by Republican John Porsche.

Third Ward — Republican incumbent Brian Smith, the Council minority leader, is seeking his third term, opposed by Paul Mills, the Democrat in a rematch of the 1971 election won by Smith.

Fourth Ward — Democrat incumbent Clarence Stoutenburg is seeking his second term opposed by a former Republican alderman from the old First Ward, Edward Schrowang.

Fifth Ward — Democrat incumbent John E. Finch is seeking his fourth term opposed by Republican James Amato.

Seventh Ward — Republican incumbent Thomas M. Davitt is seeking his second term opposed by Democrat James F. Howard, a former majority leader of the Common Council from the old Seventh Ward.

Homework Necessary on Amendments

KINGSTON Although no one will be standing outside voting booths with a stopwatch, Ulster County voters who have failed to familiarize themselves with the candidates and the issues might find themselves hardpressed to complete their ballots this year within the maximum three minutes provided by state law.

Secretary of State John P. Lomenzo is therefore urging all voters to take the time, prior to voting, to study the issues because this year, besides the controversial transportation bond issue, there are no less than 10 amendments to the state constitution on the ballot.

The amendments to the state constitution in the order in which they will appear on the ballot are as follows. Voters can vote "yes" or "no" on any or all of them.

Amendment No. 1 — Exclusion of Indebtedness for Sewage Facilities from Local Constitutional Debt Limits. Under that amendment municipalities would be allowed to finance the cost of their sewage treatment facilities outside (beyond) their constitutional debt limits.

Amendment No. 2 — Waiver of Grand Jury Indictments. This amendment would permit defendants accused of serious crimes, other than those punishable by death or life imprisonment, to consent to being prosecuted without exercising their constitutional right to have a grand jury decide whether there is enough evidence to bring them to trial.

Amendment No. 3 — Improvement of Employment Opportunities. This would allow the state Job Development Authority to make loans up to 40 per cent of project costs instead of the current 30 per cent. The powers of the authority would be broadened to include loans for new buildings and research and development and for machinery and equipment.

Amendment No. 4 — Jurisdiction of District Court and Terms of Office of Judges Thereof. This amendment would increase the monetary jurisdiction of the District Court from $6,000 to $10,000 and increase the terms of judges from six to ten years. At present, District Court is established only in Nassau and part of Suffolk Counties.

Amendment No. 5 — Chairmanship of the State Commission of Correction. This amendment changes the constitution so that the head of the Department of Correction is no longer required to be the chairman of the State Commission of Correction.

Amendment No. 6 — Family Court: Custody of Minors. This would permit cases involving the custody of minors (habeas corpus) to be brought to the Family Court in the first instance. At present such cases reach the Family Court only by referral from Supreme Court.

Amendment No. 7 — Forest Preserve Lands Outside the Adirondack and Catskill Parks. This would permit the Legislature to dispose of or rededicate detached parcels of forest preserve lands outside of the Adirondack and Catskill Parks up to 100 acres in size. The present limit is 10 acres.

Amendment No. 8 — Erection of Counties. This would remove population requirements for purposes of creating counties. At present a new county may be created only if there are enough people within its boundaries to form an Assembly District (121,000 based on the 1970 census).

Amendment No. 9 — Continuation of Services of Judges After Retirement. This would allow most judges to continue to serve in their respective courts under two-year certificates until the age of 76. Surrogates could serve only in the Supreme Court. At present only justices of the Supreme Court and the judges of the Court of Appeals may serve beyond the retirement age of 70.

Amendment No. 10 — Would merge the Nassau County Court with the Supreme Court and increase the monetary jurisdiction of the Nassau District Court from $6,000 to $10,000.

Twelfth Ward — Peter J. Mancuso, the incumbent Democrat and majority leader of the Common Council, is seeking his seventh term in office, opposed by Republican Joseph LaLima.

Thirteenth Ward — There is no incumbent in the 13th Ward. Alderman Titus B. Sims chose not to seek reelection after four years in the Common Council. The Republicans have nominated Walter S. Clark the Democrats have nominated Henry Dreiser Jr.

Three-Way Battle in Ulster

TOWN OF ULSTER The race for supervisor in the Town of Ulster promises to be perhaps one of the more interesting of town contests this year in that there is a three-way bid for the top post.

Transportation Commissioner Raymond T. Schuler that improvements will be made to Ulster Avenue Mall between Rt. 209 and the bridge.

The supervisor also stressed that "the only bosses in the Town of Ulster are the residents of the town."

Bahl, who is manager of Carpet Corner in the Town of Ulster, has lived in the town for 20 years and in the Kingston area all of his life.

If elected, he would attempt to change "one-party rule and break up the political machinery that has been in existence here for the last 100 years." He said he would try to settle sewer problems, Albany Avenue traffic problems and water problems in the Spring Lake and Yarmouth Street areas.

Bahl also said he feels strongly concerning the need for more police protection in the town. "Five little constables for a population of 12,500 people in a 62 square mile town, is an impossible situation," he said.

Bahl also expressed concern for the Glenelg Lake Park Railroad crossing.

Sledge, a former Republican Town of Ulster Justice of the Peace, has lashed out at Sabino as being "incredibly uninformed regarding the facts about the sewer district," and has demanded a complete audit of town's highway department.

Sledge also has questioned town assessments wanting to know what provisions and safeguards there are against preferential treatment.

He feels that reassessment is of considerable concern to residents and feels the present assessor should explain to residents the factors which make reassessment necessary.

In order to get on the ballot, Sledge had to go to court recently after having his petitions contested by the Board of Elections.

Family Court Judge...Two Out of Three

KINGSTON Two out of three — That is the way the race for Ulster County Family Court Judge shapes up here Nov. 6.

There are two seats to be filled, one is now occupied by the incumbent Republican Judge Hugh R. Elwyn and the second is a newly created second Family Court Judgeship in Ulster County.

There are three candidates for the two posts. In addition to Elwyn, there is Democrat William C. Mullany, a Kingston lawyer and Republican Bernard Feeney Jr. of the Town of Ulster, both of whom seek one of the two seats available.

No two candidates are running against each other, all are in competition for the two posts and the two highest vote getters will be elected to the 10-year, $31,500 a year posts.

Elwyn, a former Special City Judge, is Ulster County's first Family Court Judge. The court was created 10 years ago and took over the duties of the Children's Court and other family-related problems.

The 57-year-old judge is a 30-year resident of Kingston and was admitted to the Bar in 1939. He attended local schools and received his AB degree from Union College and his LL.B. from Albany Law School.

Mullany, who lives in the Town of Ulster has been a resident of the area since 1966 and was in partnership with Thomas Saccomani until 1970. Since then he has maintained his own office at 48 Main Street.

He attended Manhattan School of Engineering and received his BA degree from St. John's College in Brooklyn and his JD degree from St. John's School of Law.

While in Kingston his practice has consisted primarily of trial work and litigation with emphasis on matrimonial and Family Court cases.

Feeney has been in general practice in Kingston since 1956 and served as special city judge in Kingston during the 1960's.

A graduate of Albany Law School in 1953 he was associated with Howard C. St. John during 1953 and 1954. He served in the U.S. Army from 1954-56 and returned to Kingston to the private practice of law.

He served for three years as a member of the Charter Revision Commission of the City of Kingston, two years as chairman. He is a member of the Benedictine Hospital Advisory Board and has been chairman of the professional division of the Mental Health Association, YMCA and Community Chest fund raising drives.

DA VOGT

DA Campaign a Spirited Affair

KINGSTON Incumbent Republican Conservative District Attorney Francis J. Vogt, seeking a second term in office is being challenged Nov. 6 for the four-year post by Democrat-Liberal Barry Lippman.

Until legislative action this year, the $25,000-a-year office was for a period of only three years.

The campaign for district attorney has been peppered with charges and counter charges with Lippman accusing Vogt of "bungling" in his Consumer Fraud Bureau and Vogt calling the charges "inane and ridiculous."

Earlier this year, Vogt disclosed that his office had unearthed through investigation, a number of instances of automobile and television repair frauds, warning the area businesses involved that if they continued such practices, they would be prosecuted.

Lippman maintained that the businessmen involved should have received more than a warning and that they should have been prosecuted.

Vogt replied that in order to prosecute in this instance, he would have had to betray his promise of anonymity to the housewives he enlisted to help in the initial investigation. All future investigations which turn up frauds will be prosecuted, he said.

Vogt was born in Rochester, attended the University of Detroit where he graduated with bachelor of philosophy degree in 1950. His college career was interrupted by service in the Navy during World War II. In March, 1953, he joined the Federal Bureau of Investigation as a special agent and served in Washington, D.C.; Atlanta, Georgia; Columbus, Georgia; New York City; and Kingston.

While assigned to New York City, Vogt attended St. John University Law School receiving his LL.B. in June, 1958.

Vogt resigned from the FBI in January, 1959, to practice law at 42 Main Street, Kingston in association with John L. Larkin. The association ripened into a partnership which was dissolved as of Jan. 1, 1971, following Vogt's election to the office of the district attorney and Larkin's election to Justice of the Supreme Court for the Third Judicial District.

Prior to his election as DA, Vogt served in the Ulster County District Attorney's Office as a part-time assistant for ten years. He is a member of the Ulster County Bar Association, the National District Attorney's Association, the New York State District Attorney's Association. He was one time city chairman of the Cerebral Palsy Fund raising drive and presently serves as a member of the advisory board of the Benedictine Hospital. Vogt is married to the former Medora Arnold of Staten Island and they reside at 2 Hurley Avenue, Kingston, with their two children.

Lippman moved to Ulster

County from New York City about two years ago. He is a law partner of Alex J. Nirenberg, County Legislator from Dist. 10 (Wawarsing) and himself a former candidate for district attorney on the Democratic ticket. Howard Pearle is also a member of the firm in Kingston.

A graduate of New York University and St. John's Law School which he attended at night, graduating in 1969, wife, Rene, came here. They Lippman worked for the Legal Aid Society in New York for one year and practiced in the city for one year. He also held various positions as a teacher and law clerk.

Lippman said that after seeing the type of problems that develop in New York City, he feels he can make a contribution to Ulster County so that "the same thing doesn't overtake this community." He said that is why he and his wife, Rene, came here. They reside in Woodstock.

BARRY LIPPMAN

Reapport...New Plan

By LYNN MULVANEY

KINGSTON Eighty-one men and women have tossed their hats into the ring to run for the County Legislature Nov. 6 under the new Supreme Court ordered reapportionment plan in which the county's 12 districts are reduced to eight.

Voters will have the choice of not only selecting candidates but of voting on the reapportionment issue itself which is in keeping with the one-man, one-vote concept.

If the reapportionment proposal should fail to gain approval a special referendum would have to be held to approve another reapportionment plan.

A partisan issue with Republicans supporting the plan and Democrats opposed to it, the GOP points out that a second and special referendum would cost taxpayers about $70,000. Defeat, they say would also create confusion as to district boundary lines.

Democrats on the other hand claim the plan favors the Republican incumbents and urges its defeat.

The GOP counters by saying the new plan does not change historic town or city boundary lines and is through the use of computers, free of gerrymandering. Republicans feel legislators must concern themselves to a greater degree with overall problems and welfare of the county as a whole.

Some opponents are urging single-member districts and call the new plan a blow to the two-party system saying it is designed to insure the defeat of those Democrats most critical of the Republican administration.

Although the districts would be reduced from 12 to eight, the county board would still retain a membership of 33, with the makeup of the new districts as follows:

- District One — Saugerties, four legislators.
- District Two—Town of Ulster and Town of Kingston, three legislators.
- District Three — City of Kingston, six legislators.
- District 4 — Woodstock, Shandaken, Denning and Hardenburgh, two legislators.

- District 5—Olive, Hurley, Marlborough and Rochester, four legislators.
- District 6 — Esopus and Rosendale, three legislators.
- District 7—Wawarsing and Shawangunk, four legislators.
- District 8—New Paltz, Gardiner, Plattekill, Lloyd and Marlboro, seven legislators.

phere of fairness coupled with firmness, Judge Williams, presently a family court judge, feels strongly about courtroom conduct saying, "the courtroom is not a place for story telling and jokes and he would like to see more respect exhibited there than in recent years."

Levine points out that the Third Judicial District court race in seven counties, "was actually created by the change in the state's narcotic laws. There are 13 judges now serving the last legislative session the 14th judgeship was approved and it is expected that much of the elected judges work will be civil matters and narcotics cases," he said. He referred to the new Court of Claims positions as being "absolutely necessary" but pointed out that virtually all these judges will actually serve as Supreme Court Justices and questioned the potential effect of these appointments on the "political and philosophical question of balance in the courts."

Levine, who has Liberal endorsement, said he doesn't view the appointment of the Court of Claims judges as a question of constitutionality but said, "Certainly the precedent for appointment of judges shouldn't be set as standard practice for the future."

Williams feels that sentences imposed in criminal court in recent years have been "too lenient" with regard to such things as rape and non-fatal robberies. "Some are a joke," he said. "The sale of $100 of heroin is serious," he injected, and feels that sentences should be "more substantial." With regard to capital punishment, Judge Williams said he is in favor of it although he is not convinced that it would be a deterrent but that "those with criminal propensities would be more likely to consider the consequences."

Levine has more than 25 years of judicial experience and has served in a variety of public service positions including supervisor of the Town of Fallsburg and county attorney for Sullivan County.

Williams served as assistant district attorney of Sullivan County from 1957 to 1962 and was appointed by Gov. Rockefeller in May 1962 as district attorney and was elected DA in 1962 and 1965. He was elected Family Court Judge of Sullivan County in 1968 and has also served as acting County Court and Surrogate Court Judge of Sullivan County as well as in Ulster and Orange Counties.

Levine and Williams are both native to Sullivan County and have worked in the Sullivan County community in charitable, religious and civic affairs.

The Third Judicial District is comprised of the counties of Ulster, Sullivan, Albany, Greene, Schoharie, Columbia and Rensselaer.

'Huge County Field'

By LYNN MULVANEY

KINGSTON Ulster County voters will choose 33 legislators on Tuesday, Nov. 6, from a huge field of 81 candidates, more than have been in evidence in recent years.

The candidates, their districts and the towns they are to represent, plus the number of legislators to be elected in each of the eight districts is as follows:

Ex-Partners Now Rivals

KINGSTON "I'm a 9 to 5 judge... I don't believe anyone can put in a day's work between 11 a.m. and 1 p.m.," Republican Judge Robert C. Williams of Monticello said in his bid for Justice of the Supreme Court in the Third Judicial District.

His opponent and former law partner in Sullivan County, Democrat Milton Levine feels "A Supreme Court Justice is in the business of dealing with people. It is simply the business of getting things done... moving cases through the courts and assuring the right to a prompt and fair trial," he said.

Intending to create an atmosphere of fairness coupled with firmness, Judge Williams, presently a family court judge, feels strongly about courtroom conduct saying, "the courtroom is not a place for story telling and jokes and he would like to see more respect exhibited there than in recent years."

He also advocates a justice's meeting of persons concerned with court cases on Saturdays, "so that they do not have to take time off from work."

Levine points out that the Third Judicial District court race in seven counties, "was actually created by the change in the state's narcotic laws. There are 13 judges now serving the last legislative session the 14th judgeship was approved and it is expected that much of the elected judges work will be civil matters and narcotics cases," he said. He referred to the new Court of Claims positions as being "absolutely necessary" but pointed out that virtually all these judges will actually serve as Supreme Court Justices and questioned the potential effect of these appointments on the "political and philosophical question of balance in the courts."

Levine, who has Liberal endorsement, said he doesn't view the appointment of the Court of Claims judges as a question of constitutionality but said, "Certainly the precedent for appointment of judges shouldn't be set as standard practice for the future."

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, NOVEMBER 4, 1973

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Suppressed documents show that the White House kept a tight lid on all information relating to expenditures on President Nixon's estates at San Clemente, Calif., and Key Biscayne, Fla.

Earlier this year, we reported that former White House staff chief H. R. Haldeman directed the extensive San Clemente renovations at a cost to the taxpayers running into the millions.

We have now obtained documents which show Haldeman used a trusted aide, John R. Brown III, to keep tight, total control of the cost information on the presidential retreats. He made sure no unauthorized information leaked out.

"I am the only individual," Brown wrote in 1970 to then General Services Administration Robert Kunzig, "to whom they (GSA officials) should release cost information concerning your support for White House-involved projects such as Key Biscayne, San Clemente, the West Wing, etc."

CONFUSION

Stating there had been "a degree of confusion on the matter," Brown declared in his White House memo: "I believe that it will be easier on all concerned for you to communicate through only one point of contact on the White House staff."

Brown's role as the cost coordinator and censor is revealed in other documents as well. A classified GSA memo, for example, indicates that "the White House will reimburse GSA for cleaning private residences, chafing dishes, ice, etc."

"Any requests other than direct from White House members for additional services in the mansion are to be cleared by John Brown in Washington. Bill for rental of sheets to cover furniture in the residence to be sent to John Brown for payment."

Another GSA document reveals that Brown arranged for a private employee of the Nixon Foundation to use government offices at San Clemente. "Miss Lois Gaunt who is employed by the Nixon Foundation..." states the memo, "Has been assigned one of the guest offices in Building B." This was "requested," the memo adds, "by John Brown."

ADMINISTRATIVE

Brown confirmed to us that he had handled "administrative functions" and had paid for expenditures at the Nixon estates. He explained that he had used government, political and personal funds to pay the bills. "My instructions," he said, "were to protect against misappropriation of government funds. The problem was not a lack of funds but misappropriation."

Personal expenditures, Brown said, were paid out of the President's personal funds. Expenses of "a political nature" were paid by the Republican National Committee.

He didn't recall whether any money was used at San Clemente from the White House "Special Projects Fund." Because the White House has refused to provide Congress with a listing of expenditures from this annual $1.5 million fund, Congress has cut it off.

FOOTNOTE: The White House had no comment to make, except to say that the Nixon Foundation employee had not been assigned government office space at San Clemente. When told of the GSA memo, the White House spokesman insisted there was "no recollection of her having been assigned space."

BOOTLEG REPORT: We have obtained a bootleg copy of the inch-thick report which so infuriated Space Administrator James Fletcher that he fired the agency's top woman, Deputy Assistant Administrator Ruth Bates Harris.

Mrs. Harris, who ran the space agency's equal opportunity program, told Fletcher that as far as blacks and women were concerned, the program is a "near total failure." At the present rate, the agency's black employment will reach nine per cent only by the year 2001. As for women, 88 per cent are in the lowest grades.

There are "no minority or female astronauts," the document goes on. "There have been three females sent into space by NASA. Two are Arabella and Anita — both spiders. The other is Miss Baker — a monkey."

After Fletcher got the scathing report, he fired Mrs. Harris. The firing, he declared, was the result of "discord and divisiveness," not the Harris report.

CABLE FROM ISRAEL: By secret cable, Israel's Foreign Minister Abba Eban has sent his ambassador in Washington, Simcha Dinitz, an impassioned note to circulate at the highest levels of the U.S. government.

The note stresses the great value the outnumbered Israelis place on every human life and calls for help in learning the fate of Israeli prisoners of war.

The note reports, as of October 24 when the shooting stopped, that Israel had given a full report to the International Red Cross on the 988 Egyptians, 295 Syrians, 12 Iraqis and five Moroccans in Israeli custody.

But virtually no information had been received about Israeli prisoners. "No information whatsoever has been received from Syria," the note alleges. "As to Egypt, an utterly incomplete, unsatisfactory and garbled list of 37 Israeli prisoners of war has been received..."

Jewish Defections Coming

By WILLIAM F. BUCKLEY, JR.

I do not know the background of the Reverend Paul Mayer, but I rejoice in him. He is truly the man who remarked that the emperor had no clothes, and his fate threatens to be the fate of those who tell the truth in a truth-denying world. Imagine, in Moscow, addressing a chamber full of delegates to a Communist enterprise — the World Peace Congress — and giving a speech, in behalf of seven (out of 150) Americans, complaining of the absence of freedom in the Soviet Union! This Father Mayer did, and he wasn't a CIA plant.

He even said some silly things about the United States, to make plausible his presence in Moscow at the World Peace Congress in the first place. He said, "We say first to these, our Russian friends with whom we may have disagreements, that it is only the curtain of silence maintained by our Government and by our own which prevents you from knowing that there have for years been voices raised against Soviet actions in suppressing dissent."

I don't know what he means by any curtain of silence maintained by the United States Government, unless he is referring to Senator Fulbright's periodic efforts to close down the Voice of America and ancillary operations that beam shards of truth into the Soviet Union.

The result was to be expected. The overwhelming majority of the Americans who are attending the Communist Congress are not there because they favor peace, let alone civil liberties, but because they beat the Communist drum in their own countries. Father Mayer was joined in his protest against Soviet repression by some big name American left-activists including David Dellinger, Father Berrigan, and Noam Chomsky. But there were only seven of them.

There was hell to pay. First the chairman of the meeting attempted to interrupt Father Mayer, as if to say: "We say first to these, our Russian friends with whom we may have disagreements, that it is only the curtain of silence maintained by our Government and by our own which prevents you from knowing that there have for years been voices raised against Soviet actions in suppressing dissent."

The next day, sensing the universal indignation at a call for freedom for Russians expressed within Russia, Father Mayer tendered his resignation and, by a vote of over two to one, it was accepted by the American delegation. A representative of that delegation put the matter exquisitely. "There's been an implicit understanding not to offend the hosts by bringing up awkward subjects." Human rights are, as everyone knows, an awkward subject within the Soviet Union.

The Soviet propaganda machine does not let up, one notes in passing — not in its ersatz concern for world peace, in this case expressed before a world congress in Moscow one week after up-setting world peace in the Mideast. The long arm of Soviet policy concerns itself with Soviet interests everywhere. The Communist Party, U.S.A., has taken out full page ads supporting the Arab countries in the Mideast. Now normally one would expect that a Communist, surveying the Mideast situation, would reason along the lines of the economic imperative: i.e., reason that world diplomacy gravitates about Arab oil. But not in this case.

The entire ad, analyzing the Mideast crisis, is crippled by paradoxes and involutions. It begins by denouncing the "annexation of Arab lands," as if the Communists had any objection to annexation of other people's lands. Then it deplores the "promotion of anti-Arab hysteria in the U.S.

and with this a growth of racism." I have seen no such hysteria, nor experienced such racism.

Then there is a passage absolutely inscrutable: "The danger to the people of Israel, as well as to the Arab peoples and the whole world, comes from those monopoly interests in Israel and the U.S. who think they can rob the Arab peoples of their oil." I do not know what this means. And, finally, together with an exclamation point, "Not a dollar or a drop of blood for the oil monopolies!" But the United States has been on the side that has been fighting the country where the oil monopolies are. Figure it out.

Ads of this nature are not intended to communicate analysis, merely allegiances. It means that the Communist Party of the United States, which for generations has been the mischievous and perfidious instrument of Soviet policy substantially supported by misguided American Jews, has now turned provocatively against Jewish interests in Israel: and that is a turn of profound moment. I do not doubt that in the days ahead we shall see within the Communist Party, U.S.A., Jewish defections: overdue, like the brave words of Father Mayer within the hornet's nest in Moscow.

Washington Calling

Sirica and the Courts Shine Through

By MARQUIS CHILDS

WASHINGTON — In this time of testing, the courts as much as any institution are being tried by the fires of adversity. The origins of the American system, and it may be a healthy aspect of the political storm, are brought into the full light of our day.

In the midst of all this a stout figure has emerged who, for all the winds of controversy swirling around him, has kept his cool. Chief Judge John J. Sirica of the United States District Court could hardly in the boldest flights of imagination have envisioned himself in a position of such extraordinary responsibility. Importuned from every direction to speak out, his office flooded with letters and telegrams, Judge Sirica keeps his own counsel.

The burden he has borne thus far — the trial of the Watergate Seven, the decision on the White House tapes — is only the beginning. What is still to come means an even greater responsibility for a trial judge who finds himself at the center of a fierce controversy on which so much turns for the nation.

If Congress enacts a law providing a special prosecutor with full independence, as is now widely expected, the responsibility for naming the prosecutor would fall on Sirica. Because this is almost too much to ask of one individual, the likelihood is that the full District Court, 15 judges in all, will choose the prosecutor. He will be responsible to the grand jury empowered by Sirica to hear the charges that are certain to result in a series of indictments.

But before the individuals indicted come to trial the stellar case, the center of the storm, will be heard in Sirica's court. That is the charge of obstructing justice, the cover-up, in the Watergate break-in as it may or may not involve the President. As a preliminary Sirica will listen in the privacy of his chamber to the nine White House tapes which White House counsel agreed at the last minute to release. He will also have access to relevant documents and memoranda.

This in itself is a formidable task, although it is not likely to be as time-consuming as some reports have had it. Without the assistance of an electronic expert, Sirica will listen to the recordings and winnow out what could be considered national security matters. Then the judge's findings will be subject to appeal by the White House to the Circuit Court of Appeals.

In a lengthy opinion ranging back to the Founding Fathers and the great chief justice of the Supreme Court, John Marshall, the appeals court upheld Sirica's ruling that "executive privilege" did not make the president immune from subpoena power when possible criminal charges were involved.

"Lacking textual support," the circuit court held in a majority opinion, "counsel for the President nonetheless would have us infer immunity from the President's political mandate, or from his vulnerability to impeachment, or from his broad discretionary powers. These are invitations to refashion the Constitution and we reject them."

So heavy is the work load ahead, with the expected indictments, that Sirica expects to ask other judges, including several brought in from outside Washington, to help. He will ask Judge Gerhard A. Gessel, one of the ablest of the District judges, to hear the case of Egil Krogh Jr., a leader of the White House plumbers.

There are not many John Marshalls on the scene today. But it must be a source of satisfaction that a working judge at the district court level should be unflinching under the strain of a controversy unmatched in its intensity and all-pervasive quality since the Civil War.

It was, after all, Sirica who spoke out, following the patty-cake presentation by the government in the trial of the Watergate Seven, to say that much more should be expected of those assigned to prosecute a case so charged with implications leading to the highest levels of government.

Given the political involvement in the selection of federal judges, we are more fortunate than we deserve that men of character come out of the ranks. The role of the courts in this miserable mess has thus far been an honorable one.

BERRY'S WORLD

"You will forget about Watergate and get on to more urgent business... You will forget about Watergate and get on to..."

Freeman Readers Write the Editor

Impossible Task

Editor, The Freeman:

In just a few days November 6th will be here and another year of electioneering will have passed. But, 1973 is not likely to be easily forgotten, for a nationally, it has been a year of political disaster.

Yet, I think the seeds of the disaster have been there for a long time, and lay partly in our electoral structure and our attitudes toward it. To really know the personality and qualifications of the local, state and national candidates, and where they stand on issues, is an almost impossible task for the voter — even for the most concerned. All too frequently, our choice becomes one of voting the party ticket (and parties can make some awfully poor choices), or of guessing between candidates. In New Paltz, for instance, the voter will have to select between more than thirty candidates seeking town, county and state offices.

The process is almost impossible for the candidate as well. In my own case, I have sent out separately, or with other candidates, more than 6,500 letters. Despite the kind help of volunteers, this is an expensive and time-consuming task, and still I have not reached all the registered voters. Moreover, I could only include in the letter, my position on a couple issues — hardly adequate for people to judge how I might perform as a county legislator. In addition, I have tried to send press releases on a weekly basis to the six newspapers most likely to be read by people in my district. However, not all these were published. The weekly newspapers have limited space.

Taking a Stand

Editor, The Freeman:

Well, we have now had demonstrated for us the essence of petty politics: do not make a commitment to anything — ever!

It is my understanding that the candidates were asked to take a position — any position, positive or negative — just so the constituency would know where their candidates stand on the plight of our library.

Not one candidate had the guts to oppose the machine and take a stand.

The library suffers, and I'm disgusted with the choices available to me this coming Election Day!

Very truly yours,
SANDY SNYDER (Mrs.)
Kingston, N. Y.

Kinns Candidacy

Editor, The Freeman:

As a concerned citizen of Woodstock, I would like to remind all voters of our town that they are voting for a town justice this year. The choice is clear. We must elect Jim Kinns. Jim has been the only candidate who has shown a genuine interest in being town justice. He is the only candidate who is willing and capable to return "Sweeney's" court to the citizens of Woodstock. He is the only candidate who is willing to balance a compassion for a defendant with a concern for a victim.

It is quite apparent to me that Kevin Sweeney really desires to be a member of the town board. His entire campaign has been based upon the performance of the town board during the past two years. Little or nothing has been said during his campaign about his role as town justice.

It is imperative that the voters of this town realize that the town justice that we elect this year will, by law, leave the town board after two years of his four year term of office. After two years that person will be solely a town justice. Therefore, it is critical that we examine each candidate with regard to their qualifications for judicial office.

Although Kevin has stated very little about his qualifications and desire to be a town justice, he has stated that he feels that a primary function of a town justice is that of a conciliator. His expertise as such a conciliator is quite notorious. Who else would refuse to entertain an eviction proceeding brought by a local resident; announce that, if he had it his way, he would declare almost all leases unconstitutional; require a local resident to conciliate the matter, rather than afford her the opportunity of having her day in court; impound her furniture; and deposit her rent check in his account, all over her vigorous protest? I shudder at the possibility of some day being the recipient of Kevin's conciliation. Fortunately, the victim of the conciliation referred to herein, has been afforded an opportunity to a day in court in a law suit now pending in the Supreme Court. However, the town board is now required to expend your tax dollars in an attempt to defend in that court Kevin's conciliation.

Ask yourselves, "When have you, the residents and tax payers of this community, been given your due and proper consideration by Kevin Sweeney in his court?" I submit Kevin's sole interest in the several criminal matters that have been before him is a concern for the defendant. What other reasonable explanation can be given for the fact that the various police agencies, who are charged with protecting you, the people of the Town of Woodstock and the State of New York, go to all lengths to avoid the bringing of a defendant before Kevin? Ask any police officer and he will tell you that he does not feel that you, the citizen, or he, the police officer, would get your due consideration by Kevin.

I almost forgot. There is an independent candidate running for the office of town justice this year. Perhaps you may know him. His name is Alan Van Wagenen. His reputation for never taking anything seriously, indicates that his bid for town justice is the result of a lark and, therefore, can not and should not be taken seriously by you, the voters of Woodstock.

Jim Kinns, therefore, is the only candidate deserving of this office. Examine Jim's performance in the myriad of activities in which he has participated for the benefit of the town and various organizations within the town, and I am sure that you will recognize that he is a man of deep and vigorous commitment to this town. He is tireless in his efforts to make Woodstock the type of community that we all take pride in. The respect that he has earned from the people of the Town of Woodstock, and for that matter from all persons with whom he has become associated, will work to renew your respect and trust of the office which he seeks to occupy. When you enter the voting booth next Tuesday, vote for the only real choice for the town justice of the Town of Woodstock — vote Jim Kinns.

Very truly yours,

Merrill Voter

Editor, The Freeman:

On Halloween night, October 31, 1973, a Freeman editorial appeared in your paper, leaving many questions still unanswered. You asked: Has the present administration moved fast enough in coping with the city's problems, or is it, in fact, a government manipulated by crisis? I, and many of my friends and associates feel the answer to that question is yes it is a government by crisis.

You also go on about what a great job Koenig has done for the City of Kingston. You state in your editorial that the mayor's accomplishments have been many. What has he done that any other mayor could not have done just as well, or better?

You also stated that the tax rate in the City of Kingston is the same as it was 10 years ago. Well, 10 years ago we did not have a seven per cent sales tax. Where is all this money going?

You also say that we have more parking lots on Broadway. Well, we also have less stores on Broadway. Also, the traffic studies are being made for the City of Kingston. Why was this not done a long time ago, when Kingston had a population of 30,000?

Sorry Frank, but my vote goes to Bill Merrill. At least if I have a problem, he won't slam the phone down on me.

Sincerely,
ROBERT R. SWEENEY
Kingston, N. Y.

Supports Kinns

Editor, The Freeman:

Jim Kinns has been a responsible citizen of Woodstock ever since coming here thirty-six years ago.

He and his wife have raised a family of children who have grown up realizing their responsibilities and duties as members of this community.

He has always been loyal to our town, actively participating in many projects and has finished anything he started, and successfully. He is not a quitter, but a builder and a doer.

He is a man of high principles and will conduct the office of town justice in such a manner as to promote understanding of the law and its sane application in all circumstances and to all citizens.

We believe he will do credit to such an important office and bring back respect for the law.

Respectfully,
TONY and WIGGIE DeLISIO

Ulster GOP Dinner Tonight

ACCORD Congressman Benjamin A. Gilman of Middletown (R-26th Dist.) will be the guest speaker at the 18th annual Ulster County Republican Fund Raising Dinner being held tonight at the Granit 2 Hotel in Accord.

The affair is a sell-out with about 900 persons expected, according to GOP County Chairman Albert Spada.

A social hour will be held from 6:30 to 7, to be followed by dinner. A gala New York City floor show is also planned after the dinner.

Among the more notable political candidates expected to attend are Judge Charles Breitler, Republican candidate for Chief Judge, Court of Appeals; Robert C. Williams, GOP candidate for Supreme Court Justice in the Third Judicial District.

Also, District Attorney Francis J. Vogt, County Treasurer Fred H. DuBois and Coroner Arthur C. Chipp.

Other VIPs who will attend include Congressman Hamilton Fish (R-25th Dist.), State Sen. Edwyn E. Mason (R-48th Dist.), State Sen. Richard E. Schermerhorn (R-40th Dist.), Assemblyman H. Clark Bell (R-101st Dist.), Assemblyman Emeel Betros (R-99th Dist.), John Sharpe, chairman of the Columbia County Republican Committee and Cyrus Schoonmaker, chairman of the Delaware County Republican Committee.

Also, Mrs. Mary Jo Dunham, member of the New York State Executive Committee, Third Judicial District; State Committeeman H. Clark Bell and Mrs. Doris Stang, E. Stirling Potter and Beatrice Wadlin; members of the Advisory Board of the County Republican Committee, Louis C. Francello, Moe Smith, Edwin Hoar, Peter J. Savago, chairman of the Ulster County Legislature and Mrs. Thomas Wickman.

Also, Mrs. Brendon D. Alexander, president of the Ulster County Federation of Women's Republican Clubs; James Rapp, president of the Young Republicans; Peter Graham, president of STAARS and Frances Tomshaw, Miss Ulster County.

All city and county Republican candidates seeking office Tuesday will attend and be introduced.

Judge Answers Statement

KINGSTON Expressing "surprise" at a statement by Republican Conservative Mayoral candidate William B. Merrill that he intends to abolish the office of City Court Judge and replace it with justices of the peace, City Judge Hubert A. Richter said, "It demonstrates his lack of knowledge of city government and finances."

Richter, who is running unopposed on the Democrat and Liberal lines for the City Judge post, said the position was created by City Charter and "could only be abolished by an act of the State Legislature."

"What Merrill proposes would not be accepted by the legislature and would be a step backwards not forward," Richter said.

Richter took exception to Merrill's claim that the city's judicial system is costing "about $30,000 a year" and that a justice of the peace system would be less expensive and more efficient.

"If candidate Merrill had taken the time to acquaint himself with the city budget he would have learned that with fees, fines and forfeitures the city court of Kingston is almost self sustaining," Richter said.

"My salary is $9,000 a year. The special city judge earns $2,100. Compare this to the Town of Ulster which pays its two justices of the peace $13,000. By any standard the

Decision Concerns Saugerties Dems

The three principal Democratic candidates for Saugerties town office, Paul Miller, running for supervisor, Trudy Lee, candidate for clerk, and Chuck Ollinger, councilman candidate, expressed anger and great concern over Tuesday night's decision by the Town Planning Board not to adopt a 90-day moratorium on commercial and industrial construction as well as sub-division development during the interim period following acceptance of the land use plan.

hearing on this all-important document," said Miller. "But the three to two decision, with Morrow Decker abstaining, represents a clear defiance of the will of the majority of the people of Saugerties. A moratorium is absolutely necessary to prevent last-minute exploitation by outside interests."

"After several years of delay, the public is at last to get a

Miller said, "We intend to call a public meeting immediately after the election to arouse the public and to present both the Town Board and the Town Planning Board a petition to reconsider this completely unsatisfactory decision. This is another instance of a small minority, representing special interests, thwarting the will of the entire township, Democrats and Republicans alike."

Saugerties features the incumbent, A. Michael Schovel, who once said he wasn't going to run at all, running on the Independent ticket against a pair of newcomers, Paul V. Miller on the Democratic ticket and Charles H. Goertz, the Republican.

Schovel immediately after the meeting, but found he was completely unconcerned about what had happened. Instead he spent the time berating the professional consultant firm that had pointed out to the Planning Board that a moratorium would be a logical thing for the town to consider at this point."

Schovel is something of a legend in his own time, a self-described "song and dance man" who walked off with the Democratic nomination in 1967 at a time when the nomination was tantamount to defeat in Republican-controlled Saugerties. Schovel won easily and then went on to reelection, as a Democrat in 1969 and 1971.

Schovel and the Democrats parted ways earlier this year and after first announcing that he would not seek reelection, Schovel opted instead for the Independent nomination.

The Democrats have fielded a hard-hitting, issue oriented candidate in Miller who has directed his campaign against Schovel and the "Republican dominated" Town Board.

Goertz, a retired businessman, cites his experience in business and finance in contending that Schovel has been "non-existent" and "the worst administrator the town has ever had."

WOODSTOCK Joanne Sabatini, 35, of Wittenberg-Glenford Road, Bearsburg, was injured early Saturday when the car in which she was riding skidded on wet pavement on Wittenberg Road, and crashed into trees.

Ballot Opening

Ulster County Legislator Lewis Hall, chairman of the Board of Elections Committee, has advised that the opening of sealed envelopes containing military or absentee ballots prior to the close of polls at 9 p.m. election night is a crime under provisions of state election law. Anyone observing or having knowledge of the opening of sealed ballots prior to 9 p.m. election night has been urged to contact the Board of Elections.

Woodstock Constables, who investigated the 12:30 a.m. accident, said the car was operated by her husband Frank Sabatini, 37. He was not reported injured.

The lowest temperature recorded on The Freeman thermometer during the night was 34 degrees. The highest figure recorded up to 6 a.m. today was 34 degrees.

Mrs. Sabatini was listed in fair condition at Benedictine Hospital Saturday.

No summonses were issued. Meanwhile, three persons were treated and released at area hospitals following a two-car crash at the intersection of East Chester and Lincoln Streets in Kingston Friday afternoon.

Paltz Highway Hopeful Scores Endorsement

NEW PALTZ Al Krom, Democratic candidate for highway superintendent in the town of New Paltz, has demanded an apology to the residents from the New Paltz News, a weekly newspaper, which Krom claims "misinformed" them in its editorial endorsement of Republican candidates.

Krom claimed that the newspaper's representatives were at only one of several press conferences held by the Democrats and "at no time did anyone from your newspaper take the time to get involved with the Democrats' campaign."

Krom also took issue with the newspaper's contention that roads were not an issue in this year's campaign, pointing to the paper's previous stories concerning Fulton Street Extension (an issue that Krom says he first raised) along with Naples Drive, Shervtown Road, Plutarch Road and Dug Road.

The Ulster County Conservative Party has called for an investigation by the Consumer Fraud Bureau of the District Attorney's office into the possibility of fraud in alleged false advertising being conducted by the Ulster County Republican Party in support of the county reappointment plan.

In his letter, Jackson said, "Please take the necessary steps to secure all advertising and interviewing tapes, notes, memorandums, and letters produced by the Republican Party in their campaign to gain support of Local Law No. 2."

A copy of the letter was also sent to Attorney General Louis Lefkowitz.

GEORGE A. KIRK

Candidate Gives Aims

MT. TREMPER Calling himself "a thinking man" George A. Kirk, Republican candidate for County Legislature in new Dist. 4, said he would like to remind the people of the towns of Shandaken, Hardenburg, Denning and Woodstock that he will do his best to represent all the people with a clear head and thought only for their welfare if elected.

Realizing that this will be a new experience, he feels that his background of nine years on the town board of Shandaken and as town justice, 14 years as fire district treasurer plus ten years association with Bankers Trust formerly The State of New York National Bank gives him sufficient experience in the ways of the legislature that he will not be "lost" his first year in office if elected.

Recently it has been suggested that if both he and incumbent Republican William West are elected he, Kirk, would only be "an echo." When asked about this Kirk was quick to reply, "Bill West and I are running as a team to give the people the best advantage in the legislature. Any one who has been associated with me would assure the people that the one thing I do is think for myself and speak my own mind," Kirk said.

There are four people running for office and Kirk said that the two with the most number votes would be elected in Dist. 4. Realizing this, he hopes that the voters will not split their vote and thereby cancel out their voice in the legislature.

Two Men Are Charged In Bizarre Car Case

PALENTVILLE Arraigned before Catskill Town Justice George Carl Byrne was confined in Greene County Jail in lieu of $1,000 bail. Santorella was released after posting $1,000 bail. Both men are scheduled to reappear in court Nov. 16.

Police said there was no apparent reason for Byrne's alleged attempts to force the Santorella car off the road.

Leeds State Police said the bizarre series of events began about 2 a.m. when Walter Byrne, 25, of RD 5, Saugerties, allegedly attempted three times to force a car driven by Carlo Santorella, 40, of Colonia, N.J. off Route 23A west of Palenville.

Sawkill firemen under the direction of Fire Chief Fred Parker were called to the scene at 5:30 p.m. and returned to quarters at 7:45 p.m.

Constantino Santorella allegedly fired the shotgun at the trunk of the Byrne car, which was a convertible, and several pellets went through the canvas roof, with one wounding Byrne in the neck, police said.

Byrne was treated and released at Greene County Memorial Hospital. Both he and Constantino Santorella were charged with first degree reckless endangerment, a felony.

Patient Found Dead in Woods

ORANGEBURG, N.Y. (AP)—A lost mental hospital patient, whose father had searched in vain for him for a week, was found dead Saturday in the woods about three miles from Rockland State Hospital.

The body of Thomas F. Hawkins Jr., 30, was found at Clausland Mountain by two teen-aged hikers.

Police said he apparently had died of exposure. An autopsy was ordered.

Hawkins wandered away from the hospital Oct. 27.

His 57-year-old father, who lives in Brooklyn, took leave from his job as a steamship clerk to head the search personally.

At first only hospital employees and police helped, but when a story about the case appeared in the Rockland Journal this week, 200 volunteer firemen joined the search.

TV Thefts In Saugerties

Saugerties Village Police are investigating a burglary reported early Saturday morning at the Mark Miller TV Sales and Service, 165 Ulster Avenue.

Police said two televisions valued at between $300 and $400 were reported taken sometime before about 1:15 a.m. Police received a call at 1:15 a.m. stating that it was believed someone was in the store. They responded to the call, found the door of the store open, but found no one inside.

The owner of the store, George Mark Miller, was contacted to determine what had been taken.

Wallace Under Knife Again

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI)—Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, crippled in an assassination attempt last year, was in satisfactory condition Saturday after undergoing minor surgery to improve the function of his bladder.

The 30-minute operation, called an external sphincterotomy, was performed by Dr. George H. Myers without anesthesia as a followup to prostate surgery the governor had last January. Myers performed the January operation. Wallace's last previous surgery.

Washington Roll Call

How Our Area Legislators Voted

WASHINGTON, D.C. Congressman Benjamin A. Gilman (R-26th) voted yes as the House of Representatives rejected a measure that would have crippled the environmental education law.

The area's two other Congressmen, Hamilton Fish Jr. (R-25th) and Howard W. Robison (R-27th) voted against the measure.

The measure was rejected by a vote of 140 for and 252 against with the vote coming on an amendment to prevent funding of environmental education programs for two additional years beyond the current fiscal year.

The overall bill, which eventually was passed and sent to the Senate, funds public and private environmental education projects. The bill, supported by the Sierra Club and other environmental groups, authorizes $45 million through fiscal 1976.

Those voting for generally favored the administration's position and argued that the environmental education program was never intended to be permanent.

Opponents generally cited the need for federally-supported environmental education and argued that categorical grants are the best way to fund it.

All three area congressmen voted yes on a school lunch amendment that would have given four states — New York, New Jersey, Rhode Island and Maryland — higher federal reimbursements for serving free school lunches than other states receive. The amendment defeated, 145 for and 218 against, voted to apply equally to all was passed by the Senate and attached to the school lunch bill conference report.

In the past, cities in the four states have received extra money for school lunches because of high concentrations of "needy" pupils. The House, in defeating this amendment, voted to apply equally to all states the formula for free budgets and therefore should receive special consideration for at least one more year.

Opponents, meanwhile, argued for closing a loophole that benefits certain states at the expense of the rest of the country, and said that fiscal 1974's new subsidy level softens the crunch on schools in the four states.

The Senate during this reporting period was in session two days but took no roll call votes. The Senate is waiting for the House to pass legislation.

PRINCETON, N.J.

A majority of Americans (55 per cent) think President Nixon should not be impeached and compelled to leave the presidency.

An even larger majority, 62 per cent, voice the opinion that it would not be in the best interests of the country for Nixon to resign at this time.

Confidence in the Nixon administration, however, remains at a low level. A majority in the survey (55 per cent) say they have either "not very much" or "no" trust and confidence in the administration. This finding represents little change from the one recorded in a mid-October survey in which the same question was asked.

Of the six in 10 persons who say they have seen or heard the President's recent press conference, 53 per cent found his responses concerning Watergate to be unconvincing. This compares with 31 per cent who found them convincing and 16 per cent who have mixed feelings or do not express an opinion.

Another question shows six in 10 persons (63 per cent) saying they would like to see Congress confirm Rep. Gerald Ford Vice President at this time. This compares with 17 per cent who are opposed to confirmation and 20 per cent who do not express an opinion.

effective annual yield on guaranteed per year for 4 to 7 years, (minimum deposit $1000)

Now, the highest rate allowed by law.

Confused by so many different rates? We don't blame you. Federal regulations regarding interest rates on term accounts have fluctuated widely in past months.

But now, an absolute maximum has been set on the rate savings banks may pay for deposits of $1000 to $100,000 committed to terms of 4 to 7 years. And Heritage pays that maximum.

Heritage also pays the highest interest rate allowed on deposits of $1000 to $100,000 committed to shorter lengths of term:

| TERM           | EFFECTIVE ANNUAL YIELD | GUARANTEED ANNUAL INTEREST |
| 90 days-1 year | 6%                     | 5 3/4%                     |
| 1-2 1/2 years  | 6.81%                  | 6 1/2%                     |
| 2 1/2-4 years  | 7.08%                  | 6 3/4%                     |

If this still seems a bit confusing, just remember two things:

1. These are the highest rates allowed by law.
2. Some banks may pay less, but not Heritage. We pay you the highest rates allowed on all accounts, including term and passbook savings accounts.

Conservatives Against Transit Issue

KINGSTON — Earmarked for completion costs of the 1967 bond issue projects, we wonder whether the 1973 bond issue is merely a prelude to the 1976 bond issue, the 1978 bond issue and the 1984 bond issue.

Party Chairman William Jackson terms the bond issue "ill conceived" and says his party is against it for a variety of reasons, including:

"In view of the manner in which state debt has mushroomed over the last few years:

"We oppose the blank check nature of the bond issue which would authorize enormous amounts of money without detailing the specifics of how it would be spent:

"We oppose the open-end nature of the bond issue and since part of its proceeds are urge the next Legislature to take a long, serious look at the true transportation needs of the state in an unhurried atmosphere free from political and public relations pressures and promises. On Nov. 6, we urge all New Yorkers to vote NO on Proposition No. 1."

"We oppose most strenuously the vast amounts of money which must be spent in interest on the bond issue:

"We also object — as every taxpayer should — to the use of state funds to promote the bond issue through a slick public relations campaign. This is an entirely improper use of the taxpayers' money."

In closing, Jackson said, "We

Policano Questions Absence

TOWN OF ULSTER — When have you seen his name in print in line with his elected duty for service to the town's people? A fact, unknown by the average Town of Ulster citizen, is that the town is reimbursed for each arraignment by the state. "Therefore, arraignments in other towns that should be in Ulster means a loss of revenue to Ulster," Policano explained.

"Not necessarily capitalizing on the misfortunes of others, but when the crime is committed in the town, it's the elected town justices who must make themselves available for this, their elected responsibility," Policano continued. "An extension of this is that the office of the town justice should be a single entity, not coupled with additional responsibility as a member of the town board. I will endeavor, if elected, to work through the town board to seek a separation of the town justice from that of town legislator. A first class designation for our expanding town is a solution for this situation," Policano concluded.

SEPTIC TANK - CESSPOOL CLOGGING CAN NOW BE PREVENTED!

LIVINGSTON, N. J. — An amazing bacterial discovery that prevents clogging of septic tanks and cesspools with but a single, safe and easy-to-use yearly treatment, has been developed by the FX-Lab Co., Livingston, N. J.

Sluggish systems and drainfields can also be restored to normal by fast acting bacterial cultures. They are also recommended as a "starter" to seed newly cleaned out or newly installed septic tanks and cesspools.

These proven FX bacterial organisms, known as FX-4 for septic tanks, FX-7 for cesspools, and FX-11 for sluggish septic tanks and cesspools are available locally.

Available also, is a free booklet "The Story of Willie Bacteria, or How To Take Care of Your Septic Tank or Cesspool" from:

LET US REVIEW . . . OUR CITY'S ISSUES

MR. KOENIG'S RECORD:

1. CITY TREASURY SCANDAL: Poor management, complete disregard for fiscal responsibility.
2. REFUSE DISPOSAL: 4 years of warnings. Still no plans, no foresight. Hire some more experts. Pushing dirt around and increasing the area seven feet is no way to alleviate the problem.
3. ETHNIC COMMUNITY RAP SESSIONS: This request by responsible black leaders was completely ignored. Ignore it Mr. Mayor — maybe it will go away?
4. POLICE TO POPULATION RATIO: Inadequate to the point where uptown businessmen were going to hire their own. Crime and vandalism and burglaries up.
5. MASS TRANSIT: Complete disregard to people who do not own automobiles, including Senior Citizens.
6. CITY SALES TAX: Notice all the out of town Shopping Centers? Why? You pay less sales tax outside Kingston, N. Y. The Mayor is driving business out of town.
7. OLD CITY HALL: No plans. No answers. Who knows, perhaps another "Jack In The Box?"
8. DOWNTOWN URBAN RENEWAL: "City Hall Plaza" "Grand Union" all just promises . . . still no developers.
9. CITY PURCHASING DEPT: Just another promise. The city is a 6½ million dollar corporation, without a central Purchasing Agent. Buying, duplication and waste are rampant. No city financial report since June.
10. CITY STREETS & PROPERTIES: While the Mayor is having his picture taken uptown with Urban Renewal, why doesn't he have his picture taken with all the boarded up, dilapidated and deserted stores. Spruce street remains closed and Lincoln Street under water. Tannery Brook and Main Street Brook remain unsolved.
11. THE MAYOR PLANS to construct a new Fire House at exorbitant expense to the City.

MR. MERRILL'S PROPOSALS:

1. CLOSER RELATIONSHIP: With all City departments, closer control of our taxpayers' money.
2. IMMEDIATE SOLUTION: Barge to Newburgh Incinerator.
INTERMEDIATE SOLUTION: Negotiate County Co-op Landfill
LONG RANGE SOLUTION: Central Hudson's new power plant to incorporate a large incineration facility.
3. COMMUNITY PROBLEMS: I will be available with ample notice to talk over problems with everyone and anyone. Real problems.
4. POLICE FORCE INCREASE: To coincide with previously discussed Gray plan with an eye toward cost to the taxpayer.
5. IMMEDIATE RELEASE: Of available highway trust fund monies to implement our Budrail system on existing R.R. Tracks.
6. I WILL FIGHT TO EQUALIZE: The City to County sales tax ratio. Reducing City burden and increasing City competitive sales.
7. WITH COMMON COUNCIL APPROVAL: Immediate directive to sell, remodel or demolish. Let's make a decision.
8. CITY OF KINGSTON AS DEVELOPER: Lease properties with investment return based on sales and property taxes . . . if handled right could be excellent source of income.
9. IMMEDIATE APPOINTMENT OF P.A. WITHIN THE PRESENT ADMINISTRATION: Adopting complete state & county bid and purchasing contract. One year of centralized buying would save more than enough to pay for a Purchasing Agent.
10. IMMEDIATE CORRECTION: Of these deplorable conditions. Enactment of sewer districts with available funding coming from the State & Federal government.
11. MULTI-CENTER: Including Police and Fire departments at site of Hurley Avenue A & P.

ATTRACT TOURISTS by implementing Pike Plan, Senate House, Historic Building, Firemanic Museum at old Wiltwyck Fire Station and Free Parking privileges to all visitors from outside our area.

MID-CITY PLAZA MALL to be designated between the railroad tracks at West Shore to extend to the rear of Broadway to O'Neil Street where 30 acres of land are vacant.

CONSOLIDATION OF SERVICES to do away with overlapping between city, county and state thus reducing taxes.

Dargis: Three-Year Budget Plan

TOWN OF ULSTER years. Kenneth Dargis, Democratic candidate for the County Legislature from Dist. 2 (Towns of Kingston and Ulster), has called for the establishment of a three-year budget plan.

Ill-Advised, Says O'Toole

RED HOOK James O'Toole, Democratic candidate for councilman in Red Hook, says the political inbreeding is as ill advised as agricultural inbreeding.

Claiming not to be a politician ("I have never actively participated in any political campaign before . . ."), he adds, "We do not really have a representative government in the Town of Red Hook."

He points out that for more than 30 years all elected offices in the town have been held by Republicans, and says that such a government becomes responsive only to the interests of the party.

"Living in a rural end and, to a large extent, agricultural community, we can all well appreciate that the effects of prolonged political inbreeding in government can be as regressive as prolonged inbreeding in the development of crops and livestock," he comments.

Dargis said the rate of growth of the county's budget is much too fast and indicates poor planning on the part of the Republican-controlled legislature.

Dargis said a well-planned three-year budget would help set up a realistic guide for the legislature and all county departments. A plan of this type would offer flexibility in curbing runaway spending by actually showing each department's projected expenditures over the three years, according to Dargis.

Dargis said an additional benefit would be that the taxpayer would have better information concerning future tax increases.

"It is my intention to establish fiscal responsibility as the number one priority of the County Legislature," Dargis concluded.

Stratton, Levitt in Levine's Corner

MONTICELLO Monticello attorney Milton Levine, Democratic candidate for Supreme Court Justice in the third judicial district, has received endorsement from two of his party's more prominent leaders, Congressman Sam Stratton and State Comptroller Arthur Levitt.

Levine's endorsement noted, "personal high regard" for Levine, and said, "I am proud that your nomination offers to the people, a man whose experience, integrity, and judicial temperament so admirably qualify him for service on this high bench."

Stratton's letter of support sent from Washington, cited Levine as having the "vision" for the job, and said, "Over the years Milton Levine has risen through positions of increasing public responsibility and trust in his own county and has won wide admiration and respect among Republicans as well as Democrats."

The race for the supreme court position originates with the state's new and more stringent drug laws. The new legislation is expected to offset the anticipated increase in case load under the new legislation which went into effect Sept. 1.

The new judge will serve primarily in a seven county area including Ulster, Sullivan, Greene, Columbia, Albany, Tennessee and Schoharie counties.

Levine, who has had some 25 years judicial and trial experience, said of the endorsement, "This is probably the most exceptional and singularly significant honor I have ever experienced. Both Sam Stratton and Arthur Levitt are men for whom I have the highest respect. Their support, Nov. 6, is a significant victory regardless of the outcome on for me."

Porsch Wrapup: All Important

KINGSTON John C. Porsch, Republican candidate for alderman in the Second Ward, wrapping up his campaign, said his concern is "to treat no problem lightly."

Porsch said he found four areas of "major concern" among the residents during his door-to-door campaign, traffic and speeding in the ward, burglaries, improper storm sewer systems and "the lack of a strong individual in the Common Council to represent the people."

Janet Yallum...Candidate on Move

A large committee working on behalf of Janet C. Yallum, Democratic candidate for the County Legislature in District Two (Town of Ulster, Town of Kingston), is winding up an active six-week campaign with final door-to-door canvassing, mailings and phoning to voters in the district.

Mrs. Yallum has visited homes throughout the 13 districts of the Town of Ulster and in the Town of Kingston where people are anxious to raise problems, and candidate is just as anxious to hear their point on an issue.

Conservative Group Supports Democrat Klein

ESOPUS endorsement to Mr. Klein," the co-chairman said. "We feel that as in 1971, when we supported the successful candidacies of Klein, Kirschner and Debrosky, the Conservative Party did the right thing, and these men are still the best choice for the people of District 6."

"Mr. Curran obtained the Conservative endorsement by what we feel was a 'backdoor' approach and was not hesitant in bringing suit against the party when an open caucus was scheduled," the continued.

"We are therefore urging the voters of the Towns of Esopus and Rosendale to cross party lines and elect the men who have proven their abilities and their conservative philosophies," they concluded.

legislators from that district to keep up pressure and make sure that action is taken. By definition, representative government means responsiveness to the needs of the district."

She said she plans on keeping hours during which she would be available to answer specific questions by phone and perhaps a regularly scheduled radio program.

A graduate of Syracuse University, she was a reporter for the Syracuse Herald-Journal and last year did public relations for Bard College. Since her election as a Democratic committeewoman in Onondaga County in 1955, she has been active in Democratic politics and has worked on many campaigns here during the last 15 years. She was a delegate to the 1972 Democratic National Convention.

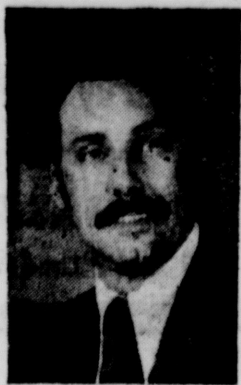

She has scored improper fiscal procedures that allow surpluses to be kept in checking accounts, rather than using them to reduce the tax load and suggested more publicizing of the Consumer Fraud Bureau's services to create a "true hot line" that will be used more widely.

Mrs. Yallum pointed out that the legislature is the funding source and therefore the ultimately responsible funding body for assuring that county agencies fulfill their functions.

"If a resident calls to complain about polluted water, an open cesspool or a mosquito-breeding swamp and gets no attention or satisfaction, it is up to the

Saugerties Voters!!!! ATTENTION!!!! Dirty Tricks in Saugerties

A bankrupt Republican party—without ideas or a program is attempting to smear Paul Miller, our candidate for town supervisor, suggesting by innuendo that he is not a true resident of Saugerties. This is a contemptible lie. They have also attempted to attach a "radical" label to the entire Saugerties Democratic Party. This is the same kind of dirty trick campaigning that many voters might have believed before Watergate. We ask you to repudiate it at the polls. Vote Democratic. Vote Paul Miller, town supervisor, Trudy Lee and Chuck Ollinger, town council, Al Ferrara, superintendent of roads, Martin Henderson, town justice, Nancy Ciaffone, town clerk, Jane Chodaba, collector of taxes. Vote Richard Thornton, Dave Menzies, Morrow Decker, and Frank Sinnott for county legislature.

Daily Freeman Endorses Koenig-Gallo Team

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, OCTOBER 31, 1973

Supporting Koenig

The mayoral election in Kingston poses but one question to the voter: Has the present administration moved fast enough in coping with the city's problems, or is it, in fact, a government manipulated by crisis?

Mayor Francis Koenig has served two terms in office, and in that time the Freeman feels he has been an able, conscientious and diligent executive who should be rewarded with a third term. The Mayor's accomplishments have been many.

Probably the greatest of which is that Urban Renewal, for all the bad jokes about it, has moved ahead in Kingston. The uptown project, which added good-sized properties to the tax rolls is nearing completion, while downtown has the new City Hall, the proposed Freeman plant, a proposed nursing home and apartment unit housing already in effect. A total of $23 million in Urban Renewal monies have been spent in Kingston, and under Koenig's stewardship has been spent well.

Another of Koenig's keystones is fiscal responsibility, and he is on solid ground here. Most everyone can propose grandiose plans but the trick is to get the money to support these programs; raising taxes is the only answer, but is that acceptable to Kingston's taxpayers? It must be kept in mind that the tax rate in this city is still as low as it was 10 years ago.

Again, not the least of Koenig's accomplishments are the signs of some movement in the Central Broadway area. The Mayor has kept his promise and has gotten municipal parking lots there to help alleviate the parking problem. The mayor is also having traffic studies conducted to ease the flow of traffic throughout the city.

There is no doubt that Kingston has moved ahead under the Koenig administration, and this incumbent should be re-elected to another term, with the hope that the city will continue to go forward.

By the same token, the Freeman urges the reelection of T. Robert Gallo as Alderman-At-Large. Gallo has been an integral part of the team and his three terms as second in command have earned him the right to serve again.

New Learning Unit at New Paltz College

An Alternative for Area Students

By WADE BURKHART

NEW PALTZ, Empire State College, the newest of the 71 units of the State University of New York, has established a learning unit in New Paltz, providing an alternative for mid-Hudson students to the traditional classroom approach to higher education.

Empire State is part of the "college without walls" movement, where students can pursue their education outside the classrooms of the traditional college classroom. In many cases testing theory against experience. It is designed for students who for any of a variety of reasons, cannot, or do not want to get their higher education in the traditional classroom way.

The learning unit now established at New Paltz, is a special experiment for Empire State. In the college's other learning centers, full-time faculty members are engaged, augmented by tutors and part-time faculty. At the New Paltz unit, an agreement has been made whereby the State University College at New Paltz faculty members will serve part-time as the faculty for Empire State, being released from their duties at New Paltz for the time required.

In addition, Empire State students will be able to use all the facilities at New Paltz. Empire State student IDs will be given the same recognition on campus as those of New Paltz students, and students at New Paltz can become visiting students at Empire State for a semester.

The director of the Empire State unit at New Paltz is Dr. Irving Barnett, who was on the New Paltz faculty before joining Empire State.

The New Paltz unit of Empire State opened Oct. 19 with 25 students, Dr. Barnett said. The number is expected to rise to "not over 80" by the end of the year, he said, with the number of students in the future not yet decided. About 1,900 students are enrolled in Empire State statewide.

Instruction at Empire State is on a one-to-one basis, according to Dr. Barnett, and each student is assigned after consultation to a faculty member, or "mentor," to work out his education contract for his area of study. In the contract, the student and the mentor agree on what is to be studied and how it is to be studied. Dr. Barnett said the contracts can be from one to six months in duration, with three months the most common.

Empire State offers both associate and bachelors degrees in arts and sciences. Before a student receives his degree from Empire State, he has fulfilled a series of contracts, Dr. Barnett said.

One of the most interesting features of the Empire State program is that a student can receive, under certain guidelines, and after full evaluation, credit for what he has learned apart from the regular college course of study. "We are interested in what you learn, rather than how you learn it," said Dr. Barnett. As students — juniors and seniors Empire State program, Dr. Barnett suggested those interested write to Empire State.

The New Paltz unit will be open 12 months a year, and will accept students on a full or half-time basis. The tuition is the same as that for undergraduate students at other state come in person to the unit at supported four-year colleges. 22 Southside Avenue in New Paltz.

Yule Clubs Up, Payoff Down

By JON POWERS

KINGSTON

For the first time in years, residents of the Ulster County area will be receiving smaller Christmas Club payoffs for the holiday season.

An inflated economy that has caused soaring prices for virtually every commodity on the market has apparently taken its toll on the year-long savings plan. The statistics portend smaller Christmas budgets and some grim-faced merchants for the Ulster County area.

According to unofficial tallies, 15 Ulster County banks will distribute $4,863,117 in Christmas Club checks on Nov. 9. That figure is more than $7,600 lower than the 1972 Christmas Club bonanza. This year's decline was the first for this area since the Christmas Club savings plan was instituted.

At the same time, however, the number of individual Christmas Club accounts increased, reaching an all-time high this year of 30,973. Last year, savings-conscious residents opened 29,063 Christmas Club accounts.

The average Christmas Club account this year totaled $157, compared to $164 last year.

The figures seem to indicate that more people than ever realized the need to save money in these economically troubled times. But they apparently just couldn't find the cash to sock away this year.

Bankers Trust Hudson Valley NA again recorded the largest Christmas Club savings plan in the Ulster County area, with 9,189 club members stashing $1,458,619 in their accounts. The average Bankers Trust account was $158. The Bankers Trust figures include 12 Mid-Hudson branches, five of which are in Ulster County.

The Bank (formerly Kingston Trust) was one of the few financial institutions to show increases in both the number of accounts and the amount of money handled. Its branches in Ulster County held 5,929 separate accounts (1,000 more than last year) and will return $1,106,780 to its customers on Nov. 9 (an increase of some $176,000). The Bank club members saved an average of $186, the highest figure in the county.

The Ulster County offices of Hudson Valley Federal Savings listed 2,137 Christmas Club accounts, which contain an estimated $250,000. The number of accounts increased over last year, but the dollar total declined. The average account was $117.

Rondout Savings Bank handled 990 Christmas Club accounts for a total of $165,000. Both figures were higher than last year (870 accounts and $152,000). The average account at Rondout Savings was $166.

Ulster Savings Bank listed 2,387 accounts, and will mail out checks next week totaling $335,074. But both the number of accounts and the dollar total declined slightly this year. The average account was $140.

Heritage Savings Bank mirrored the trend of more accounts but fewer dollars. Its 2,064 Christmas Club customers will receive $306,120 this year, about $39,000 less than last year. The average Heritage check will total $104, in figures that include its Rockland County branch.

Sawyer Savings Bank (formerly Saugerties Savings Bank) reported that 1,778 club members will receive $286,066 for this year's holiday season. Both figures were slightly higher than the 1972 totals. The average check will be $161.

The Inter-County Savings Bank in New Paltz had 491 accounts this year for an approximate total of $80,000. The average check will amount to $163.

Like most other banks, Statewide Savings and Loan Association (formerly the Savings and Loan Association of Kingston) reported that the number of accounts increased this year, but that the checks will be slimmer. Statewide had 1,252 Christmas Club members, who saved a total of $198,607. The average Statewide check will total $158.

Rondout National Bank increased slightly in both categories this year. It had 3,300 accounts (3,000 last year) and will mail out about $440,000 ($420,000 last year). The average Rondout National Christmas Clubber saved $133.

The Woodstock branch of the National Bank of Orange and Ulster Counties will send out checks this year averaging $185, one of the largest in the area. Its 145 club members will receive $26,780. Customers at the West Hurley branch will receive $19,180 for 130 accounts; $58,500 will be distributed to 348 club members at the Rosendale branch and 200 club members at the Shokan branch will receive $19,067.

In Dutchess County, the 270 Christmas Club members at the Rhinebeck Savings Bank will receive about $45,000, an average of $166. The 1,043 Christmas Club accounts at the First National Bank of Red Hook totaled $158,54, for an average of $152. At the First National Bank of Rhinebeck, 633 customers will receive $113,324, an average of $179.

All of the member banks of the Kingston Area Financial Council will mail their checks on Nov. 9.

Kingston Wallops Po'keepsie, 45-6

KINGSTON
Poughkeepsie High School made one foolish mistake here Saturday: it scored a touchdown.

Kingston High's football team had been content to let a 27-0 first quarter lead rest. That would have enabled Poughkeepsie to leave Dietz Stadium as "respectable" losers. Instead, the Pioneers blocked a punt for a TD. KHS came to life, and the Maroons blasted the lowly Bridge City eleven, 45-6, in the one-sided DCSL encounter.

The win was KHS' fifth in the league against two defeats and kept the Maroons' slim hopes of a piece of the championship alive. Kingston's long-awaited meeting with Saugerties ends the campaign next week. With Beacon losing to John Jay Saturday and Ketcham blanking Lourdes, KHS is one full game behind Ketcham. It can tie for the title if Jay beats the Indians and the Maroons can top the Sawyers.

The victory over Poughkeepsie could easily have been 90-6. After Kingston had jumped all over the Pioneers for 27 points in the first 11 minutes, Coach Tony Badalato yanked his starters to allow the visitors to save face.

Kingston's first string came back in for the third period, but the score and the layoff had cooled them off. Then Poughkeepsie's Brad Maserjian blocked Joey Primo's punt deep in KHS territory and Adrian Mitchell ran in the loose ball 22 yards for six points.

That was just the flame Kingston needed to get ignited again. The Maroons scored three touchdowns in a four-minute span of the fourth quarter and properly restored the momentum they'll need to carry over until next week's biggie.

"That was my fault," Badalato, referring to KHS' flatness after the fast start, said in the happy locker room afterwards. "We had them 27-0 in the first half and we had kind of an informal atmosphere at halftime. But they really exploded after the blocked punt, didn't they?"

That they did and the most explosive of the squad was hard running halfback Lyle Schuler, who scored three touchdowns, the second on a spectacular 42-yard run from scrimmage which upped the count to 33-6. The 5-foot-11 inch, 165 pound senior, earlier scored from the one, and later made it in from the two.

KHS also got solid defensive work from linebackers Billy Chaffin and Chris Zanos, each of whom ran back interceptions for scores, and some fine running from seniors Steve Engelhardt and Rich Elmendorf, who also scored a TD apiece.

The game figured to be a rout and it didn't take long for it to take on those dimensions as Zanos, on the very first play of the fray, picked off Zino Patora's pass and raced 46 yards for a touchdown. Brian Shellgater booted the extra point.

Poughkeepsie couldn't move the ball on its first full series, so KHS took over on its own 31. In six plays the Maroons had another touchdown as they stuck to the ground, got 15 yards at one clip from Schuler, then carries of 23, eight, and finally ten yards from Elmendorf for the TD.

Elmendorf had missed much of the season with a broken collarbone, but it looked like he'd never been away as he found the holes and ran with authority.

Shellgater missed the kick after the second score leaving it 13-0 with 7:16 left in the first quarter.

A Poughkeepsie punt which actually lost yardage set Kingston up several minutes later. Mitchell's kick from the around the PHS seven went almost straight up and bounced back to where Kingston recovered it on the five. Three plays later Schuler plunged in for the score. A pass from Raymond Gay to Engelhardt made it 21-0.

Poughkeepsie promptly fumbled John Dawson's kickoff and Dale Cook recovered on the six for the Maroons. Engelhardt carried three times in a row for Kingston's fourth touchdown of the game.

That was all KHS was to get until the fourth quarter as Badalato sent his reserves in and they never seriously threatened the rest of the half. Nor did the starters do much after intermission until the blocked punt.

After Schuler's 42-yard jaunt offset Poughkeepsie's touchdown, Gay put Kingston into position again when he intercepted a pass by Tom Catanzaro on the Pioneer 35 and nearly went all the way before finally being tackled on the two. Schuler then took an Alan Greenspan pitchout for his third six-pointer.

No sooner had Poughkeepsie taken Dawson's kickoff than did Kingston have another score. This time, with the Pioneers using a shotgun offense, Ivory Wright's pass was intercepted by Chaffin, and as has been his habit this season, he ran it back to paydirt 49 yards.

Kingston nearly scored once more, but time ran out as Gay passed to Dawson just short of the goal line.

That KHS dominated Poughkeepsie was certainly no surprise. That it was able to keep its minds on Poughkeepsie and not think about Saugerties until after the game was to its credit. But as soon as the game ended thoughts did switch to Saugerties.

Ellenville Rips RVC, 27-0

By TIM SCHUSTER

STONE RIDGE
The Ellenville High School Blue Devils cemented their grasp on a piece of first place in the UCL Saturday with a decisive 27-0 defeat of homestanding Rondout Valley.

The versatile Southern Ulster club will tangle with Red Hook next week in what promises to be a stern test for both teams.

Running Rondout ragged with a wide offensive punch that included end sweeps, effective screen passes, pitchouts, and the stellar running of Keith Trappnell, Ellenville scored one touchdown in each period and retained overall control of the game.

Trappnell was hard to stop. He totaled 114 yards rushing and, together with the hard-nosed running style exhibited by wingback Steve Tennenbaum, gave the Ellies the opportunity to play the ball control game that it did.

Rondout found difficulty in coordinating its blocking game, and was able to net only nine yards rushing, with quarterback Mike Meehan unable to connect with any receivers in four attempts.

Ellenville scored on its first series of downs, plunging into the strong wind to culminate a 65-yard drive. Trappnell went 20 yards on a pitchout to the Rondout 35; quarterback Mike Hayden kept to the 25; and Tennenbaum raced to the three, breaking tackles. Hayden kept up the middle for the first score, and Joe Grable's conversion kick was good.

The Blue Devils began their second quarter drive when Rick Ellison captured a loose Rondout fumble on the RVC 30. Tennenbaum did some fancy broken field running to the four, and then took a pitchout around left end for the TD. Grable's kick was wide, giving the defending UCAL champs a 13-0 halftime lead.

Ellenville used up almost the entire third quarter in marching from its own ten yard line to score in a drive that included six first downs, five of them earned.

Trappnell and Tennenbaum shared carrying duties to about midfield, along with a face mask penalty, and a screen pass to Trappnell was good to the Rondout 34. On that play he almost went all the way, but stepped out of bounds while stepping along the sideline.

A first down pass to fullback Stan Foo to the 20, and a screen pass to Foo to the two set up the touchdown, as Hayden hit Ron Storms with a quickie pass over the middle to score. Grable's kick was wide once again.

A fumble recovery by Tony DelGaizzo gave the Ellies their fourth scoring opportunity on the Rondout 25. On the ensuing play, Trappnell was sprung loose at the line of scrimmage and bulled his way into the end zone, breaking a tackle at the five. After being set back five yards on the conversion attempt, Hayden passed to Mark

Eck for the two-point play and the conclusion of scoring in the fourth period.

Wallkill Keeps Pace, 33-0

WALLKILL

Five different players scored as Wallkill High overcame first-half sluggishness to beat Liberty High, 33-0, here Saturday in a UCL football game. The victory gave the Panthers a 7-1 record and a share of first place with Ellenville High going into next week's final game.

Rich Earl scored the first Wallkill touchdown on the first series of the second quarter, going over from one yard out after the Panthers had started from their own 22 yard line 14 plays earlier. No passes were thrown in that series as quarterback Tom Berryann utilized six different runners to move the ball. Earl's touchdown was the only scoring in an otherwise slow first half for both teams.

But it was in the second half that Wallkill took over complete control of the game, scoring four of the five times it had the ball, and holding Liberty to just 27 yards total offense. The Indians advanced as far as the Wallkill 38 yard line just twice during the entire game, and got no further.

Late in third quarter, after the Panthers had taken over on the Indians 40 yard line, Berryann completed a 20 yard pass to Jeff Koonz. Earl ran twice for 17 yards, then Felix Feliciano scored from one yard out. Brian Wicks' kick made it 13-0.

The Panthers defense stiffened up, giving up just five yards in Liberty's next series, and Ted Doski returned the Indian punt 25 yards to the Liberty 29 yard line. On third down, Berryann threw a perfect 30 yard scoring strike to Koonz, and again Wicks' kick was good.

When Liberty's punter fumbled the snap on the succeeding series, he was tackled at his own 7 yard line. Larry Prisco ran in for the score on the Panthers first down, and Wallkill led 26-0.

Late in the fourth quarter, on first and ten from the Panthers' 26 yard line, Berryann again went to Earl, who responded with a big 37 yard gain to the Indians 37 yard line. It took eight more plays, including Earl's 15 yard run from the 25 to the 10 yard line, before Berryann scored from 2 yards out. Wicks kicked his third successful extra point of the day, and the final score was set at 33-0.

Wallkill coach Jerry Trezza explained about the difference in performance between the two halves. "We reminded our players at halftime what they were playing for. We woke up in the second half, and our defense set up two of our touchdowns. I think we took Liberty too lightly in the first half."

Trezza was proud of his quarterback Berryann, saying "he ran the triple option well, and that was a great pass to Koonz." He also cited halfback Earl, who gained 115 yards on 18 carries.

Next week Wallkill visits New Paltz while Liberty won't be too far away at Highland in the UCL's final Saturday. Liberty is now 1-6-1.

THE FIGHT—This fight between Pete Rose (T) of the Reds and Mets Bud Harrelson during the third game of the National League playoffs last month cost each of them a $250 fine imposed by National League president Chub Feeney. (UPI)

Bud, Rose Fined $250

NEW YORK (UPI)—Pete Rose of the Cincinnati Reds and Bud Harrelson of the New York Mets have been fined $250 each by National League president Chub Feeney for their brief fistfight last month that nearly touched off a riot during the third game of the National League playoffs, it was learned today by United Press International.

The fiery Rose barreled into Harrelson at second base in an effort to break up a double play in the fifth inning of the game just couldn't believe it," said at Shea Stadium on Oct. 8. The two wrestled to the ground and Cincinnati. "That was almost a fight broke out between relief pitchers Pedro Borbon of the Reds and Buzz Capra of the Mets. It was a full 15 minutes before order was restored and when Rose went out to play left field the fans began throwing debris from the stands. When a whiskey bottle whisked by Rose's head he walked off the field along with the other Reds.

Harrelson, contacted at his New York home, admitted that he had received a similar letter from Feeney.

"Yes I received a letter too. The fine was for the same amount—$250. I was surprised it didn't come sooner. I guess they were waiting until I got my World Series check. I don't know if any other guys were fined and it really isn't any of my business."

Harrelson, who was in Kingston Thursday at Mammoth Mall's grand opening celebration, told the Freeman in an exclusive interview that he got into the fight with Rose to, as he put it, "stand up for his rights." He complained that many National League baserunners had run into him at second base and that he couldn't allow it to happen any more without retaliation.

Rose said he understood that Borbon was fined $150 for his part in the brawl.

Rose said his letter read: "I want to compliment you for the great job you did for the Reds in the playoffs as well as during the season. I admire your courage for the way you played after the incident Oct. 8. Unfortunately, we must fine you $250 for your part in the fight in that game. The fine must be paid by personal check before the first exhibition game next spring."

"My best personal regards and hope you have a good winter," Harrelson admitted that his letter also complimented him for a great season.

"When I read it I laughed," said Harrelson. "But the man has a job to do."

Rose was bitter about the whole thing.

Ohio State Survives Scare, 30-0

By United Press International

No. 1 Ohio State had the scare, but it was previously unbeaten Tulane that suffered the frightful experience.

Ohio State was held to a 3-0 halftime lead by Illinois and for a time Saturday it appeared that Blair Conway's 25-yard field goal was all the action the Buckeyes would get in their clash with the stubborn Illini.

An Archie Griffin one-yard scoring run in the third period and two touchdowns from within the 10-yard line by quarterback Cornelius Greene in the fourth quarter ended Illinois' dream of remaining unbeaten in Big Ten Conference play as the Buckeyes posted a 30-0 victory.

Ohio State and fourth-ranked Michigan are tied for the lead at 5-0 and Illinois is 4-1 in the run for the Rose Bowl.

Tulane, riding the wave of a six-game winning string, was surprised by Kentucky, 34-7, marking the first time the Wildcats have won four games in a season since 1966. Three

Red Hook Bombs Marlboro, 31-6

MARLBORO as the Raiders moved alone into third place at 6-2.

"We got exceptionally good blocking from our offensive line," said winning coach John Nielson. "They deserve a lot of credit."

Red Hook, landlocked much of this season, broke loose for 300 yards of rushing. Junior running back Jim Merriken churned up 137 of them and scored three times, and fullback Foster Dunn added the last TD and ran over 100 yards as well.

It took a quarter before the Raiders got things going as the Dukes opened the game aggressively. Marlboro marched the ball deep into Red Hook territory, getting as far as the four yard line without success. Merriken started the tide swinging the other way in the second period, racing 55 yards to score the game's first points. Ed McManus' kick failed, but he made up for it with a two-point conversion run after Merriken scored the second time from 14 yards out.

A ten-yard burst by Merriken and another McManus PAT run gave Red Hook a 22-point lead in the third period before Marlboro spoiled the shutout. Jim Pagano grabbed Manny Loperogolo's screen pass and ran 65 yards for Marlboro, but the Raiders made it meaningless with nine more points in the last period. They came on Dunn's five-yard slam, an extra point kick by McManus, and an end zone sack by Loperogolo by Pete Hamiwka worth two points.

The windy conditions and the success of the ground game kept the Raiders away from the pass. The Dukes had little choice in that matter and attempted 16 passes, but only three were completed.

Crenshaw Holds Lead

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — Rookie Ben Crenshaw, fired up by a large gallery and the thought of winning his first tournament as a PGA Tour regular, Saturday broke open a four-way tie for first place and regained the undisputed lead in the $125,000 Texas Open golf tournament.

Crenshaw, battling veterans George Archer and Orville Moody during Saturday's third round, tied for the best round of the day—a five-under-66—for a 54-hole total of 10-under-203.

Archer, of Amana, Iowa, shot four-under-par 67 Saturday to wind up at 204. Moody, of Lago Vista, Tex., also posted a 67 for a 205 and third place.

Fred Marti of Baytown, Tex., who hit a hole-in-one on the 185th yard, par-3 12th hole, was deadlocked at 208 with Bob Erickson, Steve Melnyk, Bruce Fleischer and defending champion Mike Hill.

Bob Greenwood, who had been tied with Crenshaw, Archer and Hill for the lead entering Saturday's play, slumped to a 73 and wound up at three-under-par 210 over the 6,990-yard, par-71 Woodlake Golf Club course.

Crenshaw, a three-time collegiate champion at the University of Texas playing his first tournament since receiving his PGA card, said he appreciated the large gallery.

"It (the crowd) fires me up to play good," he said. "I hope they come out tomorrow."

Tom Kite, a teammate of Crenshaw's at Texas, tied Crenshaw for the day's low round of 66. Kite wound up in a four-way deadlocked at 210.

"George Archer is going to be awful tough and so is Orville Moody," the blond, 21-year-old Crenshaw said after firing his second bogey-free round in the tournament. He shot a six-under-65 on opening day, then fell into the four-way tie Friday with a one-over-par 72.

Crenshaw hit five birdies, the longest dropping in from 45 feet. He also hit birdie putts of 15 feet, eight feet, eight feet and 15 feet.

Crenshaw and Moody will be playing together today, and the youngster said he thought this would help his game.

"When I'm playing with somebody that's playing good, it makes me play better," he said.

Both Archer and Moody complimented Crenshaw's play. "I played with Crenshaw in 1968," Archer said. "He should have turned pro then. I didn't know he was only 16. He's a very impressive young player."

Moody said his game was improving for the first time in weeks on the tour.

"I hadn't hit the ball solid, but this week and last week I started hitting it solid again," he said.

Trevino, Colbert Tied
 SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Flamingo Lee Trevino, buoyed by an eagle at the third hole, fashioned a four-under-par 69 Saturday and tied fellow American Jim Colbert for the lead after three rounds of a $74,500 international golf tournament.

Top money winner Kathy Whitworth, the first-round leader, turned in a "miserable" 75 to drop back to a fourth place tie with Kathy Cornelius at one-under-par-143.

Bob Greenwood, who had been tied with Crenshaw, Archer and Hill for the lead entering Saturday's play, slumped to a 73 and wound up at three-under-par 210 over the 6,990-yard, par-71 Woodlake Golf Club course.

Netts Beaten By Kentucky

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — Clutch performances by Dan Issel and Louie Dampier carried the league-leading Kentucky Colonels to a 93-87 victory over New York Saturday night and tagged the Nets with their sixth straight defeat in the ABA.

Issel, who paced the Colonels with 29 points, sank a free throw to break an 85-85 tie with 3:02 left. Then Dampier hit a jump shot from the key to raise the Colonels' lead to 88-85.

With 19 seconds to play, Issel slammed home a stuff shot after taking a length-of-the-court pass from Dampier to give the Colonels an insurmountable 92-87 margin.

John Roche, who scored 41 points against the Colonels Friday night, came back to tally 29 Saturday night and spark a third quarter rally that wiped out a 12-point Kentucky lead. Bill Paulitz added 24 points for the Nets.

But Roche missed a three-point field goal attempt that could have tied the game at 90-90 with 28 seconds remaining. The Colonels again held Julius Erving, the league's leading scorer, well under his season average. He wound up with 19 points, but made only seven of 24 shots from the field.

Capital, 112-84
PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Elvin Hayes, Phil Chenier and Kevin Porter combined for 85 points Saturday to lead the Capital Bullets to a 112-84 victory over the Philadelphia 76ers in a nationally-televised National Basketball Association game.

Hayes tossed in 34 points, Chenier added 26 and Porter 25 as the Bullets won their third straight and raised their season record to 4-5.

Tom Van Arsdale had 17 points and Fred Carter 14 for Philadelphia, which has now lost four straight for a 2-8 record.

The Bullets led only 25-24 at the end of the first quarter but stretched their lead to 49-38 at halftime.

Ketcham Takes Title

PEEKSKILL Favored Ketcham High School, the reigning DCSL champion, captured the Class A honors at the Section One cross-country meet at the Blue Mt. Reservation here Saturday.

John Jay's Dave Nemazee scored an individual victory in 12:18, but the powerful Indian squad piled up 74 points to win the team title.

Fifty-three schools and 770 runners competed in three classes with the B winner John F. Kennedy of Somers posting the best score of the day, 29, to take that division's title. Irvington topped the Class C schools with 52 points.

Individually, Ken Murphy of North Salem nipped his teammate George Vogel at the wire with the day's best time. Murphy posted 12:04 and Vogel clocked 12:05, both Class C records. Chuck Holmes of Byram Hills was first in Class B with a time of 12:17.6.

The winning times were well off the course record of 12:00.6

set last year by Kingston's John Cabell.

Kingston was well off the pace in the varsity run. The Maroons were led by Jay Rogers who finished 64th and Chuck Lewis who placed 66th. Other Kingston finishes were Mark Davis in 89th, Joe Olander 97th, Larry Devine 119th, Howard Liverance 120th and Greg Rafferty 125th.

The Kingston JV's were 14th in a field of 17 schools as only one junior varsity race was run. Dave Trast placed 46th to lead the Maroons.

It was Coleman's first league defeat after nine wins. The Statesmen had been defeated by Kingston in a non-leaguer.

Taylor Takes Bantam Crown

JOHANNESBURG (UPI) — South African Arnold Taylor, surviving four knockdowns, exploded a right cross to the jaw of champion Romeo Anya of Mexico Saturday night to score a 13th round knockout and win the world bantamweight title.

Taylor, the South African bantam and featherweight champion, delighted 20,000 fans at Rand Stadium with a remarkable comeback after being decked three times in the eighth round and once in the 10th by the rugged Anya.

The Mexican was always on the attack although a looping right from Taylor floored him in the fifth.

Badalato is right . . . it should be one whale of a football game.

"It should be quite a football game," Badalato smiled. He, for one, remembers last year's meeting when the Sawyers surprised the Maroons at Dietz. He's been looking forward to this year's rematch ever since.

And Saugerties is looking forward to it as well. Coach

Fred Seither and many of his troops were here to watch KHS against Poughkeepsie and while the Sawyers don't have a shot at the title yet, they do have a chance to beat Kingston and that's more than enough to get them motivated.

Ulster Booters Back on the Right Track

By STEVE KANE

NEW PALTZ

Byron Cordero and Mario Oliva, the two hottest shooters in Region XV, combined their kicking talents Saturday to lead Ulster County Community College to a 3-1 soccer victory over a determined Bronx CC squad on the wind-swept field at the State University campus here.

Cordero, a sure-fire All American, scored twice on assists from Oliva. In between, Oliva rammed home a shot with a little help from Mario Isaac. The win completed the Senators' regular season record at 12-1 and bumped Bronx out of consideration for a post-season tournament bid.

Ulster, the nation's top-ranked junior college team, has played better games, and it has played against better teams, but neither factor deterred the elation of UCCC coach George Vizvary. He was pleased with the final result, and he was pleased with his team's psychological rebound from Thursday's loss to Staten Island.

Bronx needed a win to finish over .500, and it started out aggressively. Ulster, reacting sluggishly at first, failed to sustain any sort of organized attack, but halfback Peter Kohlisch led a Senator defense that proved tough to penetrate.

Maurice Willacy finally pried the ball loose and flipped it to Kohlisch who drilled a long lead pass to Oliva breaking down the left side. Oliva rolled it into the center where the goal-hungry Cordero deflected it into the net.

That shot, at 14:45, seemed to get the Senator adrenalin flowing a little bit, and only three minutes later Ulster hit again on the fast break. This time Kohlisch started the play, and Isaac moved up quickly to lift a long lead pass down the center of the field. Oliva out-raced two defenders to the ball and bounced a shot off the goalie's legs, but the freshman streak kept right on running and boomed the rebound solidly home.

Ulster played noticeably better after that but without a score for the remainder of the half. Marc Charpentier, the Ulster goalie, and his Bronx counterpart Charles Meehan each turned in a couple of fine saves to keep the halftime score 2-0.

Cordero's second score came off Oliva's corner kick 20:15 into the second half. It was a demonstration of the law of averages. Ulster had seven kicks in the game, all of which were well executed by the Senators. A couple hit the crossbar and a couple missed just slightly, but on this particular play Cordero timed the wind-blown descent perfectly and headed the shot into the net.

The Bronx goal, only the ninth of the season allowed by Charpentier, was a miniature lesson in the evils of relaxation. It came at 22:50, and even Vizvary didn't see it happen—he was joking with one of the officials. Bronx simply took the kickoff, moved the ball downfield, and Carl Babb kicked it in.

If from time to time, however, the Senators do need to be reminded of their fallibility, they don't have to be told more than once. Ulster stiffened enough to blank Bronx the rest of the way, denying the losers even half-decent attempts at scoring while bombarding Meehan with an attack that could easily have inflated the final result.

Bronx finished the year with a 4-5-2 record, a result that disappointed coach Gus Constantine, but he didn't feel too badly about Saturday's outcome. "We played just about our best today," he said. "We had a couple of chances, but . . ." He shrugged almost fatalistically at the departing Ulster players.

"Three more—we need three more," Vizvary said to his squad, then he turned to consider ultimate effect that one and only defeat had caused. "It was the best thing that could have happened to us," he said.

Ulster, which will begin Region XV tournament play on Tuesday at a site and against an opponent to be announced, led Bronx in shots-on-goal, 25-19, corner kicks, 7-5 and saves, 13-6.

New Paltz Evens Record With 28-0 Win

BOICEVILLE

"It was our best game of the season," said Coach John Ford after watching his New Paltz High Huguenots overpower Onteora High, 28-0, here Saturday to balance their Ulster County Athletic League record at four wins and four losses.

With Pete Savago continuing his brilliant running with three touchdowns and 108 yards in 20 carries, New Paltz combined a sturdy defense and simple, power plays to hand the Boiceville Indians their seventh defeat in eight starts.

New Paltz outgained Onteora

in total yardage 311 to 110, with the infantry picking up 262 of the total. Onteora gained 110, split evenly between 55 yards rushing and 55 passing.

A short punt and recovered fumble set up New Paltz's first two scores. Onteora's first punt carried to the Huguenots' 45 yard line, Savago carried the ball seven times, going from the 3 for the first touchdown. Quarterback Pete Sciascia contributed a 28-yard keeper during the drive. Savago rushed over to make the score 8-0.

A fumble recovery by Gardner got New Paltz back in business late in the second quarter on the OCS 49. Dave Haight, who later raced 44 yards for a New Paltz TD, picked up two. Savago then uncorked a beautiful 47 yard run for his second score. Taking the right sideline, then cackwalked the final 30 yards without a hand touching him.

Two long gainers accounted for the Huguenots' final scores. Savago returned a punt 47 yards, again without a hand touching him, and Haight went the last 44 yards of an 80-yard drive that required only seven plays.

Its running game stalled by the stout New Paltz defense, Onteora relied heavily on Jim Van Steenburgh's passing arm but the courageous quarterback, who takes a fearful beating week after week, was able to complete seven of 23 passes for 55 yards.

Onteora coach Joe DiGiovanni felt his Indians had a good chance to win before game time. "We're in pretty shape physically," he said, "and I think we have our pass defense straightened out."

It turned out to be a day that a pass defense was needed, as New Paltz proved there is still room for the foot in football.

SIDEBARS: Two minor flare-ups in the fourth quarter marred an otherwise clean game. The game total of 18 yards went against New Paltz—a 15 yarder for holding and half the distance to the goal for three yards . . . Savago, who has a tremendous second effort, was used sparingly in the second half.

Highland Loses Again Bushmen Score, 16-0

PINE BUSH

Pine Bush High's defensive unit played up to the standards of its offense Saturday, and the result was a 16-0 victory over Highland at the Bushmen gridiron that left the teams tied for fourth place in the UCL with 5-3 records.

"I was a little surprised to win," said coach John Shaughnessy, "even though we went into the game with the idea we could. But I know like a lot of other coaching staffs we point to this game more than any other. That's because you know Lem Atkins is going to have a good team on the field against you, and if you don't play well you get annihilated. I was frankly surprised Highland didn't score."

Neither team in fact managed to score offensively until the winners sustained a 57 yard drive in the final period, but the Bushmen ended the first quarter with a nine-point lead. That was because defensive end Doug Youngblood pulled the ball away from Highland's Henry Jackson and ran 40 yards for a touchdown, and because a bad snap from the Big Blue's center sailed over the punter and out of the end zone for a safety.

But for those plays the teams slugged it out evenly for three quarters. Pine Bush, a good defensive team in the past but erratic this year, kept the upper hand thanks to a tough 6-3 setup and three intercepted passes by Tom Engels.

Conscious of Highland's field goal potential, a factor that made a nine-point lead insecure, Youngblood, Paul and Guy Shumanski and Tom Couser, led a stiff resistance that held the losers to a total of 127 yards. The pressure finally came off the Bushmen in the fourth period when Highland ran out of downs on the Pine Bush 42, and the winners took over to march to a clinching score.

Engels, running the team, completed a 23-yard pass to George Del Vecchio to keep the Bushmen moving. Fullback Al Miranda then drove 16 yards in two carries to set up a one-

Sportsmen, TU Unite

KINGSTON

Representatives of the Federation of the Federated Sportsmen's Club of Ulster County and the Catskill Mountain Chapter of Trout Unlimited have announced formation of a coalition of sports groups and environmentalists to deal with problems affecting the Esopus Creek trout fishery.

"The problems affecting the Esopus must be resolved quickly as possible," said Francis M. Zaborowski, president of Trout Unlimited. "The time to act is now. Local groups should set aside their differences and band together to resolve common concerns."

These sentiments were echoed by Frederick C. Faerber III, Federation president, who said, "I think it's time to bury the hatchet and work together. The more people we can get in-olved, the better our chances of ultimate success." Zaborowski noted that "there is a great deal of interest locally in this matter and there are conservation and sportsmen groups outside the area that have expressed interest in preserving the Esopus. Trout Unlimited has been attempting to resolve the issue of the portal for many years and to date our efforts have only resulted in frustration. The problem can only be resolved by showing a unified front by all parties who wish to see the Esopus saved." The ecosystem of the Esopus currently is being stressed by many factors. The most critical is the influence on the stream from the flow of water through the portal from the Gilboa Reservoir. The silt-laden waters of the reservoir have a detrimental effect on the indigenous aquatic life in the stream. The drastic changes in flow rates on the Esopus pose a threat to trout and also any fisherman who might find himself in the stream when the flow is increased to maximum proportions.

The Esopus Creek is the most popular trout stream in Ulster County. It has long been recognized in the trout fishing fraternity as one of the principal trout streams in the northeast, annually attracting thousands of fishermen to its banks.

The new coalition feels that the Esopus is both an economic and recreational asset to Ulster County and must be preserved because, once lost, it can never be replaced. A formal meeting will be announced within the next couple weeks to allow individuals and groups the opportunity to become involved in this project.

Coleman CC Champs

BEAR MOUNTAIN

Coleman High School's fantastic fall continued here Friday when the Statesmen, led by Jim Rioux, captured the Section Nine Class C-D cross country championship.

The Statesmen edged UCL rival Red Hook by one point, 57-58, as Rioux came up with his second straight superior effort to make up for a disappointing tenth place finish by senior teammate Kevin Post.

Ed Ackery of Tri-Valley was medalist with a 13:37 clocking. Rioux took second at 13:45, just two seconds better than Mark Hook's young star Mark Gravino. Had Gravino been able to get in ahead of Rioux, the Raiders would have had the points necessary to be crowned champs.

Jim Erceg of Marlboro was fourth. Coleman's Tom Nee took an eighth place and Eric Schroeter of the Statesmen was 13th.

Livingston Manor was third in the team results with 94 points. Burke had 105 for fourth place and Tri-Valley was fifth with 127. Marlboro was sixth, Highland eighth, Fallsburgh ninth, and Ellenville tenth.

Suffern High took Class A honors by eight points over Valley Central. Mike Hagon of the winners was first.

In the Class B race, Albertus Magnus was first by a 45-67 margin over Nanuet. Washingtonville took third and its top runner Paul Colella was first in 13:06.

Pine Bush was fourth, Onteora sixth, New Paltz ninth, Rondout tenth, and Walkkill 11th of the UCL schools in that class. Lorenzo Simmons of NP finished fourth.

The Coleman team along with Suffern, Magnus, and the top runners in each division will go to Binghamton Saturday for the State championships.

Maroon Booters Ousted From Section One Tourney

FREEDOM PLAINS

Kingston High School was eliminated from the Section One soccer tournament here Saturday when White Plains blanked the Maroons, 2-0, but Coach John Hunter, thought disappointed with the defeat, had nothing but kind words for his team.

"They were a very fine team," Hunter said of White Plains, "but it was an even game. Vinnie DeLuca, our goalie, did a fine job when they penetrated, and we had some good opportunities, but we just couldn't capitalize. There were times when we appeared to be headed for a goal and one of their players would just get a foot out in time."

White Plains scored midway through the second period on a goal mouth scramble with Carlos Cardenez finally batting it in through a crowd. The game remained 1-0 until the fourth quarter when a White Plains booter banged in a rebound of a wretched shot which floated in off the top cross bar and bounded in front.

The Plainsmen's Norris McKay, a six-foot-three-inch bull, impressed Hunter as the best opponent Kingston had faced this season, but McKay was kept off the scoreboard by a strong Maroons defensive effort.

"John Ivankovic and Sonny Roncancio were outstanding on the line," Hunter remarked. "Jay Werbalowsky, Eric Greenwald, Mike Helmich, and John Oberlander were very good on defense. And Steve Kantor and Bobby Graves played very well as our linksmen."

Kingston finished up the season with a 10-4-3 mark. The Maroons were 9-3-3, placing third in the DCSL. They beat Coleman in a non-leaguer, then lost Saturday's solo sectional contest.

Bailey Repeats As Grid Champs

KINGSTON

The J. Watson Bailey football team won its third straight city junior high championship Friday and extended its winning streak to five games with an 18-0 victory over Miller.

After a sloppy first quarter, Joel Etter ran 10 yards for a touchdown, and Tom Brown took a 50-yard scoring pass from Bruce Schnakenburg to give Bailey a 12-0 halftime advantage. That was all it took, but Schnakenburg went 40 yards in the third quarter for another Bailey score as Miller became the winners' fourth victim by linksmen.

Cortland Tops Hawks, 5-0

NEW PALTZ

New Paltz State's soccer season mercifully ended here Saturday when Cortland State pinned the Hawks with their ninth consecutive defeat, 5-0.

Coach Bob Durkin's club, which suffered shutouts the last four times out, held tough Cortland even for much of the first half, but then a fluke goal with six minutes left put the upstaters ahead, and another with two seconds to go broke the Hawks' backs.

Cortland outshot New Paltz, 26-3. The Mules took six corner kicks to the Hawks two. Cortland's goalie made two stops. Steve Kruasz made 10 saves for NP.

New Paltz ended its worst season in years with a 3-9-1 record.

Atlanta-Rams Game Key to Western Division Race

BY JOE CARNICELLI
UPI Sports Writer

The Atlanta Falcons learn Sunday whether there will be a race this season in the National Football Conference Western Division.

The Falcons picked up an important game on first-place Los Angeles last week when they defeated the San Francisco 49ers 17-3 while the Rams were being knocked from the unbeaten list by the Minnesota Vikings 10-9.

The victory left the Falcons at 4-3, two games behind the quarter back and turned in for almost three quarters. Then performance this week if behind the Steelers. The fatten his rushing total against Browns, beset with injury a Saints team that pulled off problems at running back, must one of the major upsets of the crack a Viking defense that season by beating Washington held the Rams to only 157 yards last week. Simpson has 1,025 yards in seven games and is O. J. Simpson, the first runner ahead of Jim Brown's pace in NFL history to gain 1,000 when he set a season record of yards in seven games, tries to 1,863 yards.

Last time we outplayed them

First $500,000 Golf Tourney

PINEHURST, N.C. (UPI) — For the first—and, possibly, the last—time, a monstrous purse of $500,000 will be waiting on the far side of the rainbow to be distributed for a single golf tournament.

An international field of 240 will take part in the World Open, which gets underway on Thursday, but it is the absence of just three names that can doom this spectacular to instant extinction.

Jack Nicklaus, Lee Trevino and Tom Weiskopf, three of the magnetic names of golf, all declined to enter the tournament, despite its first prize of $100,000, and this led to some serious repercussions. First, the organizers had a lot of trouble selling tickets to the event, and then they lost their television commitment when the national sponsors withdrew because of lack of interest.

As a result, Bill Maurer, president of the sponsoring Diamondhead Corporation, has indicated that he wouldn't mind being excused from his contract to stage another World Open next year, although he is prepared to honor it. He also added that his experience would certainly act as a deterrent to anyone else with an idea of offering a half million dollar purse in the future.

Since the conception of the World Open was to eventually establish it as a true world championship, its format is unique. Along with the purse, which is $200,000 more than the previous high offered in the ill-fated Dow Jones which died after only one try in 1970, the tournament differs from the normal format in that it consists of eight rounds stretching over two weeks.

The first four rounds will run from Thursday to Sunday, with no cut in field during that stage. The low 70 and ties then will duel another four rounds from Wednesday to Saturday, Nov. 14-17. The scores will be cumulative for the eight rounds, and if a tie exists after the final round an 18-hole playoff will be held on Sunday, Nov. 18.

Two courses, Pinehurst's No. 2 and No. 4, will be used for the first four rounds and the final four will be played exclusively on No. 2. All 240 players will receive a check, with those being eliminated in the first cut collecting $500.

Although much ado has been made about the missing stars, the World Open still has attracted an exciting group of players, including Arnold Palmer, U.S. Open champion Johnny Miller, Bruce Crampton, the second leading money winner on this year's tour with almost $300,000, Gary Player, Billy Casper, Gene Littler, Lanny Wadkins, Bert Yancey, Jerry Heard, Chi Chi Rodriguez, Gay Brewer, Grier Jones and Lou Graham.

The Rams won the first meeting 31-0 with Dick Shiner unable to move the Falcons offensively. Shiner, who opened the season at quarterback for Atlanta, is long gone now.

"They like to talk about their defense," Lee added, "but ours hasn't exactly been standing around the last month. We've won three in a row now and we're back in the race. But our backs are still to the wall unless we can beat Los Angeles."

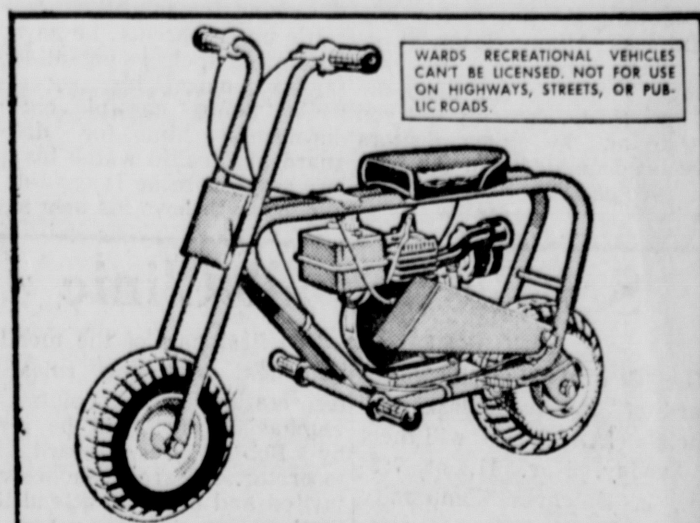

Minnesota needed a superb defensive effort to shut down struggling to keep pace with Pittsburgh in the AFC Central week, limiting them to only three field goals. The Falcons by a tie with San Diego last will need the same kind of week to fall a game and a half

Course in Fly Casting

A credit-free course in fly casting, being offered by Ulster County Community College, has been re-scheduled for later this fall due to a room conflict.

The course will meet from 7 to 8:30 p.m. on Thursday, Nov. 29; Friday, Dec. 7; and Thursday, Dec. 31, on the Stone Ridge campus.

The course to be taught by Jim Cummins, is intended to get the beginner off to a good start and to help the more experienced fly caster to work out the kinks and develop special casts. Theory and equipment will be discussed and video tape instant replays will be available for use as a learning aid.

Registration will remain open until the first class meeting. Further information about the course can be obtained by calling the Office for Continuing Education at the College (687-7621, Ext. 11 or 12).

Pre-Game Evaluation Key to Football Injuries

By JACK WILKINSON
ATLANTA (UPI)—As more than one million high school boys again storm through that frantic world of fly patterns and goal line stands, an Atlanta doctor with a unique practice steps up a campaign to correct what he considers a glaring weakness in American sports. Statistics show that perhaps half the boys playing football this autumn will be hurt. Some inevitably will die. But many of the injuries, says Dr. Fred Allman, a former University of Georgia guard who operates the nation's only sports medicine clinic, could be avoided. The real shortcoming, he says, is what happens before the athlete ever suits up. Allman is busily spreading the word that too many youngsters are injured simply because they are not ready for the competition into which they are thrust. And, of course, he's not drawing the line at football. The way Allman looks at it, the "physical" is just not enough. It merely scratches the surface. He will quickly tell you that he and his fellow doctors have been negligent in the past in "pre-participation evaluation."

Allman, a stocky man in his mid-40s who doubles as an orthopedic surgeon and consultant to the Georgia Tech football team, has been spanning the nation talking with parents, coaches, school officials, players and others about how the hazard of contact sports can be lessened. He is out to convince trainers and coaches of the need to be more aware of their charges, to spot telltale danger signs and be ready to act in case of an emergency. More importantly, he wants to convince parents that they, better than anyone, can give sports medicine the shot in the arm it needs—as well as making the sports arena safer for all concerned—by insisting on proper evaluation while fostering the kind of atmosphere that mentally prepares the youngster as well. It's up to parents, he says, to encourage their young athlete's talents, cheer his successes while being careful not to downgrade him for defeat, guard his health, watch his diet and make sure he is capable of playing with boys his own age.

For fellow doctors, Allman says, "We have to become much more sophisticated about our evaluation." As for the athlete, he should be given plenty of opportunity to run, walk, swim, go cycling, take part in weight training "at an early age." There should be plenty of time spent, he says, "on things that will make them stronger, that will give them endurance ... help them adapt to the environment they'll suddenly be thrown into." "There's a principle in medicine called S.A.I.D.—Specific Adaptation to Imposed Demands. The body will prepare for those demands if given adequate time and proper preparation." But, Allman has found, a large part of the problem stems from the fact that many doctors, coaches and trainers just don't know how to properly gauge a boy's readiness. "The medical profession, school people, the athletic teams, all have been negligent about doing a thorough examination," Allman said. "By that, I don't simply mean we don't listen to the heart well, but when we listen to the heart, look in the ears, look in the throat, we're just ruling out obvious disease. We know they don't have a heart murmur, that their tonsils are not infected. "But we are not checking their maturity, we're not checking their strength, we're not checking their endurance capability, we're not evaluating their posture. "We're not classifying them according to the sport they want to engage in and whether they are ready to engage in it. "In other words, we're saying you're free of disease, therefore you can do anything you want to." More than 1.25 million boys played football this fall. The National Federation of State High School Associations says that 16 boys were killed in football related accidents in 1972. Statistically, that breaks down to about 1.33 deaths per 100,000 players. Realistically, however, it's alarming. Allman, who has spent two decades mending athletic wounds, knows better than most that as long as there is football, there will be injuries. "It's a game of violence, it's a game of contact," he says. "I don't think we'll ever completely eliminate injuries ... but we do know a lot of things that can be done to help minimize the severity of injury and also decrease the number of people who are hurt." As time goes by, there'll be more girls involved in sports. For years, girls have been prominent in such sports as tennis, swimming and golf. Many high schools have girls basketball teams and there are a lot of good women track stars around. There now are women jockeys, female umpires and girls are even invading Little League baseball. A few schools have girls football teams. The University of Georgia has an even dozen sports involving women in intercollegiate competition. "I think everything we say about the boy either applies to the girl now or someday soon, because of their desire to be given the same opportunity as the boys to participate in athletics," Allman said. He knows the risk, but he certainly thinks sports should rate high in everybody's book. "The value of sheer physical exercise demanded by participation in sports cannot be denied, nor can the benefit of competition," he says. "Competition is a part of life and there is no better way to learn to compete than through well-controlled sports activities."

NCAA's College Division Decides Title on Field

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI)—Big-time football has its ratings battles to determine a national champion, but the NCAA's college division teams will decide a champion on the playing field for the first time this year.

Eight teams will begin playoffs in Division II on Dec. 1. Four victors will advance to the semifinals on Dec. 8 and the winners of those games will play Dec. 15 on national television in the Camellia Bowl at Sacramento, Calif.

In Division III, four teams will open playoffs Dec. 1 with the championship game scheduled for the Amos Alonzo Stagg Bowl at Phenix City, Ala., Dec. 8.

A unique system has been developed to break ties. In the event of a tie score at the end of the game, a coin will be flipped to decide first possession and choice of goal. Then each team will be given a series of downs from its opponents 15-yard line.

A winner will be determined when one team has outscored the other after an equal number of possessions.

The NCAA's College Football Committee will select the 12 teams in Division II and the four teams in Division III. Advisory committees in each region will recommend teams for selection.

If any member of the committee represents an institution under consideration for the playoffs, he will be replaced by an alternate.

There are 324 institutions in Divisions II and III.

Here are the brackets:

DIVISION II (Larger schools)

Dec. 1—East vs. at-large in Boardwalk Bowl, Atlantic City, N.J.; Midwest vs. at-large Midwest vs. at-large; West vs. at-large.

Dec. 8—East-Midwest victors meet in Grantland Rice Bowl at Baton Rouge, La.; Midwest-West victors meet in Pioneer Bowl at Wichita Falls, Tex.

Dec. 15—National championship in Camellia Bowl at Sacramento, Calif.

DIVISION III (smaller schools)

Dec. 1—East vs. at-large, West vs. at-large.

Dec. 8—National championship in Amos Alonzo Stagg Bowl at Phenix City, Ala.

In Division II, the strongest region appears to be the Midwest, where three teams are ranked among the top six in the latest United Press International ratings. Tennessee State (7-0) is ranked No. 1. Western Kentucky (7-0) is No. 4.

It's possible that all three teams could make the playoffs, with two going as at-large entries.

Here's a brief rundown of teams under consideration from the other regions:

EAST—Delaware (6-2), Bucknell (4-2), Connecticut (5-2) and Rhode Island (5-1). Delaware, which was UPI's small college champion the last two years, has lost to two Division I (major college) teams, Rutgers and Temple, and remains the leading candidate.

MIDWEST—Eastern Michigan (5-2) and Western Illinois (5-2). A traditionally weak division.

WEST—Boise State (6-1),

California Poly at San Luis Obispo (6-0), North Dakota State (7-1), South Dakota (7-1) (6-1), Hobart (7-0), Juniata (5-1), Middlebury (6-0) and Widener (6-0).

WEST—Heidelberg (5-2), Wittenberg (7-0), Monmouth (6-0) and Evansville.

Here's a rundown:

EAST—Amherst (5-0), Bridgeport (6-1), Coast Guard (6-1), Hobart (7-0), Juniata (5-1), Middlebury (6-0) and Widener (6-0).

WEST—Heidelberg (5-2), Wittenberg (7-0), Monmouth (6-0) and Evansville.

For the first time, at least, invited after the first call, one football team will be able to call itself the national

NCAA's promotions director, champion—and have something "After the call on Nov. 14, we besides the No. 1 rating in a should have eight of the 12 vote of coaches to prove it."

Caldor to Mark 22nd Anniversary

NORWALK, CONN. Items. Additional cashiers and Caldor, Inc., the fast-growing department personnel have been regional discount department assigned to serve the expected store will celebrate its 22nd anniversary this month with a major event. huge chain-wide sale inaugurated by a 24-page advertising circular Sunday, Nov. 4, for all 26 Caldor stores in Connecticut, New York and Massachusetts.

Carl Bennett, chairman of the board and president of Caldor, recalls November, 1951 when he and his wife, Dorothy, opened the doors of their first store, a 2nd floor discount outlet in Port Chester, N.Y. "With an initial investment of eight thousand dollars, saved during my Army days, I went into business. From this small beginning, we have grown into a chain with estimated sales this year of 155 million dollars," he said.

The week-long Anniversary Sale starts Monday, Nov. 5, and features unusual savings on more than 350 merchandise items. Additional cashiers and department personnel have been assigned to serve the expected throngs of shoppers for this major event.

Caldor, Inc., is based in Norwalk where it maintains executive and buying offices and a central distribution warehouse. The regional chain continues in a steady growth pattern with five new stores opened during 1973; the most recent in West Hartford, Conn., Thursday, Nov. 1. In conjunction with this anniversary, the "re-opening" of two enlarged and modernized stores will take place in Waterbury and Hamden, Conn.

Listed on the American Stock Exchange, Caldor operates 18 discount department stores in Connecticut, five in New York and three in Massachusetts. Five more units are planned for 1974.

A Caldor store in Kingston, N.Y., is located on Ulster Avenue Mall.

Your Very Best... Second Area Seminar

KINGSTON are very serious and optimistic in our expectations for a continuing series of seminars in the Mth Hudson Valley.

The first area seminar in human resources development presented by Your Very Best, Int'l. Inc. was held Oct. 13-17. Sessions were held at the new Ramada Inn, Kingston.

The first class being small in number allowed for considerable interaction between the participants and the instructor Melvin Shaw, president of Your Very Best.

Besides lecturing, the seminar utilized seven films, music specially selected for content, mood and timing, mind exercises, questionnaires and a workbook designed by Your Very Best. Great emphasis is placed on interaction — both between the instructor and participants and between participants themselves. Subjects covered included mind control, courage, body language, faith, self-image, health and physical fitness, love, fears and worries, and imagination.

Mrs. Walter Reif, vice-president and area representative for Your Very Best remarked, "The initial seminar was a success both in turnout and, more importantly, in the enthusiasm expressed by those attending. This program is an intensive 50-hour experience designed to open, examine and reorient, when needed, individual lives not by us but by the participant himself. Many people expressed the opinion that fresh air, ideas and directions are experienced. We

Woolco's First In N.Y. State

NEW YORK floors in selected areas and full air conditioning.

The F. W. Woolworth Co. has announced that a lease has been signed for the company's first Woolco Department Store in the state of New York, to be located in Croton-On-Hudson.

The store, to be constructed in the Starlight Plaza Shopping Center on South Riverside Drive, will have 67,293 square feet of sales space. The building itself will occupy 89,845 square feet of space.

According to company spokesmen the store will be of characteristic Woolco design with all shopping and service facilities on one ground-level sales floor for maximum customer convenience. Woolco stores also feature spacious aisles, high ceilings with the latest in illumination, carpeted

Construction on the store will begin next year and is expected to be completed by early 1975.

Woolworth entered the department store field when its first Woolco store opened in 1962 in Columbus, O. There are now 218 Woolco units in operation in the U.S., 63 in Canada and 7 in England.

In pursuing an accelerated expansion program for Woolco Department Stores the company opened a total of 43 of these units last year. During 1973 it expects to open 46 new Woolco Stores, with 46 planned also for 1974.

F. W. Woolworth operates two stores in the Kingston area — one at 311 Wall Street and the other in the Ulster Shopping Plaza, Ulster Avenue Mall.

You have a choice. Make it for a change.

This is a note from a candidate who would rather have introduced herself at your front door; I've tried to do that throughout the Town of Ulster and the Town of Kingston.

Let me tell you why I am a candidate for the county legislature. I believe that government in Ulster County can be better than it is, and that one person can help make it better. Representation is a two-way channel; the priority must be the long view, but year-round communication with the ideas and needs of the residents of the district is vital.

The budget the county legislature passes determines our tax load; the legislation it enacts governs use of our resources, pattern of our growth, services we will receive.

Those of us who live in the Town of Ulster know too well what happens when one party holds control too long. On the county level, one-party rule means cash losses—in cold, hard figures. A $2.4 million surplus sitting on the county's books could have been used to reduce our taxes; a $426,000 surplus sitting in checking accounts could have been earning interest.

A Republican majority that cannot even insure proper fiscal procedure by a Republican county treasurer deserves no vote of confidence. It's a lop-sided majority that does not take strong enough initiative in planning for our future. It's a process in which decisions are made in the closed committee and caucus, protected by legislators who have closed their eyes and ears to the people's right to know about their government. A majority that is big enough to pass even a bond issue without a single cross-over vote is unresponsive to your thinking, too.

So many leaders have tried to give us a new direction from the top. They fail, or they fall. Maybe it's time we gave ourselves a fresh start here at home.

Some settle for what is; others mourn the "might-have-beens." I ask you to work with me for what CAN be done. I ask you to vote for me on Tuesday and urge your support for my running mates, Kenneth Dargis and Richard DeLorenzo.

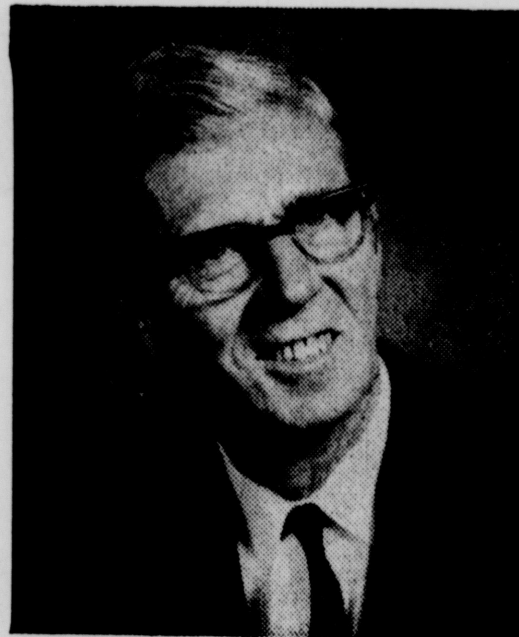

Thank you.

Kulseng: Full View Decisions

NEW PALTZ, Ralph Kulseng, Democratic candidate for the New Paltz Town Council, says there is an urgent need for public officials to be more responsive, open, and available to the people.

He said he would encourage people to call him at home or at his place of business to express their concerns, and he would be willing to meet with them in their homes.

Kulseng said he would insist that all decision making be done in full view of the public so that the people would know who participates in the decision making, and how and why decisions are made.

He said he would encourage people to call him at home or at his place of business to express their concerns, and he would be willing to meet with them in their homes.

Nyquist Lists the Important Issues

NEW PALTZ, Thomas Nyquist, Democratic candidate for the Ulster County Legislature from Dist. 8 (Gardiner, Lloyd, Marlboro, New Paltz and Plattekill), has listed the issues that he considers important to the county. These include "careless financial practices, the enlargement of Stewart Field, reapportionment in the county, rights of senior citizens, the construction of an atomic power plant, greater control over growth, and the need for open government." Also commenting on growth, he said, "Strong leadership is required of the county on this issue. We face the pressure of sprawling residential growth which would require a whole variety of costly new facilities. Yet much of Ulster County is unsuitable for construction or only marginally useable because of such problems as drainage."

Nyquist also talked of the need for open government where records and papers would be readily available to public scrutiny. "It is not in the public interest to have government which rules through secrecy, whether nationally or locally."

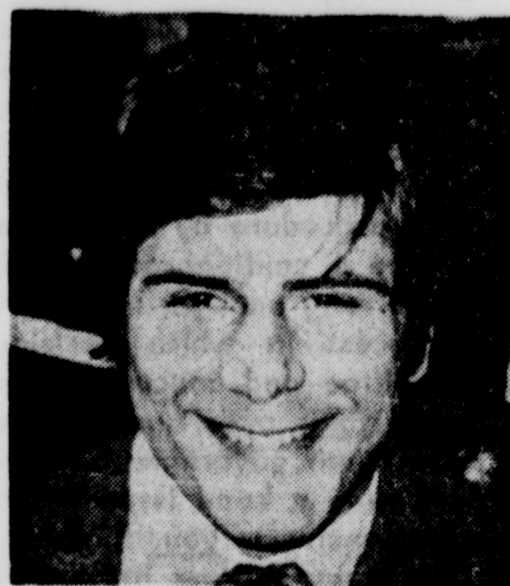

He concluded saying, "We are entering a crucial time locally where growth and such existing problems as a high dropout rate in our high schools, a sparsity of doctors, the lack of sufficient medical facilities, inadequate highways, and a low per capita income require some very difficult decisions."

Logan Proposes New TV Franchise

NEW PALTZ which would regulate the rates charged by the company, set minimum standards of service, before a recent Candidates extended to the entire township. The company was franchised by the town at a town board meeting Oct. 14, 1970. Logan said, but no regulations were put on the company with the franchise.

Logan added that he had no complaint whatever about the quality of the service provided to the residents of the Village of New Paltz by New Paltz Tele-Cable Inc. "I only wish," he said, "that the company would be asked to draw up a new franchise with the company to more people."

The 'Irate Housewives' Endorse Dye Proposal

TOWN OF ULSTER The "Irate Housewives" consumer organization has endorsed County Legislator Douglas V. Dye's proposal to create a commission for consumer protection.

Dye, independent candidate for the legislature in District 2 (Town of Kingston, Town of Ulster) presented a six-point consumer protection plan at a press conference last week.

Ethel Thomas, spokeswoman for Irate Housewives, said, "I am very gratified that the help I objectives for which our group has been organized and has been working to achieve are going to be recognized and that a leading public officials has committed his energy to the public good."

Revealing that an Irate Housewives committee has met with Dye to develop a consumer protection plan, Mrs. Thomas said, "I consider the plan (put forth by Dye) very comprehensive and reasonable."

"I stand 100 per cent behind Dye on this important issue and will provide all the help I possibly can to see these objectives achieved," she said.

Ann Bartz Issues Warning On Solid Waste, Garbage

KINGSTON The problem has been longstanding, getting worse by the hour, and no one wants the unpopular task of putting the program into operation. As a wife, mother, and a concerned citizen, may I say that if we do not act at once, we will be faced with a problem of major proportion," Mrs. Bartz warned. "A problem that will be staggering to the citizens of Kingston and Ulster County when it comes to light."

"You cannot let this program go unattended. The problem is now, not next year," she concluded.

City Republican county legislator candidate Ann Bartz said today that in the last few weeks, "I have attempted to make the citizens of Kingston and Ulster County aware of what I consider to be the major problem confronting the Legislature this year. That is the disposal of solid waste or garbage."

"If you have not been concerned before, I ask that you take heed to the warnings I have issued in the last few weeks," she said.

Hoffman Answers Foe On Flyer Noting Problems

KINGSTON on the Common Council. You cannot always rely on the mouthpiece of your committee to save you — if you can't use your own words, then you are not your own man and cannot represent your own ward.

"I have never seen my opponent at a Common Council meeting since the reapportionment of our city and ward. Maybe he doesn't realize that the structure of our city has changed."

"It is time for the problems of the 11th Ward to be heard in the Common Council — and believe me, I, Richard Hoffman, can represent the 11th Ward with words and action."

Richard J. Hoffman, Republican candidate for alderman in the Eleventh Ward, has issued the following statement concerning Tuesday's election:

"Now that I have forced my opponent into campaigning, I would like to take this opportunity to make a few comments on his campaign and on the recent flyer written by one of his committeemen."

"In this flyer he claims to be aware of the problems in our ward. However, he has not identified these problems nor said anything about what he plans to do about them, as I have done."

"He also claims he is a man of action, not words. Well, words are the best tools a man can use in representing a ward

KINGSTON VOTERS!

Just as the Democrats had their Teapot Dome scandal, so have the Republicans their Watergate — both dismal connivances conceived by Politicians! And so, not until AFTER the 1972 election, did the Politicians FIRST reveal the tentative 1973 Ulster County budget, wherein their sorry attempt to not only raise their town legislative salaries by some 60%, but also the salaries of their political cohorts on the County payroll, was first unearthed and discovered!

Remember Who Stopped Them?

Like your current tax Bills? How about that well publicized "Revenue Sharing" that was supposed to ease the taxpayers' burdens, but instead has become a "Plum Pie" for the legislators, so deeply buried that even the Washington "plumbers" would be unable to reach it! Seen the tentative 1974 county budget yet, or heard any "leaks" from it? You won't, either, until after election!

Medicare Responsibility Is Noted

KINGSTON — George J. Habernig, Kingston Social Security office manager, announced today that a Medicare beneficiary will be responsible for the first $84 of his hospital bill, an increase of $12, beginning Jan. 1 of next year.

Habernig said the law does not give the secretary of HEW discretion on setting the Medicare hospital deductible but requires him to determine it for each year on the basis of the average daily cost of hospital care under the program. The base year is the preceding calendar year, thus the current increase is based on hospital costs for 1972.

Habernig also stated that when the hospital deductible changes, the law requires the Secretary to make comparable changes in the dollar amounts a Medicare beneficiary pays toward a hospital stay of more than 60 days, or a posthospital extended care stay of more than 20 days.

In 1974, when a Medicare beneficiary has a hospital stay of more than 60 days, he will pay $21 a day for the 61st through the 90th day, up from the present $18 per day. If he has a posthospital stay of over 20 days in an extended care facility, he will pay $10.50 per day toward the cost of the 21st day through the 100th day, up from the present $9 per day. If a Medicare beneficiary ever needs more than 90 days of hospital care in the same benefit period, he can draw on his "lifetime reserve" of 60 days, and will pay $42 for each day used instead of the present $36 per day. Habernig stated that the increase is consistent with the Cost of Living Council's policy governing price adjustments in the health industry.

ON NOVEMBER 6TH Vote "YES" TO REAPPORT

LOCAL LAW No. 2, 1973

Shall there be approved Local Law No. 2, 1973, providing a plan of re-apportionment for the Ulster County Legislature as enacted by said legislature February 20, 1973?

Here's Why...

1. Reapportionment, based on the 1970 Census, has been ordered by the Supreme Court.
2. This Reapportionment Plan for Ulster County, known as Local Law No. 2, 1973, has been approved and validated by the New York State Supreme Court.
3. The Plan, which provides for 33 legislators in 8 districts, adheres strictly to the "one man, one vote" principle — allowing the least possible deviation therefrom; does not change historic town or city boundary lines, and is, through use of computers, free from gerrymandering.
4. Legislators must concern themselves to a greater degree with the over-all problems and welfare of the County as a whole.
5. Reapportionment, if approved by the voters at this time, will not cost taxpayers one cent! However, if defeated, it would cost approximately $70,000 for a special referendum to approve another reapport plan. Defeat would also create confusion as to district boundary lines.

October Unemployment Rate Up Sharply

KINGSTON, N.Y. — State officials said that 6,394 claims for unemployment compensation were received last month compared to 4,781 in October of last year, an increase of 33 per cent. Officials believe a sharp downturn in construction is primarily responsible for the increased unemployment rate. Interest rates to finance construction have risen drastically in 1973. The number of claims for unemployment compensation for September of this year was 4,781 with October's figures representing a 22 per cent increase.

The overall county unemployment rate is 5.3 per cent, as of August, the last month where figures are available.

Dr. Soper to Speak

ELLENVILLE — address Ellenville High School honor students at the Annual Honors Awards Banquet, to be held Nov. 7 in the High School cafeteria.

Dr. Soper is also the former school superintendent in Norwich and Long Beach, and has been a visiting professor of education at the State University College at New Paltz and a New York State Education Department consultant.

The scholars to be honored maintained an average of 90 or above during the 1972-73 school year. Parents of the students have been invited together with other guests.

NEW HIGHEST RATE PERMITTED ON 4-YEAR SAVINGS CERTIFICATES

7.90% effective annual yield compounded daily on 7.50%

Effective immediately, Poughkeepsie Savings Bank will pay the highest interest rate in the nation on time deposits up to $100,000. On special four-year savings certificates of $1,000 or more, interest at an annual rate of 7.50% will be compounded daily, credited quarterly, and guaranteed when held to maturity to yield 7.90% annually. Interest may be paid monthly or quarterly by check at slightly reduced yield.

FDIC regulations permit withdrawals on savings certificates before maturity, provided the rate of interest on the amount withdrawn is reduced to the passbook rate from the day of deposit and three months' interest is forfeited.

Author Charges Secretaries With Gross 'Inefficiency!'

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI) — Melvin J. Grayson deserves some sort of citation for bravery. Like maybe a typewriter broken across his noble head.

Grayson is one man who faces the fire of an estimated four-million women — the secretaries of the nation. Grayson charges most of them with a scope of inefficiency broad as the proverbial stenographer spread. The inefficiency covers the most basic of skills from typing to spelling, grammar and punctuation.

Grayson charges that "the average American secretary is a blot on her profession, a shameful reflection on the quality of teaching in our schools and universities, a liability to her employer, and part of a collective threat to many of the nation's commercial establishments if not the whole free enterprise system..."

Grayson, a former reporter was a speechwriter for Spiro Agnew and a vice-president and promotion director for the late Look magazine. He now is a marketing consultant.

He also is the author of a book called "Executive Sweeties" Cordovan Press, Houston, and it is in this book that he takes out, with exasperation coupled with humor, after that big segment of the working woman society.

He also reaffirmed his views in an interview in which he said he didn't mean his book to be "bitter or nasty," that he had "had a lot of fun along with the gray hairs" and yes, "In my whole career, I've had two crackerjack secretaries." He has one of these at present, apparently.

Grayson says he speaks, though, "with the practical knowledge — and haunted expression — of a man who has over the past 20-some years, suffered grievously under the ministrations of enough gals Friday to tie up all the telephones in a medium-sized place of business with their personal calls.

"Twenty-eight of them to be specific. And almost every one of the 28, in her own distinctive fashion, with malice or with the best of intentions, has at one time or another contrived to propel me right straight up the office wall."

Grayson described the average typing speed of secretaries at a "lava flow pace" of 40 to 50 words a minute when the professional should be able to do 50 or 100 — and accurately.

It might be thought the National Secretaries Association (NSA), would be out to lynch Melvin Grayson, but they just don't take him seriously.

"We're not offended," NSA president Peggy Creighton told me by telephone from Raleigh, N.C., where she is executive secretary with an architectural firm. "We try to maintain our sense of humor and consider the source. Anyone who goes through 23 secretaries in 20 years seems to be a victim of his own inadequacy as an employer."

If any of you secretaries out there think that's not answer enough, write me, Gay Pauley, at United Press International, 220 E. 42nd St., New York, N.Y. 10017, and maybe we can stir up something.

'The Cover Story' in New Paltz Women's Guild Schedules Fashion Show

Fashions this fall and winter will have a total look. Femininity and soft lines are stepping out far ahead of the parade with decided emphasis upon fabrics, style and comfort. In line with the fall and winter scene for 1973, the Women's Guild of St. Joseph's Church in New Paltz will unveil a complete show of fashions on November 5. Coordinating the entire program is Pat Yaeger, Guild member, and fashion commentator. Mrs. Yaeger told the Women's Department that fashions will be shown through the courtesy of Luckey Platt and Company. Hair styles will be done by Miss Peggy's Beauty Salon. Fashions will be for the entire family — men, women and children — will be included.

Given as a benefit for St. Joseph's Church in New Paltz, the show will be staged at 8 p.m. in the church social hall. The fashion committee has chosen to call the show "The Cover Story," for it will represent a collection of the finest leading holiday fashions. The fashion scene for 1973-74 includes a great deal of the coordinated look. Today, this can be achieved so easily because of the wealth of costumes — suits and coats, dresses and coats, and, in the pantsuit area, pants and tops or jumpsuits with coats, vests with skirts and the latter in any length desired.

Modeling in the show on November 5 will be Brenda Taffe, Sandy Potter and Joan Caswell along with Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Gallerie, Mr. and Mrs. William Rhinehart, the Misses Dawn Snow, Jill VanKleeck, Jackie Dietrich and Linda Lardiers.

Also modeling in the annual benefit show will be the Meses, Denise Pitcher, Mary Schaefer, Eleanor Tantillo, Jean Torraca, Jane Zardvo, Gerard Agocha, Michael Curran, Mark Quillen and Walter Yaeger.

Pat Yaeger promises a splendid evening for all complete with surprise awards.

CONTEMPORARY is the word for coordinated pantsuits. Jean Caswell, who will be among those modeling in the Women's Guild show in New Paltz. This season's fashion parade continues to show the pantsuit as a popular choice among active women. The more austere lines have given way to a softer, feminine look with emphasis upon fabric and comfort. (Creative Photographic)

ELEGANT is the word for today's lingerie. Here, Brenda Taffe swirls the matching full length robe to demonstrate how really luxurious are today's fabrics. All fashions for men, women and children in the Women's Guild annual benefit will be shown through the courtesy of Lucky Platt and Company. (Creative Photographic)

Make Multiple Fruitcakes--It's Not Too Early!

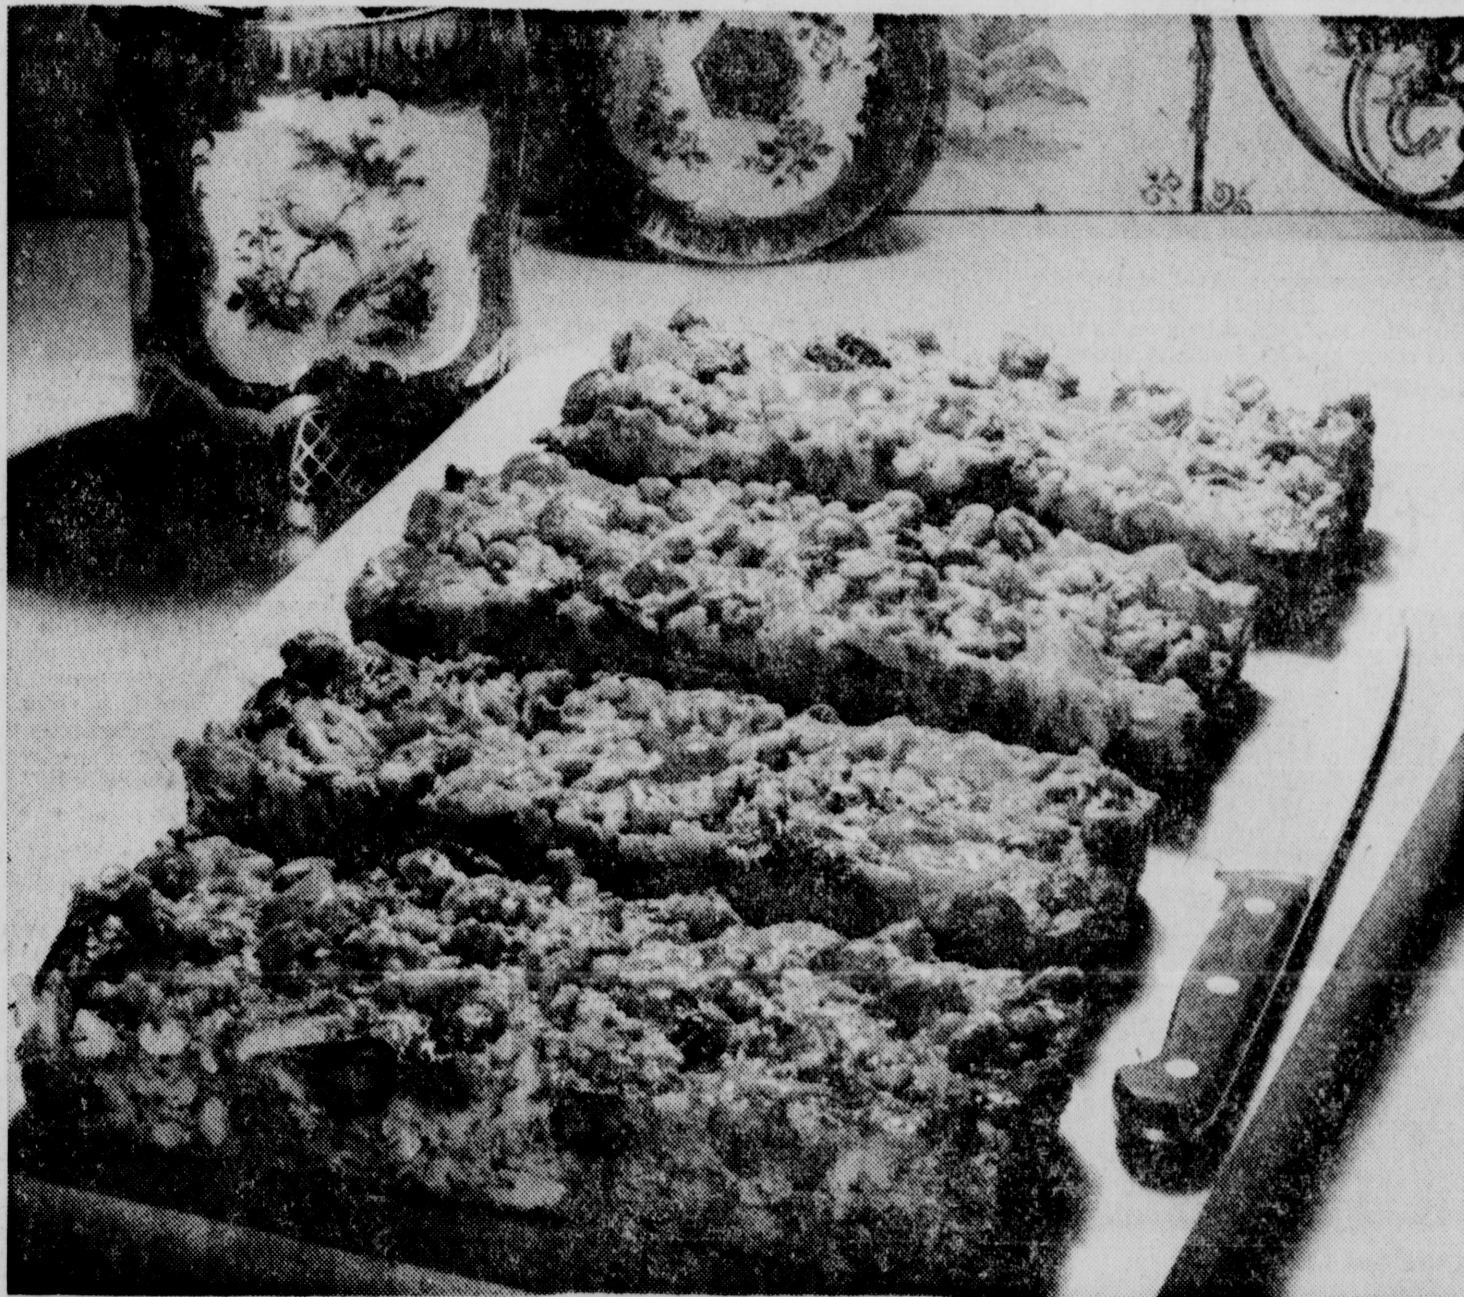

A holiday recipe that creates four fruitcakes in one pan can inspire anyone's generosity this season.

Richly fruited and chunky with crisp-sweet California walnuts, the minimal batter mixture is baked in a rectangular cake pan then cut into hefty strips. As the curious name "Four-From-One-Fruitcake" implies, you get four delicious gifts from your kitchen for delighting friends and neighbors. Or maybe keeping one as a family treat is your pleasure.

All the fruitcake fanciers — and even those who think they aren't — will find the flavors in the best of taste. Although there's an abundance of candied fruits, peels and dried dates, fresh tasting California walnuts temper the sweetness delectably, making Four-From-One-Fruitcake especially good to eat. The sturdy texture cuts nicely without crumbling and is pleasingly chewy. Since the colorful makings show up so prettily through the light golden crumb, no further decoration is needed on the top.

Holiday cooks will find the jiffy steps another winning feature. There is no lengthy list of ingredients to shop for. Most of the required amounts are used "as is," direct from the packaging without preliminary chopping, slicing and dicing.

Buy the one-pound clear bag or two eight-ounce vacuum packed cans of shelled ready-to-use walnut kernels for real ease. Either way, you get the specified four cup measurement of walnuts as in the recipe. You'll find the meaty kernels crunchy and mellow, as if you just took them from their protective shells. When left in large pieces, you get the full benefit of their crunchy texture contrast so desired in a number of foods.

Here are other nice-to-know pointers: Line the bottom and sides of your baking pan with heavy brown wrapping paper or sheets cut from a clean paper sack. To guarantee non-stick removal of your fruitcake, be sure to apply a heavy coating of solid white shortening over the paper lining. After the first 30-minute cooling, turn the fruitcake out topside down onto a wire rack, peel off the paper, flip right side up onto another rack and cool completely.

Did you know that a toothpick is not an efficient way of testing doneness with this type of cake? The fruits tend to stick to the pick even though the batter is cooked. So you risk drying out the fruitcake. Instead, press the top lightly with a fingertip. If the center stays firm or springs back, your cake is done.

Although not essential, a little brandy or sherry does add a tantalizing appeal. Sprinkling the fruitcake evenly with the spirits is no problem if you pour it into a glass or plastic bottle with a sprinkler head. If none is handy, a pastry brush does a satisfying job.

Four-From-One Fruitcake

Four cups California walnut halves and large pieces

One and one-half cups halved pitted dates

One and one-half cups whole candied cherries

One and one-half cups candied pineapple chunks

Three-quarter cup diced candied orange peel

One cup plus two tablespoons sifted all-purpose flour

One cup plus two tablespoons granulated sugar

Three-quarter teaspoon baking powder

One teaspoon salt

Four eggs

One tablespoon vanilla

One teaspoon rum flavoring

One-quarter cup brandy or dry sherry (optional)

Combine walnuts, dates, cherries, pineapple and orange peel. Resift flour with sugar, baking powder and salt over fruit; mix well. Beat eggs with vanilla and rum flavoring. Pour over fruit mixture; stir until well mixed.

Turn into a paper lined and greased nine by 13-inch pan and spread evenly. Bake below oven center at 275 degrees F. for about one and one-half hours or until fruitcake tests done. Remove from oven and let fruitcake stand in paper one-half hour. Remove from pan and cool thoroughly. If desired, sprinkle fruitcake evenly with brandy or sherry. Cut crosswise into four even-size strips. Wrap each one in foil and store in a cool place. Makes one nine by 13-inch fruitcake or four fruitcake strips.

'Internationale' Offered Polynesian Fun, Food

TO ENJOY—That was the theme of the Benedictine Hospital's annual "Internationale" held Sunday at the Granit Hotel in Kerhonkson. Enhanced with a Polynesian flavor, the more than 400 men and women attending the affair wore leis of flowers. Bestowing a lei of carnations on Harry C. Kapreilian, a member of the hospital's Advisory Board and

IT WAS A GOOD TIME—Benedictine Hospital officials greeted Kingston Hospital officials Sunday at Benedictine's annual fund raising affair at the Granit Hotel in Kerhonkson. Enjoying the Polynesian-flavored festivities which featured continuous music, feasting and dancing; sans speeches, were (L) Paul DeLisio, chairman of the affair which attracted

Dear Abby

Growthmania Worrier Pens Topical Letter

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
© 1973 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Someone signed "FATHER OF SIX DAUGHTERS" wanted to know if there was a foolproof way for him to get a son and you replied, "Yes, Adopt!" I can't resist sending you this. We received it following the birth of a son — after having had four girls: Dear Helen and Bill: SO YOU FINALLY HAD A BOY?

The only thing you can be congratulated on is your perseverance.

You can't be congratulated on your morality or unselfishness. Adding three "extra" children to a world already reeling under its population load can't be called either moral or unselfish.

You can't be congratulated on your fertility. After all, any clam, chicken, or small furry animal can beat you at that.

You can't be congratulated on your fine family. A fine family is one which sets an example, and your example may kill us all in a few generations.

You can't even be congratulated on being able to afford five children, because you're not paying for them. Oh, you provide their food and clothing and shelter, but the rest of the world pays for their roads, schools, hospitals, air, water . . .

You can't be congratulated on being a patriotic citizen, for if anything destroys the United States it will be our "growthmania" spiral thru which this country even now gulps over 50 per cent of the world's resources.

You can't be congratulated for carrying on the family name. Family names mean little unless people mean much, and your kind of growth rate guarantees that people mean less and less.

Unless, of course, three of those children are adopted . . . ?

In that case,

Congratulations.

RICK AND SUE

DEAR ABBY: I am married to a man I love with all my heart. He says he doesn't love me any more and wants a divorce. We have three children. At first he said he had it with married life and all he wanted was to be free, then after I begged and pleaded with him to reconsider, he admitted that there was another woman.

I would get down on my hands and knees if I thought it would do any good. I tried to tell him how much I loved him. I even kissed him, but he stood there like a statue with his hands in his pockets. Oh, Abby, I am desperate. How can a woman get a man to love her again? The divorce is coming up soon in court. No fault. No chance. Help me. I don't want to live without him.

ALONE AND CRYING
DEAR ALONE: You aren't alone. You have three children, which are three good reasons for living.

Since there is another woman in the picture, your chances for making him "love you" again are zilch. Furthermore, there is nothing less appealing to a man than a begging, prideless woman. So dry your tears, square your shoulders, and chin up. Concentrate on making a new life for yourself. Sometimes good luck comes disguised as disaster.

SCRUMPTIOUS BUFFET—As a departure from the usual sit-down dinner, guests at Benedictine Hospital's annual gala, the Internationale, enjoyed a lavish Polynesian buffet Sunday at the Granit Hotel. Complete with stuffed pig, fruits, shrimp, sirloin of beef, spare ribs and a multitude of delicacies, the menu was greeted with much enthusiasm by the party-goers. (L) Mrs. Edward S. Coppo, co chairman of the affair with

Chairman Paul DeLisio and Mrs. Anthony Vicevich; Guido D'Alessio, director of fiscal service, Mrs. Philip Gordon, a member of the "Internationale" Committee; Jack Turk, also a committee member and member of the Advisory Board and Gerard Nocton, assistant administrator. (Freeman photo by Kruh)

FESTIVE AIR—Added to the melodious effect of the Polynesian music at the Benedictine Hospital "Internationale" Sunday were flowered carnation leis, straw hats and a multitude of flower decorations made by Girl Scouts of Troop 215,

Doing the Right Thing

(© 1973 Emily Post Institute, Inc.)

Dear Mrs. Post: When my husband and I were married three years ago, my mother-in-law must have invited everyone she knew. Recently, I've been receiving invitations to weddings of people I don't know. Either the parents, or the bride or groom attended ours. Even my husband hardly remembers who they are.

Shortly before our marriage, my husband's company transferred him across the country, so there has never been a chance to associate with anyone except our families on visits.

Since we received a gift from either the bride, groom, or parents for our wedding, I probably would send a gift in return, but I don't appreciate being obligated to do so.

Don't you feel in a case such as this a wedding announcement, rather than an invitation, would be more appropriate? — Sheila

Dear Sheila: I agree with you. This is the classic illustration of a situation when a gift is not obligatory. When you are invited to a wedding you will not attend, of someone you do not know, or someone with whom you have had no contact in years, you do not need to send a present. As you suggest, you should have received an announcement — not an invitation.

Dear Mrs. Post: In writing business and social letters, when does a woman sign Mary Doe or Mrs. C.M. Doe (Her husband's name)?

Also, when does one sign "Respectfully" or "Sincerely"? — Janis.

Dear Janis: A married woman, whether her husband is living or not, signs all correspondence "Mary C. Doe." If her married name is not printed at the top of her paper, she writes, below her signature (Mrs. Charles M. Doe) to let the receiver know how his reply should be addressed.

The correct closing for almost all business, formal and semi-formal correspondence is "Sincerely" or "Respectfully." "Sincerely yours" is used only from an employee to an employer, a salesman to a customer in some cases, or as part of a formal closing to a very prominent person — "I have the honor to remain, respectfully yours . . ." Except in the latter case, a woman never signs a letter "Respectfully."

Dear Mrs. Post: I love to eat shrimp, but here is my trouble.

I am 72 years old, wear dentures, and have to take small bits now. I do not have trouble eating shrimp from a can, but when I go out to eat I often order a shrimp cocktail and have to cut the shrimp in two. I do this on the plate. I know it is not correct to do so, but I do not like to give up eating fresh shrimp. They taste so good fried, too, and of course I have to cut the shrimp in small pieces.

I have seen people take the shrimp and dip them in the tarter sauce between the fingers. Would you be so kind as to let me know the correct way for me to eat the shrimp? — Mrs. Medford

Dear Mrs. Medford: A shrimp cocktail is one of the most difficult things to eat — for people of any age. I only wish I could persuade restaurants to serve shrimp on a flat plate, to facilitate cutting them in half. However, since they are still generally served in a stemmed glass, the best solution is to hold the glass with the left hand and cut the shrimp with the edge of the fork. If you find this impossible, you may put the shrimp on the plate, one at a time, and cut them with your knife and fork. At home, or at an informal restaurant or party you might pick either fresh or fried shrimp up and dip them in the sauce, but this is not correct in a more formal atmosphere.

Dear Mrs. Post: Being a college freshman I come upon many forms requiring me to write my name in reverse order: last name, first name, and middle name or initial. Being a "Jr." I would like to know where this part of my name should be placed. — Alan

Dear Alan: When John Brown, Jr. must write his last name first, he writes, Brown, John Jr. The fact that he is the son of a Brown does not make him a Jr. — the fact that he is the son of John does. Therefore the "Jr." stays with his given name.

Dear Mrs. Post: Christmas is coming soon and I have a question: How can I stop exchanging gifts with distant cousins whom I haven't seen for years? I do not want to lose touch entirely, but I would like to be relieved of the burden of an extra gift for people I know very slightly. I am sure they feel the same way.

Mrs. J. S.

Dear Mrs. S.: In November or early December, write your cousins and suggest that instead of a gift, you would appreciate a newsletter about their families. Add that you will do the same. Make your letters fun and personal; they will be more appreciated more than a token gift.

Dear Mrs. Post: Finger bowls used to be used after dinner; that is a thing of the past, in most cases. Recently, I saw an elderly lady put a little water from her water glass on her napkin to freshen her fingers.

My friends were shocked. I thought she was sensible. What is your opinion?

Virginia

Dear Virginia: Provided the napkin is clean, and that you do not intend to drink any more water, you can't harm anything by dampening the corner of the napkin to clean greasy fingers. I would not recommend it at a formal dinner or in a very elegant restaurant, but in a more casual or practical idea.

PTST Brings Out the Best of the Beast

(Note: Today's column is written by Joanne)

I know there are parents, somewhere out there, who have gotten rid of their television sets in favor of such wholesome activities as baking bread or weaving baskets.

I have hoped for the strength of will to rid myself of the one-eyed monster that sits there in the family room, teaching our three impressionable children catchy phrases about Preparation H or the heartbreak of psoriasis.

I know if I don't destroy the beast he will hold my children in thrall for more hours than they spend in school. (A recent government study tallies up 15,000 hours before the tube from kindergarten to high school graduation vs. 12,000 in class.)

Yes, I censor their viewing. I forbid the violent programs. But what about the violence of rampant greed that permeates TV give-away shows, turning adults into costumed maniacs who give away their last shred of dignity for the new washer and dryer that might be waiting behind curtain number one. Do our critical comments on such programs prevent the children from absorbing the "Let's Make-A-Deal" ethic?

But if we get rid of the television, Lew and I don't get to watch the news. We miss documentaries, the movies and the Bunkers. We miss sitting with the kids through old favorites like "The Yearling," munching popcorn and having a good cry, all five of us, when Jody has to shoot his pet deer.

Winter is coming, and with it, colds and flu, below-zero weather with the children stuck in the house and the Play-Do used up and my patience, too.

But there is a ray of hope. A new nonprofit group is coming to the aid of imperfect parents like myself. Prime Time School Television (PTST) selects prime television programs of special merit and develops classroom materials based on these programs. PTST mails its materials free of charge nationwide and includes discussion topics and a bibliography for each program.

Just as important as the service it provides as a source of education is the pressure PTST can bring to bear on networks and sponsors to increase the number of prime time television hours devoted to high quality educational programming, programs which don't necessarily have to be dull.

For more information on PTST, parents and teachers can write to Prime Time School Television, 100 N. LaSalle Street, Chicago, Ill. 60602.

For me, PTST has come along just in time.

I was beginning to realize that I couldn't live with our TV and couldn't live without it. This seems to be one way to tame the monster.

After a Fashion Achieving Natural Look—Hard Work!

By MARIAN CHRISTY

When cosmeticians start talking about the "natural" look—it usually isn't natural but, as they say, natural-looking. That, in turn, takes just as much doing—if not more—than obvious theatricality.

For example: fall-winter coiffures are in a "natural" mood. That means a minimum of teasing and hair that looks like hair—soft, shining, heaven to touch. The hairdo of the season is shoulder length or above. It can be short and fluffy or straight and barely turned under a la The Page-boy.

Many European models, who have a way of establishing trends, have already cut their long hair short. It's truly a short hairdo, very boyish, which literally hugs the head. Many heretofore long-hair types have followed suit and many designers are insisting that their mannequins cut their hair—or no show. Take the cue.

As hair gets shorter, the face itself is on display rather than hidden beneath or under (well, practically!) a mane that overpowers. The individual features are played up and spotlighted. The shape of the face itself is highlighted with shadows so that it is purposefully angular.

Take the eyes which are, indeed, the mirrors of the soul. As hair gets shorter and more away from the face, eyebrows are lightened, brightened and made thinner. It's an offshoot, I suppose, of the '20s mood of dressing which is becoming increasingly important since the movie of F. Scott Fitzgerald's "The Great Gatsby" starring Mia Farrow, who has been revamped into that kind of beauty.

Shadows are delicate—mostly soft pastels. Eyebrows are thin and arched. In Italy the models shave off their eyebrows altogether. It's all part of a scheme to portray the eye itself as the central point of the face. But without going overboard, it's possible to do that via optical illusion.

After using shadows on the lids, brush off-white shadow under the brow. That opens the eyes, makes them appear bigger. Then take a dark shade of shadow and brush in along the crease of the eye. What wonderful definition in a stroke or two. Use eyeliner—but carefully. It should be thin, thin, thin. Mascara is a must. Mannequins are trained to spend lots of time putting mascara on lashes. Do it once. When it dries, do it again. Just be sure that the lashes don't stick to each other.

Cheek shadows, or rouges, are important, too. There's everything from liquid gels to powder types that brush on. Make sure the cheek colors aren't obvious.

Lipsticks are bright. Don't be afraid of colors that have a definite red or orange or blue-pink tone. They're marvelous balances for carefully made-up eyes.

Makeup, which is the base for all these highlights, is more like skin itself. Bases are sheer and just give a sheen to a well-cared-for complexion rather than veil it in opaque bases. Powder is making a big comeback—the kind that is virtually colorless but more of a "setting" to the makeup itself. The reason for its re-emergence into the cosmetic field is its ability to give makeup a truly opaque, matte finish. Shiny faces are out.

But if your hair and skin aren't in the best of condition, all the makeup in the world won't do you any good. Give yourself special facials at home—perhaps while you're lolling in the tub and the steam from the water is doing double-duty by helping to cleanse your pores. Go weekly to a beauty salon for a professional facial geared to your particular complexion type—dry or oily skin. If you've got problem skin, visit a dermatologist.

Hair care, all part of the "natural" syndrome, is based on shampoos and hair conditions that have soothing ingredients rather than harsh detergents. After shampooing, use conditioners. Do everything in your power to make yourself look natural—but that, of course, means better than nature intended.

Young Artisans Revive Crafts

By VIVIAN BROWN

NEW YORK (AP) — Young artisans will help revive the spirit of '76 when the United States celebrates its 200th birthday.

Their interest in early American crafts — quilting, weaving, silversmithing, pewtering, stenciling and so on — will help make the Centennial an authentic experience, predicts Tom Glennon, president of The Hitchcock Chair Co. of Riverton, Conn., where some youthful artists work and others are to be encouraged to run their own handicraft businesses. The original chair company closed down in 1863 and was revived in 1946.

The hordes of young people interested in crafts should allay fears of antiquarians that other traditional crafts, architectural and the like, are dying out. Youthful craftsmen are interested in everything, he said in an interview here.

"In fact they are helping us do things we haven't been able to do before," Glennon insists. "They are reproducing, freehand and stencil, Currier and Ives scenes, and our limited edition series that depict Mt. Vernon, Monticello, the Adams House and Philadelphia scenes. Their artistic embellishments make manufactured articles look handcrafted."

In addition to furniture refinishing and decorating, young workers weave rush seats as they were woven more than a century ago.

They also steam-bend wood, paint tavern signs and so on.

"They are happiest doing their thing and we are going to help them run their own businesses. We've bought a section of town and are putting in eight or ten shops. Our plan is to subsidize young people in various crafts."

Many other chair companies pre-dated the original Hitchcock Company and perhaps some 50 companies were mass-producing fancy chairs between 1810 and 1860 at the height of their popularity, but present-day nostalgia has been built around the revived company because it is turning out chairs in the old way.

The original factory was decaying when Glennon's father-in-law, John Kenney, bought it and the trademark 27 years ago, refurbished it and planned it as a part-time enterprise while he ran his shoe store in Hartford. But it was soon going full steam and now turns out some 3,000 chairs a week and some 100 different items.

Although the original company was among the first to mass-produce Boston-type rocking chairs, it is best known for its dark, gold-striped chairs with decorated rails. Other companies make such chairs using the name generically.

This year more than 40,000 tourists visited the company's museum — a former church where Hitchcock was married in 1830 — to view the original chairs that are on display. Only those signed and made between 1826 and 1840 are considered "real Hitchcocks," Glennon insists.

Youthful employees were encouraged even in Hitchcock's day. In 1832 a help wanted advertisement he placed read, "two or three young men, 16 to 20 years of age, of industrious habits who will abstain from the use of ardent spirits can have steady employment."

Today many employees are husband and wife teams, some are Czechoslovakian and Hungarian refugees who established colonies near the factory. One girl, a furniture stripper, has been in slave labor camps under both Germans and Russians, Glennon said. Older workers who have grown with the company assume the supervisory jobs.

ELECTION COAT EVENT

Available at Kingston Plaza. Open Daily 10-9, Fridays 10-9:30, Sat. 10-6.

Fratoni-Klein Wedding Announced

Reformed Church of the Comforter, Kingston, was the setting for the wedding of Miss Linda Ann Fratoni and Keith Klein Saturday, Oct. 13. The Rev. John Mongin officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. Sam Fratoni of Kingston and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Klein of Red Hook.

Mrs. Gloria Sparks, organist, accompanied Mrs. Catherine Sauers who sang traditional wedding selections.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride selected a traditional white gown of satepeau on the empire line. Venice lace accented the ring neckline and cuffs of semi-bishop sleeves. Pearls and lace designed the entire front of the gown, and a wide flounce bordered with lace encircled the chapel length train. To her two-tiered silk illusion veil was attached a headpiece of lace and pearls. She carried a cascade of miniature carnations, yellow roses and phalaenopsis orchids.

Martha Bouton of Kingston was maid of honor. Attendants were Charlotte Nunes of Esopus and Roseann Parise of Kingston. Jean Ann Stahovic, niece of the bridegroom, served as flower girl.

For her bridal party, the bride selected a rainbow color scheme of gold, moss green, and red. The attendants were dressed alike in owns fashioned with fitted empire bodices of velvet, and floral A-line skirts. They wore Juliet caps trimmed with matching velvet and carried cascades of miniature carnations and roses.

Larry Klein served as best man for his brother. Ushers were Gene Stahovic of Connecticut, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, and Jeff Williams of Pennsylvania, brother-in-law of the bride.

A reception was given at the Flamingo in Saugerties.

After a wedding trip, the couple will reside in Kingston.

The bride is a 1971 Kingston High School graduate and attended Ulster County Community College. The bridegroom is a 1971 graduate of Red Hook High School and served in the U.S. Navy as a Corpsman. He is presently attending Ulster County Community College.

Wedding Vows Taken by Barbara Jean Fay

Miss Barbara Jean Fay, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Fay, 106 Greenkill Avenue, Kingston, exchanged nuptial vows with Samuel Daniel Peterman, son of Mrs. Theresa Peterman, 77 Cedar Street, Kingston, and the late Samuel D. Peterman, on Sunday, Oct. 21.

The Rev. Thomas M. O'Hagen officiated at the wedding ceremony which took place in St. Joseph's Church, Kingston. James Sweeney, organist, accompanied his wife who sang traditional wedding selections.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a traditional white gown in the empire, A-line styling which was enhanced with Chantilly lace motifs. Matching lace motifs outlined the sheer yoke, formed a Mandarin neckline, accented the cuffs of the semi-bishop sleeves and bordered the hemline. Chantilly lace trimmed the chapel-length train. A Juliet cap held her mantilla and she carried a Bible, covered with an orchid.

Miss Kimberly Fay, sister of the bride, 106 Greenkill Avenue, Kingston, served as maid of honor. Attendants were Mrs. Kathy Farrell, Groff Street, Kingston; and Miss Darlene Webster, Linderman Avenue Extension, Kingston.

For her bridal party, the bride selected a color scheme of blue, emerald green and purple. The crepe gowns were of the princess styling. Ruffled lace accented the neckline bodices and Camelot sleeves. They wore ribbons in their hair and carried nosegays of carnations and baby's breath.

Michael Mayone of 158 Main Street, Kingston, served as best man. Ushers were Joseph Fay Jr., brother of the bride, 106 Greenkill Avenue, Kingston, and Edward Mayone, 75 Cedar Street, Kingston.

A reception was held at Tommy's Restaurant, Kingston.

Mrs. Peterman was graduated from Kingston High School and attended Ulster County Community College. Her husband, an alumnus of KHS, attended Board of Cooperative Educational Services School. He is now serving in the U.S. Army.

The couple will reside in Texas.

Coons-White Nuptials Exchanged

Atonement Lutheran Church, Market Street, Saugerties, provided the setting for the wedding of Dorinda Lee Coons and Douglas Allen White on Saturday, Oct. 6. The Rev. Richard Shemanske officiated at the wedding ceremony. Mildred Gippert provided traditional wedding selections.

The bride is the stepdaughter and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Dederick of 36 Spaulding Lane, Saugerties.

The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Brian Parham of Virginia Beach, Va. He is also the son and step-son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene White of RD 1, Box 361, Saugerties.

The bride was given in marriage by her stepfather. She wore a white satin gown of the empire styling, made by her mother. The gown featured a built-in train, bishop sleeves and French cuffs. Scalloped lace accented the bodice and beaded lace formed a panel on the front skirt. A Juliet lace cap held her veil and she carried a bouquet of spider chrysanthemums, white carnations and a red rose.

Kathleen Sinnott of Spaulding Lane, Saugerties, served as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Cindy Myer, Clermont Street, Saugerties; and Barbara Mossolino, cousin of the bride, Tappan.

For her bridal party, the bride selected a color scheme of forest green and mint green. The crepe gown, styled identically to that of the bride's, were made by the bride's mother. The attendants wore bow headpieces and carried bouquets of chrysanthemums and streamers to match their gowns.

The best man was Duane White of Saugerties. Donald Tucker, Market Street, Saugerties and Richard Downey, Main Street, Saugerties, served as ushers.

A reception was held at Cementon Sportsmen's Club.

Mrs. White is a 1973 graduate of Saugerties High School. She is employed as a secretary by F. L. Russell Corporation, Saugerties. Her husband, a 1973 alumnus of Saugerties High School, is employed by Alpha Cement Plant.

The couple will reside at 36 Second Street, Saugerties.

the Second Forty by Margaret Brookfield

A FORUM ABOUT MATURE WOMEN

Dear Margaret Brookfield: Can you settle an argument? Would you permit a 14-year-old boy to babysit for his younger sisters, age nine and 11? I say it's wrong because at this age a boy is going through so many changes that leaving him alone with the girls might subject him to temptations. My friend says I have a "sick" mind. I maintain that even "nice boys" can go wrong. Who's right?

Dear D.K.: True, "nice kids" can go wrong and do, as is obvious to anyone who follows the news. But the "nice kids" who don't go wrong — and they're in the majority — don't make newspaper headlines. No one can settle your argument without knowing the children involved, their family or their upbringing. But generally I would say the biggest problem in having a teenage brother babysit for younger sisters is the sibling squabbles that might ensue the minute the parents left.

Dear Margaret Brookfield:

I saw the letter from the lonely 50-year-old widow. May I suggest she, and others in the same predicament, contact their local Parents Without Partners organization? We have numerous activities for parents and children. Membership is open to men and women who are widowed, divorced or separated. The men do not have to have custody of their children to qualify, but they do have to have children. D.W.

Thanks for the suggestion. We're glad to publish it because it affords us the opportunity to recommend the educational, recreational and social activities of Parent Without Partners to widowed, divorced and separated parents. To join, call or write your local chapter.

Dear Margaret Brookfield:

I would like your opinion about a situation. For 15 years, I was married to a man who was charming but an absolute cad. He gambled away every cent he could get his hands on. (I supported him.) I had a close friend, who knew all about my marital problems. For years, she urged me to "get rid" of my husband. Well, I finally got a divorce. Soon, she started acting unfriendly and cool. I just learned she is dating my former husband. Doesn't she believe the advice she gave me? I feel like telling her off. Should I?

C.S.

Dear C.S.:

What's the point? Your ex-husband has probably charmed his way into your friend's affections the way he charmed you. 15 years ago. If you sound off to her now she'll think it's jealousy, and not good will, that prompts you to speak. If your ex-husband is the stinker you say he is, she will find out eventually.

Sociology of Women at Local YWCA

The YMCA, 209 Clinton Avenue, has announced a new class, Sociology of Women, to start Tuesday, November 6, at 10:30 a.m. The class will be taught by Ruth Soltanoff Jacobs, Co-ordinator of Women's Studies at New Paltz College.

The course examines the socio-psychological and structural roots of women's role in American Society. Sex role discrimination and male supremacist practices will be linked to patterns of socialization, sexuality, class and race. This six week course will also include an analysis of the origins, development and ideology of the women's movement.

Ms. Jacobs received a B.A. in history from the University of Chicago in June, 1963. She received an M.A. in South Asian and West African history in June of 1964, and was advanced to candidacy for a Ph.D. at the University of California, Berkeley, in June of 1966. Her fields of specialization were South Asian and West African history.

Throughout her undergraduate and graduate studies, Ms. Jacobs did extensive course work and research in sociology, as well as in history. At the University of Chicago, she was research assistant to sociology Professors Edward Shils and Peter Blau. At Berkeley, she was a post-graduate research historian at the Center for South Asian Studies. Among the topics she studied was the development of political, social and cultural consciousness in South India.

Ms. Jacobs has taught the following courses in the Sociology Department at New Paltz College: Introduction to Sociology, Sociology of Crime, Sociology of Women, and Contemporary Sociological Theory. Since June 1973, she has been the co-ordinator of Women's Studies at New Paltz College. She has published an article entitled "Medical Sexism: Birth, Surgery and Drugs," in Live!!, Vol. 1, Jan. Feb., 1972.

More information concerning the course may be obtained from the YWCA.

Before You Buy

Grounding Aluminum Siding

By MARGARET DANA

Two questions coming to me repeatedly from consumers have to do with the use of aluminum siding on houses and aluminum wiring in a residential wiring system. Frequently people ask if these two metallic products are durable and if they are safe.

Before you install or buy either product here are some facts to help you decide.

As to durability, there can be no doubt that aluminum siding has a long life, and avoids the maintenance costs required to care for wood siding. As to safety, in relation to possible hazards from electrical contact, this is apparently a problem often argued in industry circles, but not as yet resolved. That there can be a hazard whether from lightning or poor installation of electrical wiring in contact with the metal is apparently accepted.

But considering the large number of installations of metal siding, the National Fire Protection Association reports that the fire record still appears excellent.

However, the Underwriters' Laboratories, which tests products for public safety, is still somewhat concerned about it. They feel a fact-finding study is needed to determine if a modification is needed in the National Electrical Code and other building codes. At present UL does not accept submittals of aluminum siding for testing and listing.

The chief factor bothering everyone in working out a plan for safety in bonding and grounding the metallic parts of a building is that a wall of aluminum siding can have a variety of levels of good installation and grounding. So, as yet, no one test method or installation method has been found that will insure the same behavior of all parts of the wall.

In regard to aluminum wiring in house electrical work, there has been considerable publicity about some installations causing fires. In checking with UL I learn that the possibility of fires from excess sive heating of outlets and switches is somewhat greater when certain combinations of aluminum wire, devices and workmanship have been used. The electrical industry is developing improved products and practices to correct this problem.

But if your home — whether house, apartment or mobile home — was built before 1965 and has had no additional or replacement wiring for receptacle outlets and snap switches since then, there's not much chance aluminum wire was used. If the building was built after 1965 or has had additional wiring, since then, you should find out from the builder or electrical contractor if aluminum wire was used. But don't attempt to check this yourself. That is dangerous.

The point to keep in mind is that if the installation was properly done, there should be no trouble. But if the electric installation was not up-to-date and expert, overheating and fire could result. You need a qualified electrical contractor to tell the difference. Heavily loaded and most constantly loaded circuits could be the bad spot.

Possible trouble can be detected through switch plates that get unusually warm, or if you find a strange odor in the vicinity of the outlet. And persistent flickering of lights that are not due to too heavy drain on the amperes in your house could be a signal of bad wiring — maybe from aluminum wire badly installed. Get it checked without delay.

How to Save Money Heating Your Home

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI) — Saving on heating costs has become more vital than ever, now that federal regulations on allocating certain fuels are a fact of life.

No sooner had the Nixon Administration stepped in to control the distribution of propane and home heating oil than came an on-target consumer report giving suggestions on cutting heating costs and keeping comfortable when winter comes.

Initial tip: Keep an eye on the household thermostat when the temperatures drop. Set the thermostat no higher than 72 degrees, for once you pass this point, your heating costs and energy consumption rise significantly, says the report.

Lower the thermostat at night. Setting it back 10 degrees for eight hours will save 10 per cent or more on heating costs. When you are going away for a day or longer, lower the thermostat to 55 degrees.

Turn off heat in rooms being ventilated or which are not in use.

Close doors promptly to keep the children from running in and out unnecessarily.

If you have decorative heating covers, make sure they're not trapping heat. If radiators are near cold walls, a sheet of aluminum foil between the wall and the radiator will reflect back into the room heat that otherwise would be lost.

When painting radiators, use enamel paint for increased efficiency. Metallic or flat paints reduce efficiency by as much as 25 per cent.

Thin coatings of dust on radiators or baseboard units act as insulation and waste heat, so dust or vacuum these surfaces frequently. Remove rugs and furniture from areas where they block radiators or registers.

These other tips come from the consumer report of the New York Bowery Savings Bank, as compiled from the Mobil Oil Corp., the Gas Appliance Manufacturers Association and Consolidated Edison. The report says they apply equally to gas, electric and oil-heated homes.

Let the sun help save money. During winter daylight hours, leave windows which face south or west unshaded and let the free heat of the sunshine in.

In case of gas heating, shut off the pilot light when the heating season ends. The pilot light can consume as much as 1,440 cubic feet of gas per month.

A humidifier is a wise investment because it will keep moisture in the air, making the house more comfortable with a lower thermostat setting.

Use weather stripping to seal off cracks and openings around windows and doors and save from 10 to 30 per cent of the annual heating bill. Storm windows will cut in half the heat lost through windows.

If you have an oil furnace, burners should be adjusted at least once a year to prevent wasted fuel. Clean oil filters annually.

Check steam radiator valves for proper function. Replace non-adjustable valves with adjustable ones. Drain air or water, if present, from steam radiators to remove sediment.

Insulation can save money. Recommended are at least six inches of thermal

By CARLTON SMITH

It's heartening to learn that there are at least a few effective defenses against inflation.

Not if you're merely a consumer, we hasten to add. There isn't a great deal you can do to prevent inflation from gnawing the corners off your dollar bills, when you're on the buying end of an inflationary spiral.

But when you're a seller . . . well, that's quite a different story. There is LIFO, for example — a magical device which the merchant or manufacturer can use to make his profits look lower. That, of course, can justify price increases and at the same time result in lower income taxes.

A knowledge of how LIFO works can be quite instructive to consumers who keep wondering how prices can keep leaping forward like kangaroos, despite price freezes, price controls, cost of living councils and the like.

One of the "Big Eight" national accounting firms recently recommended that its clients consider using LIFO — which is a method of valuing inventories, "in a period of rising prices, since it increases the cost of sales (on paper) and, therefore, reduces profits" — again, just on paper.

Thus a company (a) can show that its profits are so low that it needs a price increase, and (b) by reporting lower profits, it pays less income tax.

Not making less profit. Only reporting less. As the accounting firm explains: "Of course, using LIFO does not change the true economic situation of the company. It merely changes the method of reporting profits on sales."

You find such sleight-of-hand difficult to understand? It's not, at all. Let's say you've sold a certain amount of merchandise and want the figure on your profit.

That depends, of course, on how much the merchandise cost you — and that, in turn, can depend on which shelf you took it off of.

LIFO, which stands for "last in, first out," means you assume that the last piece of merchandise put on the shelves is the first one you take off and sell. (The alternative method is FIFO, or "first in, first out.")

Whether first is first or last is first, can make quite a difference, as we shall now see.

You sell widgets. On Jan. 1 you had 100 on the shelves. They cost you $1 each. But you bought another 50 at $1.20 each, and in June another 50 at $1.50.

You are selling your widgets for $2 each, and by the end of June, you've sold 100 — $200 worth. Now, which 100 widgets did you sell?

ABOUT ANTIQUES

Amelung Glass

When John Frederick Amelung's glasshouse failed in 1795, thus ended one German's romantic attempt to make glass in America for Americans. Today his name is synonymous with artistic early American glass.

The promoter of a scheme to erect and conduct a glasshouse in America, Amelung, a native of Bremen, Germany, imported 82 Bohemian and German glassmen to America and built a factory on the Potomac River near Frederick, Maryland. They named the factory village New Bremen.

During the brief period between 1794 and 1794, the Amelung Glassworks produced decanters, bottles, flasks, drinking glasses, and general ware in transparent, white, and colored free-blown and mold-blown designs. Styles were typically European and high-quality copper-wheel engraving can be found on some pieces. Available ingredients, however, were unlike those to which Amelung's craftsmen were used to and much of the clear glass had very slight color casts — an embarrassment for the glassmaker but welcome to the contemporary collector as a means of identification. Greenish, amethystine, gray, and smoky tones are characteristic. Some presentation pieces in the form of cut and engraved covered goblets, called pokals, were made.

Amelung lived far beyond his means and the factory was constantly in financial trouble. This, along with the fact that the cost of production was higher than competitive Bristol Glass landed on the docks of Baltimore, led to the demise of the New Bremen Amelung Glass.

Collectors of early American glass are especially interested in pieces from the Amelung factory. Little is available now, but some undoubtedly remains undiscovered. The short rise and fall of the enterprise gathers sympathy from some and the reasons for failure provokes criticism from others. Whatever the case, it should be remembered that the fine glassmen who pioneered with John Frederick Amelung dispersed and proved to be invaluable links in the chain that built America's successful glass industry.

Consumer Question-Box

By MARGARET DANA

Q: As everybody knows, the cost of housing has gone up to the skies. But we have decided we will go ahead this year and try to find one we can afford. We would like a word of advice. What is the recommended amount we can afford, in relation to our income, which is about $15,000 a year.

A: Advice varies, but generally financial experts suggest you can afford a house priced around two or two and a half times your income. That would mean a top figure from you of about $45,000.

But A.M. Watkins, in his very practical book, "How to Avoid the 10 Biggest Home-Buying Traps" (Hawthorne Books) says: "But that rule can be way off. It overlooks the fact that property taxes can be a few hundred dollars a year for one house but two or three times that for another house with the same price. It also makes no allowance for heating, which can run $30 a month in the North and practically nothing for a similar house in the South."

So, besides the price, compare all other costs to see what you can afford.

Q: Could you please tell me if once a Teflon-lined pot or pan is scratched, or the Teflon is coming off, is it still safe to use? Some people think it isn't.

A: Intensive investigation of Teflon lining in cookware has been made repeatedly by qualified scientists, here and abroad. The conclusion is that Teflon can create no harm, whether scratched or worn or new.

Q: I am a 17-year-old senior in high school and I'm very interested in a career as a telephone operator. But I don't know of any procedure for going about this. Could you please give me some information about doing this?

A: Telephone companies usually are glad to talk with young people who think of making any form of the industry a career. In your phone book you will find a page listing different departments of the phone company, and if a personnel office is listed telephone that number and ask for information. If there is no personnel office listed, you might call the business office, as listed, and ask how to reach the employment office.

In some areas telephone staff people give talks about the telephone to local audiences, and often discuss careers in that business. Your high-school counselor also should have on hand some information to help.

Q: I heard recently of a child being hurt playing with an electrical extension cord that had been left plugged into an outlet. Is there any way people could be warned to keep children away from such cords and cover up the outlets when not in actual use?

A: Beginning last January new safety features were to begin appearing on household extension cords — for the very reason you report. The new requirements provide for protective devices for each extension cord to cover up the outlets on the cord not being used, and maximum of three outlets to a cord; the protective devices cannot be pulled out easily by a child; and there must be a warning statement on either the cord or the package that reads: "Caution: Avoid hazards. Keep children away. Fully insert plugs. Cover unused outlets. Unplug when not in use."

Margaret Dana welcomes opinions and questions on buying and will use them in her column as rapidly as research and space permit.

Personal Finance

Camouflaged Profits Hurt Us Stitch Early for Christmas

If you decide that you sold the 100 you had in January (those that were "first in"), they cost $100. Profit: $100.

But if you sold those you bought in March and June, they cost you $135. Profit: only $65.

Thus, you are free to utter the magic word "LIFO" and a two-fold blessing ensues. You pay tax on a profit of only $65, not $100. And you can take your books to the cost of Living Council and sob: "See how little money I'm making! I need a price increase or my children will starve."

You have, of course, the same amount of money in the till either way, LIFO or FIFO. As the accountants remind us, using LIFO "does not change the true economic situation of the company . . . (merely) the method of reporting profits."

Pure magic. Not just imaginative arithmetic; more like pure magic.

It seems to work so well, in fact, that we urge consumers be allowed to choose between FIFO and LIFO. Then, when you had to BUY a widget, you could say:

"Two dollars? Very well. I shall pay you in FIFO dollars — the first that went into my savings account back in 1966."

"They are now worth 73 cents each. I therefore hand you this $1.46, which means that you are receiving two FIFO dollars in payment for your widget. And remember, sir, that the true economic situation has not changed."

Nothing wrong with that, is there? Fair is fair.

You Can Save Money by Joining a Food Co-op

By JOHN SHUTTLEWORTH
Despite daily assurance that "the worst is over" and "we're okay now" from top government officials . . . the average citizen of this country knows all too well that inflation has severely crippled his or her buying power. Especially at the supermarket. Many of us have more or less humbly accepted the fact. Others, however, are fighting back vigorously . . . and one of the most effective weapons against rising prices is the consumers' co-op, or group buying organization.

Food co-ops are springing up all over the United States and Canada and the better ones sometimes offer impressive savings to their members. Katie Kelly recently reported in "New York" magazine that one of the organizations in that city was selling "mountains of fresh mushrooms . . . for 84 cents a pound, as opposed to $1.97 in the neighborhood markets."

Now please don't rush out to join or set up a food co-op because you expect the operation to offer you such fantastic buys on every item it handles.

THE MOTHER EARTH NEWS

... it tells you how

As Katie noted after comparison shopping several of the organizations in New York City, "The savings range from awe-inspiring . . . to hardly worth the effort." Produce is roughly 50 per cent less expensive at a co-op but most of the operations do well to shave three or four cents off the price of a quart of milk.

Well-Managed Co-op
According to Art Danforth, secretary-treasurer of the Cooperative League of the U.S.A., a well-managed co-op can save its members about 20 per cent on their weekly food bill. I think he's right. I've talked to a number of officers of such organizations and I've found that greater economies are realized only when the roster of a co-op makes a radical change in its eating habits.

You can deduct just so much markup on a commercially baked loaf of bread or a box of brand name cereal, in other words, before you find yourself selling the product to your customers at exactly the wholesale price you paid for it. As long as your co-op's members insist on buying pre-packaged edibles, then, they'll be able to save up to that amount and no more.

It's only the folks who purchase whole grain in bulk and then grind it to make their own bread and cereal who eventually get to brag about monster 70 per cent cuts in their weekly food bills.

Even if your family firmly intends to eat just what they've been eating in the past, however, joining a food co-op can be worthwhile. A 20 per cent saving on cost is the same as making four dollars do the work of every five you're now spending on edibles . . . and that's enough to more than offset the inflation predicted for this coming year.

No Free Lunch
There "ain't no free lunch" in this world, though, so don't expect that 20 per cent to fall into your lap from someplace in the sky. It takes an initial investment, energy, planning, and work to make a buying club go and you should join or organize one of the operations with your eyes open.

For instance: The Wild Rice Co-op in New York City has 319 members. Each was charged a $10 sign-up fee plus a $5 "spoilage" charge to cover the extra expenses incurred when someone places an order and then fails to pick it up.

Individual members must donate six hours of work to the co-op every quarter and there's a 15 per cent surcharge tacked on to whatever they buy (to pay the rent, heat, light and water bills for the loft in which Wild Rice is headquartered).

In return, the co-op members can purchase organic food at what amounts to slightly more than wholesale cost. When a nearby health food store was selling mung beans and granola for 98 and 79 cents a pound, for example, Wild Rice offered the same items for only 38 and 55 cents, respectively, a pound. The co-op was also pricing a two-pound bag of stone-ground barley flour at 46 cents (compared to 90 cents "outside") and organically raised sirloin at $1.40 a pound (while supermarkets were charging $1.19 to $1.69 for non-organic sirloin).

Is it worth it? In the case of Wild Rice, are the savings quoted above worth the initial deposits and two hours of work every month? Three hundred nineteen families seem to think so, but you'll have to answer the question for yourself.

(While you're thinking about that "two hours of work every month," though, mentally compare it to the time you now spend going from store to store in search of bargains, the hours you invest every month in the pushing of a grocery cart and the time you're kept waiting in supermarket checkout lines.)

If you think you'd like to know more about organizing and operating a food co-op, one of the best sources of information is the Cooperative League of the U.S.A., 456 Frontage Road, Northfield, Ill. 60093. Write the association and ask for its free listing of pamphlets on the subject.

Joining a co-op is not exactly everyone's cup of tea . . . but with each new hike in the cost of living, membership in a buying club does become just that much more attractive.

For more complete information on exactly how to set up and run a food co-op, send 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed long envelope to THE MOTHER EARTH NEWS, in care of this paper. Ask for Reprint No. 153, "How To Make a Co-op Work." (Released by The Register and Tribune Syndicate, 1973)

A Good Caddie Is Vital When You Use an Iron

By HELOISE
Dear Heloise:
So many times as I've done my ironing, I have wondered where to hang my clothes.

I've wished I had an ironing caddy but, when it comes to purchasing one, I considered all the time it would be stored versus the small amount of time it would be used.

Yesterday as I ironed, my 2-year-old was assisting (?) with the freshly ironed clothes. Suddenly I had one of those famous brainstorms! I ran downstairs and found a round spring-tension cafe curtain rod.

This rod was adjusted to my doorway and hung high. There I was — all set for someplace to hang those clothes! After I finished ironing, how very compactly it was stored!

These rods can be purchased in most curtain departments for about a dollar.

One cup sliced onions
One green pepper strip
One tablespoon brown sugar
One-half teaspoon salt
One tablespoon original Worcestershire sauce
Two tablespoons cornstarch

In a large skillet heat oil. Add garlic and saute five minutes. Add steak and brown five minutes on each side. Dissolve bouillon cube in water. Add to steak. Bring to boiling point. Reduce heat. Cover and simmer 30 minutes

Stitch Early for Christmas

By JOANNE SCHREIBER
The best Christmas gifts are those you make yourself. Handmade gifts seldom wind up in next fall's tag sales; instead, they glow more warmly with each passing year.

Plenty of advance planning is necessary for those who intend to sew up their gift lists this year. And the best planning help ever is available exclusively to the readers of this newspaper, with the brand-new edition of Album, the Needlework Magazine for Fall and Winter, 1973.

This handy at-home catalog is jam-packed with lovely patterns you can order, plus all sorts of complete directions for gifts to make right away. For knitters and crocheters, there are elegant fashions, for capes, ponchos, coats and jackets, dresses and sweaters for all members of the family, including the dog.

If you are working on the handcrafts table for the church bazaar, you'll find loads of new ideas for aprons, stuffed toys and dolls, embroidered linens and towels and Christmas ornaments including a Santa sock doll and a Christmas tree skirt with appliqued angels.

Is needlepoint your big thing? There are many new needlepoint patterns in modern geometrics and traditional florals, to turn into rugs, pillows or framed wall hangings.

You may not have time to make a beautiful quilt for Christmas, but you can make a couple of squares and gift-wrap them with a promise, choosing from the patchwork and applique designs in the album; or you can crochet a snugly afghan for chilly winter evenings.

And, of course, there are the free in-the-book patterns, plus a coupon entitling you to yet another free mail-order pattern. You'll find a fluffy teddy bear, a crocheted Pekingese, a knitted Dachshund, a knit outfit for a teenage boy doll, a crocheted rug, a lacy tablecloth, crocheted tree decorations, a girl's jacket, a sweater, a pair of winter hats and a Chanel-type tweed suit.

All included with the cost of the book!

It's not a minute too soon to start planning your Christmas gifts — and how wonderful you'll feel during the hectic last week to know that all your lovely handmade presents are finished and wrapped — because you started in time!

Testimonial for Rabbi Schectman

Israel Bond Dinner Wednesday

KINGSTON Noted entertainer Joey Russell will appear at the Kingston Israel Bond dinner next Wednesday night, Nov. 7, at Congregation Ahavath Israel.

The dinner will serve as a testimonial for Rabbi Harry Z. Schectman in recognition of his outstanding achievement on behalf of the Jewish community and the cause of Israel and its economic development.

The Nov. 7 dinner program will begin at 6 p.m. and will focus attention on the Kingston Jewish community's role in supporting Israel during this critical time in her history.

Herman G. Rafalowsky, chairman of the Kingston Israel Bond Committee, in reflecting on the testimonial aspect of the dinner said:

"Rabbi Schectman has earned respect in the congregation and in the community. He plays a dynamic role in the community's Israel Bond Campaign and is engaged in numerous other endeavors that help advance the growth and progress of Judaism and his community."

The announcement that Russell will be on hand to entertain the Israel Bond diners assures the expected big turnout of an entertaining night as well.

Russell has starred in numerous night clubs and hotels throughout the country, has appeared in stage shows with such leading luminaries of the entertainment world as Victor Borge and Arthur Godfrey.

An acknowledged master of today's fast-paced comedy routines, Russell also is recognized as an accomplished vocalist. He offers a combined repertoire of wit and music to achieve an outstanding performance which has been hailed by critics and the public alike.

Russell has performed at such famous entertainment locales as Grossinger's in the Catskills, the swank St. Moritz in New York, the Sheraton-Cadillac Hotel in Detroit and the Chelsea Hotel, Atlantic City, N.J.

Chairman Rafalowsky, meanwhile, points to the State of Israel Bond Issue as the central source of investment capital for Israel's historic programs of economic development and immigrant absorption.

"Proceeds derived from the sale of Israel Bonds are making possible the establishment of new job opportunities for immigrants, the growth of industry and agriculture, the expansion of irrigation, the construction of housing, roads, harbors and railways, the increase of electric power, the exploitation of natural resources and the growth and production of export goods to strengthen Israel's balance of trade," the chairman added.

And, of course, Rafalowsky said, "the present crisis moreso underlines the importance of the Israel Bond drive." He said the recent action to assume responsibility for 100 per cent of the current Development Budget of $642 million was taken after the National Campaign Cabinet heard a detailed report by the Israeli finance minister on the heavy cost of the war with the Arab nations which began Oct. 6, especially the enormous strain which it has placed on the nation's economy.

Full information concerning the Israel Bond drive is available at the Israel Bond Office, 96 Maiden Lane.

Seminar on Mental Health Careers

By PATRICIA W. VAN NESS

More than 100 students attended a seminar on Careers in Mental Health sponsored by the Ulster County Association for Mental Health in cooperation with the Department of Education and the Office of Career Planning and Placement at the State University College at New Paltz Oct. 24.

Chairing the meeting was Miss May Evans, president of the Ulster County Association for Mental Health. The purpose was to acquaint students with the various kinds of mental health careers that are available and to make it possible for them to acquire information from and ask questions of persons in these fields.

The field of Rehabilitation was described by Gerald Poisman, who for the past six years has been senior rehabilitation counselor of the Ulster County Project of the New York State Office of Vocational Rehabilitation. He pointed out that rehabilitation is a broad subject with the main interest and emphasis being concern for taking an individual with a vocational handicap and making it possible for him to find and keep a job, thus becoming an independent person and a taxpayer. They act as supervisor and coordinator of such services as psychiatrists, physicians, psychologists, social workers, physical therapists, audiologists, speech therapists, to name a few, who determine and correct the disability, give remedial and on-the-job training, and place the person in a job.

George Bouklos, supervisor of special education for the Dutchess County BOCES, remarked that in special education, there is no "Planned Program" — it depends on the potential of the student.

Counseling, John Van Ness, assistant to the Dean of Students at the State University College at New Paltz pointed out, describes everything from an investment counselor helping you decide what stocks to buy to depth therapy with a psychiatrist.

Students later spoke with the speakers and the resource people in the various areas, whom Miss Evans introduced: Dr. Frederic W. Holcomb Jr., medical director IBM, Kingston; Charlotte Peck, clinical director, Children's Rehabilitation Center, Kingston; Amos Sunshine, formerly director of Volunteer Services, State Correctional Institution, Napanoch; Dr. Milton Chasin, Developmental Visions Oriented Optometrist, Kingston; Frieda Dingee, formerly director of Multi-Media Project, Kingston City Schools; Dorothy Gribbsby, social worker, Benedictine Hospital, Kingston; Veronica Keller, Community Mental Health Nurse for Ulster County, Hudson River State Hospital; Michael K. Wood, administrative director, Ulster County Drug Commission.

Also present were Dr. Dorothy Hayes, course coordinator for the three-credit Education Studies Course — 494 — Student Mental Health Work Program, which this fall placed 53 students in 13 community agencies, and Ms. Phyllis Crawford, coordinator for these field placements. As a result of Ms. Crawford's work over the past three years, the State University College at New Paltz has now hired her full-time to review, evaluate and coordinate all student off-campus field placements and to recommend future policy and development.

Bible Serves as Handbook for Israeli Troop Orientation

By LOUIS CASSELS

United Press International Israel is the only nation on earth whose army can use the Bible as a handbook in troop orientation.

"Orientation" is a military euphemism for pep talks designed to build and maintain soldiers' morale. Since much of the Old Testament is devoted to the history of wars which Israel fought long ago in its never-ending struggle for survival against hostile neighbors, there are numerous passages of Scripture which are readily applicable to the contemporary situation.

When the great King David returned victorious from battle, the Book of Chronicles reports, the people greeted him with the cry:

"God is your ally!" At a time when Israel was gravely menaced by the mighty Babylonian empire, the prophet Isaiah proclaimed:

"I am confident and unafraid: 'For the Lord is my refuge and defense

"And has shown Himself to be my deliverer." Isaiah assured the Israelites of his time that "The Lord of Hosts, like a bird hovering over its young, will be a shield over Jerusalem."

And he warned Israel's attackers:

"When you cease to destroy, you will be destroyed." The most eloquent affirmations of God's protective concern for Israel are found in the compendium of ancient Hebrew poetry known as the Psalms. Thus the 46th Psalm declares:

"The Lord will not abandon his people, nor forsake his chosen nation."

Of course, there have been many dark hours in Israel's long history when it seemed that the Lord had turned His back on His "chosen nation." Then Hebrew poets and prophets would storm heaven with prayers.

"Bestir Thyself, Lord. Why dost Thou sleep? . . . We sink down to the dust. Arise, come to our help."

But the dominant tone of the Psalms is trust. Over and over, the poets recall times past when things looked bleak for Israel, but God came to its rescue.

"If the Lord had not been on our side when they assailed us, they would have swallowed us alive."

That the Psalms actually do serve to uphold morale in the Israeli army was made clear recently to an American Christian who sent a message of concern to an old friend who now is an Israeli general. The general, who like most Israelis is a Bible scholar, sent this brief reply:

"We are not afraid. Psalm 121:4 says: 'Behold, He who keeps Israel, will neither slumber nor sleep.'"

Regina Coeli Program, Project

A special program with question and answer format will be presented by the Regina Coeli School Association 8 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 6 at the school hall, Hyde Park.

Speaker will be Rev. James Connolly, former Archdiocesan director of religious education and director of the pastoral life conference. A professor of liturgy and sacramental theology, St. Joseph's Seminary, he was responsible for developing Religious Education in the Archdiocese of New York directive designed to provide parishes and schools with direction for their programs of Religious Education.

Father Connolly chose to accept questions rather than give a lecture so that he may clarify "new" doctrine practices, ethics and other areas of concern to lay people.

Questions may be submitted prior to the program by sending them to Regina Coeli Parish or by dropping them in a box to be available that evening. It is not necessary to sign names.

Meanwhile, the Regina Coeli School is in the midst of a special collection drive aimed at obtaining greatly needed audio-visual equipment, according to Sister Barbara, principal.

The program, Labels for Education, is sponsored by Campbell Soup Company and offered to elementary schools, both private and public.

"Between now and Dec. 8 we hope to collect enough Campbells Soup Labels to earn an automatic sound filmstrip projector," she said. "Our students are saving their labels and they would appreciate it if friends of the school would do the same."

Any label counts in the drive. More than 70 equipment items are being offered. Sister Barbara expressed confidence that the children and their friends will exceed their target of 100,000 labels.

Grow Trees From Seed

By GEORGE ABRAHAM

GROW TREES FROM SEEDS? This year's crop of seeds on most ornamental trees is quite heavy. Is it possible to start some trees from the seed? No reason why you can't. That's how Mother Nature does it each fall. So copy her trick. First, keep in mind that some tree seeds must be exposed to a cold treatment. That is, they need the winter to break their internal dormancy. If seed is sown outdoors in a mixture of sand and peat, moss and left there all winter the exposure is just what the seed needs. This treatment is called "stratification" and it comes with fall sowing. You can get the same effect by keeping the seed in the refrigerator. A few tree seeds which need the cold treatment include birches, buckeyes, ash, cherries, American Chestnut, Douglas Fir, hemlocks, hornbeam, juniper, mulberries, some oaks, magnolias, some spruces, sweetgum, sycamores, walnuts and many others. If by chance you can't get these tree seeds planted outdoors, or "stratified" over winter, you can put the seeds in the deep freeze compartment for a week or two before planting them in the spring. Start gathering your seeds as soon as they are ripe, which is when they start falling off the tree. In case you're wondering about seeds of peach, apple and other fruit trees, remember they rarely produce good fruit. You shouldn't plant them unless you plan on budding or grafting "good" stock on them. If you want to plant walnuts, chestnuts and other nuts now better use a berry or pop can, open end down. Silt the top of the can and pry the sharp edges upward slightly so that the little seedling can get out but the squirrels can't get in. Be sure to bury the nut, then set the can over it. Incidentally, most or many acorns can be planted in the class room or kitchen window now, without giving them any particular treatment. This makes a good project for your children. FREE: Want a good bulletin on growing perennials? Send me a self-addressed stamped envelope for our copy HOW TO GROW PERENNIALS. Q. — There are several fence posts near my house that I want to move to new locations. The other day I tried to remove one and found it almost an impossible job. After struggling with it for half an hour, I hadn't gotten any further than loosening it a bit. I might get it out eventually, but I hate to think of going through the same trouble with all the other posts. Is there some special way of getting out such posts?

A. — Try this: dig around the post to the depth of a spade. Wiggle the post to loosen it. Hose water around it and place a board on the ground next to it. Place your automobile jack on the board. Wrap a stout welded chain around the post and over the jack lifter. Hoist away and the post will come out of the ground.

Q. — You recently told someone about removing calcimine with warm water and a detergent. Years ago I had to take the calcimine off all the ceilings in an old house I had bought. I found that the best way to do so was to add one cup of cider vinegar to a bucket of clear warm water and go ahead and wash. Why don't you tell your readers about this method?
A. — Okay and thanks.

Q. — I intend to paint the outside of my house soon. I have already bought the paint. It says on the can that only one coat is needed, but a neighbor tells me that I will need two coats because I am painting the house white and the present color is yellow. Can you tell me whether two coats will be needed?
A. — Your neighbor is correct in the assumption that two coats are sometimes needed when applying a lighter color than the previous color. But sometimes this is not so, since the kind of paint and the condition of the surface are also factors. The only way you will know for sure is to put on a single coat and determine whether it has covered sufficiently.

Q. — In a house I am having built soon, I am considering using cedar shingles on the roof. I suppose they are a fire hazard of sorts. Are they legal?

A. — The codes vary so much, even in adjoining communities, that you'll have to ask your architect or builder. Glass-reinforced asbestos paper is used with cedar shingles to produce an acceptable fire resistance. Also, there is a type of gypsum board called fire-block board which is used as underlayment with the prime purpose of retarding the spread of fire. Both of these products have passed rigid tests.

Economy and Good Looks

By JACK McLENEY

PROVIDENCE, R.I. The suburban type bungalow design has long held favor in the one-story home field, and gains prestige with those that turn away from two-level living. Today's feature, called the "Putnam," is a two bedroom dwelling that strikes a receptive note from the standpoint of economy, good looks and comfort.

design contains an 11 x 16 foot master bedroom with walk-in closet and a smaller bedroom is located at the rear of the house.

The exterior is finished with regular wood shingles all around and the windows are all stock items available at any lumber yard. The "Putnam" design measures 37 feet at the front and has a depth of 28 feet. The floor plan contains 1,036 square feet of living space. Complete building blueprints are available at moderate cost by using the accompanying coupon.

Swissair and Skiers

NEW YORK Swissair is inviting skiers to join their Alpine Society, a ski club for people who aren't looking for a ski club but for the special attention that turns a wonderful vacation into the ultimate vacation.

Alpine Society members who visit any of the four leading resorts—Davos Diablerets and St. Moritz in Switzerland, and Zurs in Austria — will get special membership privileges, including a ski-lift tickets, a local host who will help orient the vacationer in the resort town, invitations to local entertainment and sports events, discounts at selected shops and special transportation from Zurich or Geneva airport directly to the hotel, where chocolate, flowers and a welcome drink will be waiting. When a skier joins the Swissair Alpine Society, he receives a kit consisting of custom boot carrier, all-wool ski sweater, copy of "Guide to Skiing the Alps," subscription to the organization's four-times-a-season publication, tape cassette of Alpine music, travel literature and membership card entitling him to a ski-lift pass and other privileges listed above when he takes a ski vacation in any of the four Alpine Society resorts. In addition, members may purchase private-label skis made by a leading Swiss manufacturer for half of the retail price.

Alpine Society vacations begin at $169, plus seven-eighths GIT airfare, for seven nights in a deluxe or first-class hotel, breakfast and dinner, tips, taxes and the additional membership benefits. All rooms have private bath; rates are based on two in a room. In Davos, Alpine Society members stay at the Belvedere or the Fluela; in Les Diablerets at the Grand, the Auberge de la Poste or Les Lilas; in St. Moritz at the Schweizerhof or the Monopol; and in Zurs at the Zurscherhof or the Alpenhof. When a member books a vacation in any of the four resorts, the Alpine Society sends him bonuses, including a leather passport case.

Swissair Alpine Society membership is $25 a year. Additional family members may join for $15 each for membership card and all privileges, but excluding a membership kit. Full details are available from your local travel agent.

Senate May Outlaw Hobby Forgeries

By MORT REED

Legal counterfeiting has plagued the hobby industry for even been known to command thousands in the hobby industry; numismatic items — coins, tokens, medals, wooden and paper money, script, legal documents etc., and political items such as campaign material, political buttons and souvenirs.

The new bill will make it impossible to distinguish from the original. Some copies have been known to command thousands in the hobby industry; numismatic items — coins, tokens, medals, wooden and paper money, script, legal documents etc., and political items such as campaign material, political buttons and souvenirs.

The new bill will make it mandatory that all reproductions be clearly labeled as to date of production.

Regarding coins, the bill specifies that the manufacture in the United States, or importation of any imitation of a numismatic item which is not plainly and permanently marked "CPY," is unlawful and is unfair or deceptive act (under) the Federal Trade Commission Act." Enforcement of the law is left to the Federal Trade Commission.

The legislators' intentions are good, but about all this bill will do is drive the manufacturers of such material underground for the next few years. The only way the American lobbyist can hope to win is through his own diligence. The law is there and the penalties are there. All we have to do is see to it that every questionable case is brought to the attention of the Federal Trade Commission.

Botswana Stamps Honor Dr. Livingstone

By SYD KRONISH
AP Newsfeatures

Dr. David Livingstone, the celebrated explorer and missionary who was responsible for opening huge areas of Africa to civilization, is honored on two new stamps by Botswana. The stamps commemorate the 100th anniversary of Livingstone's death. Both adhesives are inscribed "Centenary of the Death of Livingstone — 1873-1973."

Many books and even a motion picture have delved into the life of Livingstone, his quest for the source of the Nile and his meeting with Henry M. Stanley after being out of touch with the world for three years. Some observers have claimed that Livingstone was never lost and Stanley's reports of finding him were blown up out of proportion.

Nevertheless, Dr. Livingstone is known throughout the world and the new stamps from Botswana continue his fame via the hobby of stamp collecting.

Speaking of collectors, if you belong to a stamp club and wish to have a beautiful selection of stamp frames for displays or exhibitions, you can do so at no cost.

The World Wide Philatelic Agency is making available displays of such countries as West Germany, France, New Zealand, Indonesia, Republic of China, Tunisia and Israel. Most of the frames measure 3 by 4 feet. All are acetate covered and light enough to be leaned or tied against a pillar.

Requests should be made in writing, well in advance of the date desired, to the World Wide Philatelic Agency, 116 W. 32nd St., New York, N.Y. 10001.

Austria's new stamp commemorating the centenary of the birth of opera star Leo Slezak will look very familiar to many Americans. The stamp bears a portrait of Slezak who appeared on many stages throughout the world. But the picture will remind those who see it of Slezak's son, Walter, noted actor in American films.

The elder Slezak gained fame not only as a magnificent tenor but also as a writer and a philatelist.

The 4-schilling stamp has a drawing of the actor's mask in

If butterflies are free, then the new government of Lesotho is glad to publicize its myriad varieties of the species at no cost. Seven butterflies of Lesotho are featured on a new series of stamps from that country.

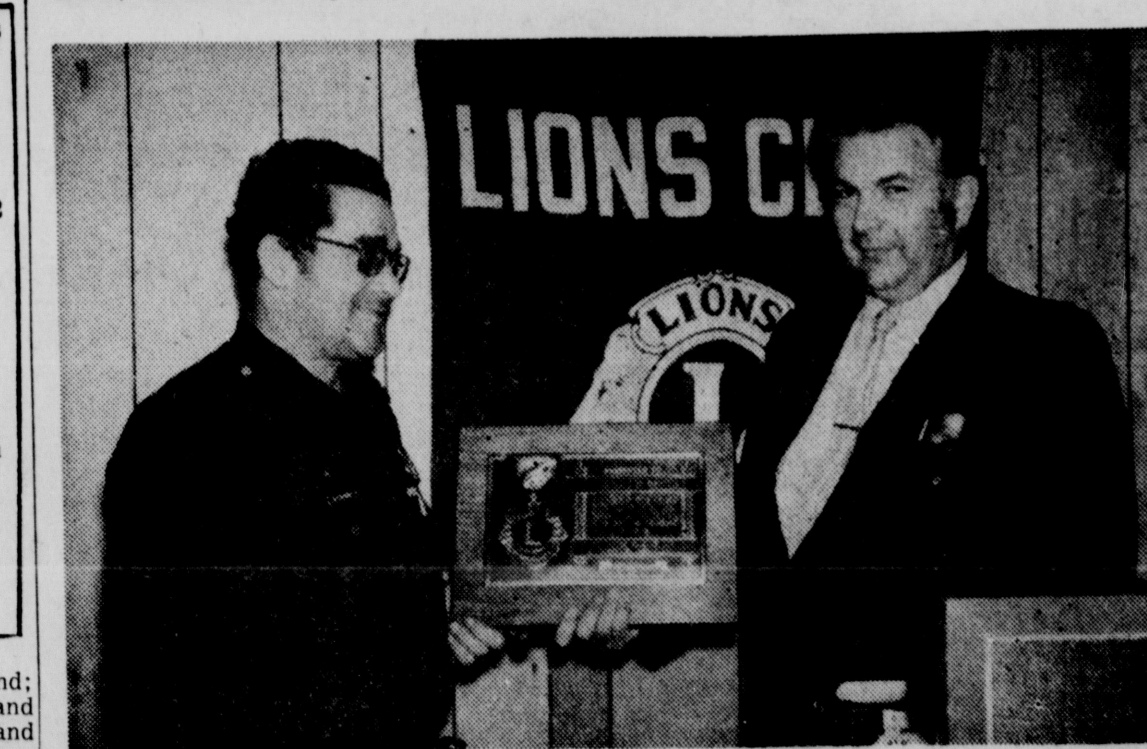

The 4-cents shows the Mountain Beauty, 5-cents Christmas Butterfly, 10-cents Painted Lady, 15-cents Yellow Pansy, 20-cents Blue Pansy, 25-cents African Monarch and the 30-cents Orange Tip.

Thus, stamp collectors can become butterfly collectors just for the price of the stamps, which are available at your local dealer.

Pictorially Speaking

COUNTY PARK PROJECT—Vocational training students at the Board of Cooperative Educational Services in Kingston recently completed the construction of 15 picnic tables for the new county park at St. George's Camp. Inspecting the work are (L) Robert C. Randall, Manpower Council administrator; Michael Aronica, director of BOCES vocational education; County Legislator S. Robert Kelder (R-Dist. 2), chairman of the Recreation Committee and Allen Rowe, instructor of carpentry.

DISTINGUISHED SERVICE—Patrolman Richard Scherer (L) of the Kingston Police Department receives a plaque from Ellsworth Johnson, president of the Kingston Lions Club, "in appreciation and recognition" of Scherer's "distinguished service, loyalty and devotion to the objectives and furtherance of Lionism." Patrolman Scherer, in working with the Ulster County 4-H and the Kingston Lions Club, has presented a bicycle safety program titled "Stanley the Talking Bike" to over 11,000 Ulster County grammar school children in recent years.

Timely Quotes

The people of all countries are interested not in military victories but in peace and security, in respect for the rights and hopes of all nationalities, in tolerance and in freedom.

—Soviet Physicist Andrei Sakharov in an interview with a Lebanese correspondent on the Mideast war.

We think the man who could solve the Vietnam war, the man who could have settled the peace all over the world, can easily play a good role in settling and having peace in our area of the Middle East.

—Omar Saqqaf, Saudi Arabian foreign minister, after meeting with President Nixon at the White House.

Bridge

Falsecard Topples Big Contract

By Oswald &amp; James Jacoby

The most effective bluff in poker is when the bluffer has misread his hand and doesn't know that he is bluffing. The same principle applies at bridge. If a player doesn't know that he is false-carding, the false card is very likely to succeed.

South would have been better advised to let his partner play in six clubs, but South suffered from that form of bridge-player's astigmatism that completely blinds the victim to the possible advantage of being dummy.

Playing at six clubs, North would use the well-known safety play of playing his ace of trumps to see if an honor might drop. One would drop and there would be no further problems.

Playing at six notrump South needed to bring in that club suit. He won the diamond lead, led a club and finesseed dummy's queen. If East had won with the king, South might have tried a second finesse or he might have played the ace next and dropped the jack.

We'll never know because East dropped the jack. It became obvious to South that West still held king and one club. He returned to his hand; took a second club finesse and watched the whole hand collapse.

Did East know what he was doing? He claimed that he did when everyone around congratulated him, and since East is an old friend we will join in the accolades.

The Catskill Evening Line freight steamer "Storm King" that passed Captain Benson when he was a youth and got lost in the fog while duck hunting. The freight steamers got relatively little notice from the public but served their owners well. The "Storm King" carried freight of all kinds to up river landings and was particularly noted for her large cargos of fruit during the fall months from landings such as Germantown and Cheviot.

Lost in the Fog

By CAPT. WILLIAM O. BENSON.

Now that the early morning fogs of autumn and the duck hunting season are both with us, I recall an incident in my youth when I went duck hunting and got lost in the fog.

One time in my late teens in October 1927, I went down to the flats at Sleightsburgh to hunt ducks. When I got down on the shore to get my duck boat it was about 3:30 a.m., still very dark and with a heavy autumn fog. I could hear ducks quacking out around the old Rondout lighthouse, which still stood along the south dike of Rondout Creek quite a ways in from the present Creek entrance.

I started out over the flats planning to follow the shore and then follow the dried up purple loose leaf weeds to the area near the old lighthouse station. However, on my way out somehow or other I got a little too smart for my own good and lost sight of the shore line. It seemed that no matter in which direction I thought I rowed, I couldn't find the shore. Even the ducks stopped quacking.

I kept on rowing, figuring I had to end up some place. In the distance, I could hear some steamboat blowing its whistle periodically with one long blast. I would stop and listen, thinking I would hear something on shore. There wasn't a sound through the murk except that steamboat whistle which kept getting closer and closer. Obviously, I had rowed out into the middle of the river and was either in or near the channel.

Shortly, I began to hear the thump, thump, thump — thump, thump, thump of the steamboat's paddle wheels. I realized it was one of the Albany night boats. I wasn't sure as to just what I should do for I certainly didn't relish the thought of getting run down by the Albany night liner in the middle of the fog enshrouded

Hudson. So I fired my shotgun into the air so I would have an empty shell to blow like a whistle. When I fired my gun, I could hear the thumping of the paddle wheels slow right down.

I suppose the pilots of the steamboat knew they were close to something, but didn't know what. I kept blowing on my empty shell, and by the sound of the steamer's whistle I knew they were going by me. In a few moments I could feel the steamer's waves going by me, so I knew the danger of getting run down was past. The fog was so thick I didn't even see the vessel's lights.

I still didn't know which way to go, so I just sat still and drifted with the tide. After a while I could hear another steamboat blowing her fog signal. By the sound of her whistle, I recognized her as the freight steamer "Storm King" of the Catskill Evening Line. Her whistle, however, was quite a ways off so I knew there was no danger. About five minutes later, her little swells passed by me and I could hear both boats getting further away as they went on up river.

After daylight broke I was still drifting with the ebb tide. Finally, I drifted into shore alongside the remains of the old towboat "Norwich," which was being broken up at lower Port Ewen. That incident taught me a lesson — never try to go out in a fog without a compass. It can be a very lonely and unnerving experience.

Some years later in October of the middle 1930's, I was pilot on the tugboat "Lion" of the Cornell Steamboat Company and coming down the upper Hudson with a good sized tow. It set in foggy at New Baltimore and the fog continued heavy all the way to Athens.

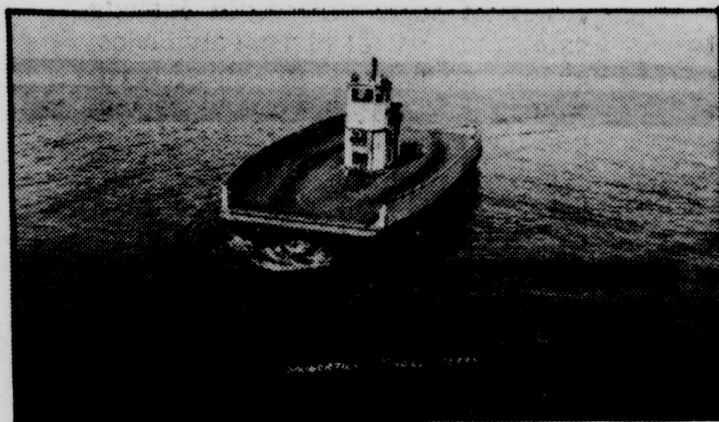

When opposite Cocksackie at about 8 a.m., the fog was particularly dense. All of a sudden I could hear people talking and a bell ringing out in the middle of the river. So I took the megaphone and asked what it was. The reply came back it was the "Queen Mary."

Now, lest you think the former giant Cunarder of that name had sailed right by New York and somehow got to the upper Hudson, there was also a small diesel ferryboat — not much bigger than the old "Skillypot" — that carried the rather improbable name of "Queen Mary." At that time, she was running back and forth between Cocksackie and Newton Hook.

After the ferryboat identified herself, the voice in the fog said they were anchored on the middle ground off Cocksackie. The voice further said, "Be careful. You are going up inside Cocksackie Island."

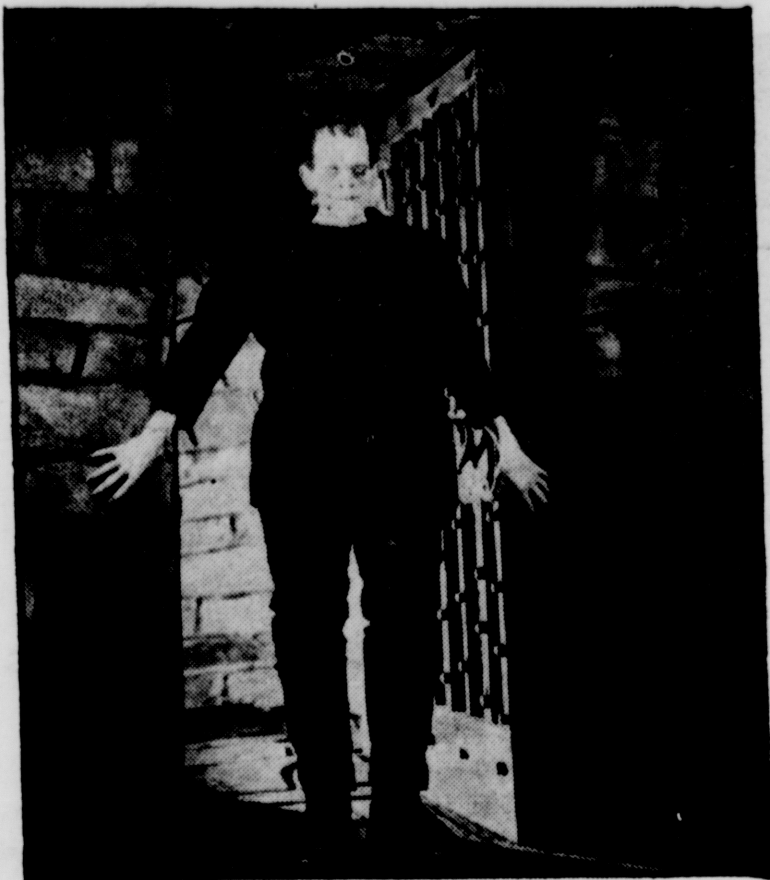

Now, if I were to be going up inside Cocksackie Island I would have to be going in the opposite direction I was headed. I certainly knew my compass course was south and my whistle echoes were all in good order. It wasn't me who was mixed up, it was the ferryboat. Obviously, anchored in the thick fog they had swung around with the tide and didn't realize in what direction they were heading. I continued on and eventually ran out of the fog off Athens.

I often wondered who it could have been on that ferryboat who was so balled up in his directions he was 180 degrees off in the direction he thought he was headed. But, that's the way one can easily find himself in heavy foggy weather. Intuition is no substitute for a good compass.

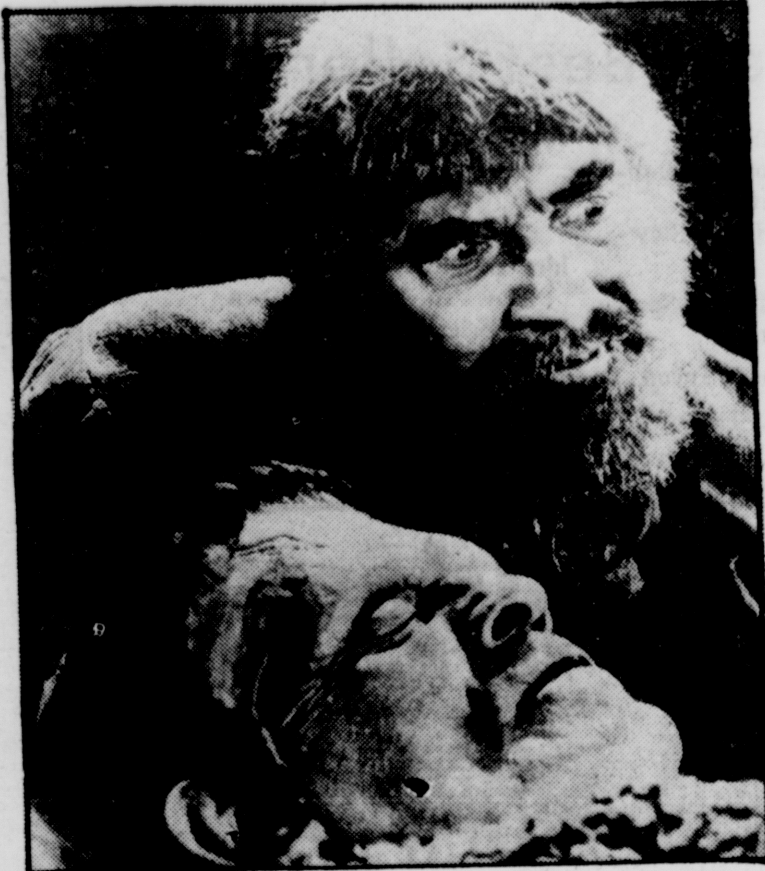

The ferryboat "Queen Mary" that was mixed up in direction off Cocksackie as mentioned in today's article. The tiny vessel, no larger than the old "Skillypot" of Rondout-Sleightsburgh run fame, also for a period during the 1930's operated between Saugerties and Tivoli.

The image that haunted a thousand dreams. Boris Karloff as the Monster, the original Frankenstein (1931).

The two greatest horror genre actors of them all. Bela Lugosi as the hunchback Ygor watches over the unconscious Monster in "Son of Frankenstein" (1939). The movie marked the third and last time Karloff played the monster.

Saturday at the Bijou with Frankenstein's Monster

By David Zinman

In his forthcoming book David Zinman takes a long, loving look at some of the most popular movie series ever made.

This is the fifth of six excerpts from SATURDAY AFTERNOON AT THE BIJOU (Arlington House).

Putty hoods and deep and sunken eyes. Painted-on surgical scars streak the gaunt, elongated face. A matted wig tops off the box-like, double-doomed forehead.

In the sides of the neck are two electrodes — inlets for the lightning that give him life. To add massive proportions to the body, padded undergarments broaden the shoulders. They flesh out the chest and fill the arms, which seem enormous because they hang from shortened sleeves. Finally, a sheepskin jerkin reached below the waist, and 18-pound lead-weighted boots — to make walking appear awkward and unnatural — cover the feet.

This was the ingenious makeup that created the Frankenstein monster. In the process, it turned Boris Karloff into an overnight star. Without uttering a word — depending solely on his grotesque appearance and his consummate pantomime skill — Karloff played the superstrong artificial man to perfection.

At the same time, he typed himself forever in a genre he helped popularize — the horror movie of the sound era. And yet, he always felt that "horror" was the wrong word.

"Horror means something revolting," Karloff said. "Anybody can show you a painful of innards. But the object of the roles I played is not to turn your stomach — but merely to make your hair stand on end. It (the descriptive word) should have been 'terror.' They are bogey stories, that's all. Bogey stories with the same appeal as thrilling ghost stories or fantastic fairy tales that entertain and enthrall children in spite of being so hokey.

"Actually, 'Jack and the Beanstalk' is shocking. And 'Grimm's Fairy Tales' are appalling. I suppose films like 'Frankenstein' remain popular because they have such deep, deep roots."

Unquestionably, "Frankenstein" has become the greatest shock movie of all time. Yet, despite its amazing longevity, Karloff's brilliant performance originally all but went unnoticed. He was billed fourth in the cast. The studio reportedly did not even invite him to the Hollywood premiere.

When the movie opened in the East, New York Times reviewer Mordaunt Hall disposed of Karloff perfunctorily. "Boris Karloff," wrote Hall, "undertakes the Frankenstein creature and his makeup can be said to suit anybody's demand."

However, once the public began turning out in numbers, it was obvious that Hollywood had created something unusual. The idea of a scientist creating life in the laboratory — man playing God — fascinated audiences.

When the monster's face flashed on the screen for the first time, movie-goers were scared stiff. Cold reptilelike eyes darted from scarred and depraved features. Wrote one reviewer: "Many laughed to cover their true emotions."

Karloff had set the standards for hundreds of chillers to come. The roster of monsters would include vampires, werewolves, mummies, ghouls, zombies, giant apes, wasp women, cat people, voodoo women, and she-demons.

But unlike his successors, Karloff did more than just raise goose flesh. He infused his role with pathos. There is, for example, a moving sequence where the monster sees light for the first time. With guttural cries, he gropes heavenward, his long, corpselike hands trying to grasp the golden sunshine.

In another scene — cut from the original because it was thought too violent — he comes upon a little girl, Marilyn Harris, tossing flowers in a lake. She is not repelled and invites him to play. When all the flowers are gone, the monster, thinking the child will float as well, throws her in.

Moments later, he staggers away, wringing his hands in agony as he perceived the terrible thing he has done. It is this touch of remorse that gives poignancy and dimension to the character. And this is what makes the monster unforgettable.

There was an avalanche of mail for Karloff. It continued all his life, although he played the monster only twice more — in "Bride of Frankenstein" (1935) and "The Son of Frankenstein" (1939).

Most of the letters came from children, who, Karloff said, always showed insight into the monster's character.

"They seemed to understand that he was the victim of something beyond his control. He was bewildered and dangerous . . . They (the children) always expressed great compassion."

Karloff became firmly cemented in the Hollywood horror mold. But he never complained about the many grotesque roles that were to follow — grave robbers, mad scientists, executioners, a mummy, Fu Manchu.

"Certainly, I was typed," he said. "But what is typing? It is a trademark, a means by which the public recognizes you. Actors work all their lives to achieve that. I got mine with just one picture. It was a blessing."

Nevertheless, playing the role was far from easy. He had to be at the studio at 5:30 every morning and spend nearly four hours with makeup specialist Jack Pierce. He became 18 inches taller and 60 pounds heavier. During the filming of "Frankenstein," Karloff, a six-footer who weighed 175 pounds, lost 20 pounds.

SUPREME COURT JUSTICE

Television's Carl Reiner is an avid comic strip fan. So enthralled with the adventures of "Mary Worth" was the comedian-writer-producer, he couldn't wait for the next issue to hit the newstands; caught the action as it came rolling off the presses.

Comic Strip Popularity No Laughing Matter to Fans

Old comic strip heroes never die, but sometimes they fade away into retirement.

"Terry and the Pirates" — an action-filled strip that, like many comics, was short on comedy — ended publication early this year. George Wunder, Terry's artist since creator Milton Caniff gave it up to launch "Steve Canyon" in 1947, decided to retire. With him went Terry.

Earlier retirees have included "Abbie & Slats," which ran from 1937 to 1971; and "Buck Rogers," born in 1929 centuries before its time, died in 1967 when space-travel became old hat.

Comic-strip fans take their "funnies" seriously, says the National Geographic Society in keeping track of folkways around the world.

When Al Capp, creator of forever-19-year-old Li'l Abner, offered a prize for the "most gruesome" face for one character, Lena the Hyena, he received one million replies. Thousands of readers rejoiced when chinless Andy Gump ran for Congress; they quickly sent advice and encouragement to him and his long-suffering wife, Min.

Chester Could had B.O. Plenty marry Gravel Gertie in "Dick Tracy," and was flooded with gifts and congratulatory telegrams. Their child, Sparkie Plenty, inspired a doll that one year produced more than $3,000,000 in sales. When Joe Palooka volunteered for the army early in World War II, President Roosevelt personally commended artist Ham Fisher.

Some 48,000,000 Sunday newspaper comic sections circulate in the United States, attracting an estimated readership of 100,000,000. "The comic strip," says Bill Blackbeard, founder of the San Francisco Academy of Comic Art, "is the only wholly indigenous American art form."

Nearly every country has its favorites, many of them United States exports.

"Li'l Abner," with an estimated following of 25,000,000 readers, is syndicated to 43 countries and translated into 13 languages. "Buck Rogers" at its peak, around 1934, appeared in 18 languages.

Richard Felton Outcault's "The Yellow Kid," starring a large-eared boy in a yellow nightshirt, generally is regarded as the first comic strip. Not actually a strip but a full-color drawing, it appeared in the "New York World" in 1896, and gave its name to "yellow journalism."

Impish, roly-poly Hans and Fritz appeared in 1897 as stars of "The Katzenjammer Kids," now the oldest continuing strip.

Popeye was around for 10 years before artist E.C. Segar plucked him from the cast of "Thimble Theater," and made him a star. Lovable Dagwood began as a rich playboy disinherited by his parents when he married a feather-brained flapper named Blondie in 1933.

Augustus Mutt was a racetrack tout in 1907, star of the strip "A. Mutt," until he met bewhiskered James J. Jeffries six months later and they became a team.

Perhaps the most ageless of all, Little Orphan Annie, has been a 12-or 13-year-old moppet wearing the same neat red dress since 1924. Her wise dog Sandy, whose vocalizations consist of "Arf!" and "Arf! Arf!" never ages either.

Featuring Tapestry, Sculpture Displays

The College Visual Arts Gallery in John Vanderlyn Hall at the Stone Ridge campus of Ulster County Community College will be open Sunday, Nov. 11 from 2 to 4 p.m. for the public desiring to see the tapestries of the Greek artist and weaver, Anna Papadimitriou.

Also on exhibition in the Gallery is kinetic copper welded sculpture by Hans Van De Bovenkamp, of Tillson.

The Gallery also is open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday. There is no admission charge.

Ms. Papadimitriou, the College's first artist-in-residence revives the classic art of tapestry with new dynamic aesthetic vitality in texture, shape and motion. She uses fundamentally Greek patterns in her weavings which are marked with zest and vividness of avant-garde art.

She has elevated wall-hangings to an innovative art form which combines poetry and fantasy.

A native of Holland, Mr. De Bovenkamp has designed contemporary fountains for interior and exterior space. In some of his fountains, water is fed upward through heavy pipes and then cascades downward, filling and spilling into each bowl.

The Department of Visual Arts welcomes students, faculty, staff and members of the community to visit and enjoy these exhibitions. Further information can be obtained by calling the Department office at the College.

Tapestries by the Greek artist and weaver Anna Papadimitriou, above, are now on exhibition in The College Visual Arts Gallery in John Vanderlyn Hall at the Stone Ridge campus of Ulster County Community College. The gallery is open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday and 2 to 4 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 11.

*Yule
And Crafts*

Two enjoyable events are upcoming in Woodstock.

—On Saturday, Nov. 24, will be the "Christmas Antiques Show & Sale."

—On the following Saturday, Dec. 1, the "Christmas Crafts Show & Sale" will be held.

Both events will benefit the Woodstock Children's Center, a Montessori-oriented school which opened this fall for its first term.

The theme of each event is "Antiques (or Crafts) as Christmas Gifts." The shows coincide with the time when most people are thinking of their Christmas shopping lists; will offer unusual and thoughtful gifts of fine antiques and authentic craft items, purchasable from those who made them.

Both events will be held at the Woodstock Elementary School on Rt. 375. The antiques show will feature top dealers from the entire Northeast U.S. and include antiques from early Americana and fine china to unusual and hard-to-find Victorian collectibles. The Crafts show is being staged as a vehicle for mostly local and area craftsmen to display and sell their work, although fine craftsmen will be coming from as far as Connecticut for this event. The show will include the work of many excellent craftsmen who have never before shown in Woodstock.

Both events are being managed by Carole and Don Rhoades, professional show managers who also run the local Woodstock Saturday Markets, the spring Woodstock Antiques Festival, and who headed the recent antiques show held at the Holiday Inn in Kingston, among other events. Interested parties should contact either Ian Bernstein at the Woodstock Children's Center or the Rhoades' at 679-2208.

Saturday At the Bijou

Universal copyrighted the make-up process, preventing other studios from creating an artificial man in the same likeness. But in 1939, Pierce told how he went about fashioning the monster:

"There are six ways a surgeon can cut the skull, and I figured Dr. Frankenstein, who was not a practicing surgeon, would take the easiest. That is he would cut the top of the skull off straight across like a pot lid, hinge it, pop the brain in, and clamp it tight.

That's the reason I decided to make the monster's head square and flat like a box and dig that big scar across his forehead and have two metal clamps hold it together. The two metal studs that stick out the sides of his neck are inlets for electricity — plugs. Don't forget, the monster is an electrical gadget and that lightning is his life force...

"The lizard eyes were made of rubber, as was his false head. I made the arms look longer by shortening the sleeves of his coat. His legs were stiffened by steel struts and two pairs of pants.

His large feet were the boots asphalt-spreaders wear. His fingernails were blackened with shoe polish. His face was coated with blue-greengrease-paint, which photographs gray (in black-and-white film)."

This frightening guise notwithstanding, Karloff was in private life a gentle, cultured Englishman, about as far removed from mayhem and brutality as a civil servant. In fact, he was pointed toward a career in that very profession. He was born William Henry Pratt in 1887, youngest of nine sons of a member of Britain's Indian civil service. (His stage name came from his mother's family. He added Boris to keep the Slavic flavor.)

But when he played the part of a demon in his parish's annual Christmas pantomime, he was sold on an acting career. He attended the University of London before leaving for Canada in 1909. Success didn't come easily. He had to work as a farmhand, logger, ditchdigger, and truck driver before landing a job with a touring stock company.

In 1919 he appeared in his first Hollywood movie as an extra, a swarthy Mexican soldier in "His Majesty, the American," starring Douglas Fairbanks. He went on to bit parts and character roles but he remained an obscure actor until 1931, the year Universal produced "Frankenstein."

Actually, Karloff got the monster role only because Bela Lugosi had turned it down after making film rushes. Lugosi, who had just created a sensation in "Dracula," rejected it because the heavy makeup made him unrecognizable. He also objected to the fact that the monster had no lines.

Searching for another actor, director James Whale remembered a fellow Britisher at Universal who had impressed him playing a murderer in the gangster movie "Graft." That was Karloff, who was then 44.

Whale tested him. The rest is history.

Costume Design Exhibit at Paltz

More than 150 theatrical costume designs by some 75 American and European designers go on exhibition at the College Art Gallery of the State University College at New Paltz today, Sunday, Nov. 4.

The designs are sketches, chiefly in watercolors or tempera, used as blueprints or working drawings by costume makers. Represented in the exhibition will be the work of such designers as Cecil Beaton, Oliver Messel, Irene Sharaff, Philip Prowse and Franco Zefferelli.

Some of the works come from the Rebecca McKenna Theatrical Design Collection, which is housed at SUC New Paltz under the curatorship of Raymond T. Kurdt, chairman of the Department of Theatrical Arts. The collection, Kurdt says, has repeatedly proved its value as a teaching aid, a source of history and a service to theatre.

Other designs are on loan from a collection at SUNY Binghamton, private collectors (including Kurdt, whose own work is included in the exhibition) and the designers. Designs for opera, dance, classical and modern drama, film and other media are represented.

In the catalog to the exhibition, Kurdt cites William Ball of the American Conservatory Theatre to the effect that the art of design for the stage requires a tremendous sensitivity to styles literature, the art of acting, the work of scenic and lighting designers and the actor who is creating a role.

Design sketches, Kurdt writes, "were never created to hang in a gallery." He quotes Robert Edmond Jones in his book "The Dramatic Imagination": "A stage costume is a creation of the theatre. Its quality is purely theatrical and taken outside the theatre, it loses its magic at once. It dies as a plant dies when uprooted."

But because the costumes themselves are worn and tarnished, Kurdt says, "these sketches are a better evocation of what was than mannequins 'wearing' the finished products could ever be." They also afford pleasure as visual objects just as preliminary sketches by painters and sculptors do.

The exhibition will open with a reception from 3 to 5 p.m. today, Sunday, Nov. 4, and continue through Nov. 30. The gallery's hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday; 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Thursday; and 2 to 5 p.m. Friday. It is closed Saturdays.

Getting in Step For

German-American Night

Bavarian Night, complete with roast pork dinner, beverages, and German-American music for dancing, is set for Saturday evening, Nov. 10 at St. John the Evangelist's Parish Complex, Saugerties-Woodstock Road, Centerville. Dinner will be served from 8 to 9:30 p.m. Music will be provided by the Kosek Brothers New Yorkers of Cohoes. Additional entertainment will feature Die Bergvagahundeh Schuhplattler Dancers. In order to insure that parishioners will be served in comfort, a reservation limit of 400 has been established. Reservations for the annual fall gala may be made by contacting the rectory office. Tickets will be mailed upon receipt of your reservation order and check.

Productions Now At Bard

Several senior direction projects are now being offered by Bard Theatre of Drama and Dance, Bard College, Annandale-on-Hudson.

"Knocks," a collection from the works of Eugene Ionesco, has been arranged and directed by Anne Bogart. Paul Zindel's "The Effect of Gamma Rays on Man-in-the-Moon-Marigolds" is directed by Karen Cutler. Lis Armstrong directs "Look Back in Anger" by John Osborne.

Productions will be presented through Saturday, Nov. 10 at 8:30 p.m. with a matinee today (Nov. 4) at 2:30.

Ninety Minutes Of Ski Action

When Warren Miller, world's foremost ski film producer, sets out to make a feature length ski film he looks for the best skiers and the best locations. This scene's from his latest movie, "SKIING'S GREAT;" shows a trio of super skiers cutting up a little new snow in La Plagne in the French Alps. Area movie-goers will get a look at the best ski resorts and the best skiers in Europe, Canada and the U.S. if they see "SKIING'S GREAT." Sponsored by Kingston Uniformed Fire Fighters Ladies Auxiliary, it'll unreel Saturday, Nov. 10 at 8 p.m. in Kingston High School Auditorium. Advance tickets are now on sale at Central, Wiltwyck and Rondout Fire Stations; also at Potter Bros., Frank's Sports Shop, Snowflake, and Inge Reynolds ski shops.

If You Hunt Or Backpack, It's For You

Although many signs point to abundant game supplies in the Catskills this fall, a key ingredient to success is finding a suitable place to hunt. "Central Catskill Mountains Map," published by Outdoor Publications of Ithaca, N.Y., helps solve this problem by locating more than 200,000 acres of State-owned land open to public hunting.

These lands, principally in Greene and Ulster Counties, include foothill areas for hunting gray squirrels and ruffed grouse as well as mountainous tracts where deer and bear roam. Also shown are wilderness sections for hunters who like to backpack to remote areas. These parcels range in size from 15,000 to 40,000 acres.

Measuring 22 by 36 inches, the map is a reproduction of topographic drawings that show the Central Catskills on one continuous sheet. Large and small blocks of public hunting land are overprinted in color. Contours of the mountainous terrain are indicated at 20-foot intervals. Also shown are State-Marked hiking and access trails, lean-to shelters, public campsites, roadways, streams, ponds and lakes, and other features important to the hunter.

The map covers some 800 square miles, depicting the main portion of the Catskill Forest Preserve. It includes most of the Catskill peaks with elevations of more than 3,000 feet.

The price of the map is $2 and can be ordered from Outdoor Publications, Box 355, Ithaca, 14850.

Time was when the automobile was such a newfangled mode of transportation that it still competed with the horse and buggy brigade in uptown Kingston. Those were the days, too, when trolley tracks ran along Main Street; the Kirkland was fronted by an overhang porch; the Eagle Hotel just up the block had a competing porch of its own and sported an Eagle Garage sign; second story porches sprouted from the buildings across the street; women's hemlines brushed the sidewalk; and the well-dressed male of the species wouldn't dream of appearing on a public street without a jacket and hat.

Kingston: Then and Now

Looking west from the same angle today — and not a horse or buggy in sight. The automobile has become king of the road; the trolley tracks have been paved over; the porch of the Kirkland has disappeared, as has that of the Eagle Hotel, along with the hotel itself. There's still a garage on the block, but it's Buick Service and Sales these days. Once the office of the county clerk was maintained in a small building beyond. Today, that governmental official can still be found in the vicinity, but in the new County Office Building towering over the scene. Only the Burgevin Building across the corner has remained much the same, passed daily by men in their shirtsleeves and ladies in mini-skirts.

Dinah Goes Poetic; Pens Verse to Promote Special

Renowned songstress Dinah Shore has written a poem in connection with her upcoming special. The show, "Timex Presents Dinah in Search of the Ideal Man," will be colorcast on NBC Television Network Sunday, Nov. 13 from 9:30 to 10:30 p.m.

The poem, "The Ideal Man," came about when composers Hal David and Johnny Mandel were commissioned to write a theme song for the special. They asked: "What's the show about?" Said Dinah, "I'm searching for the ideal man." And instead of talking about the kind of man that would be, she wrote the following free-verse poem on the subject.

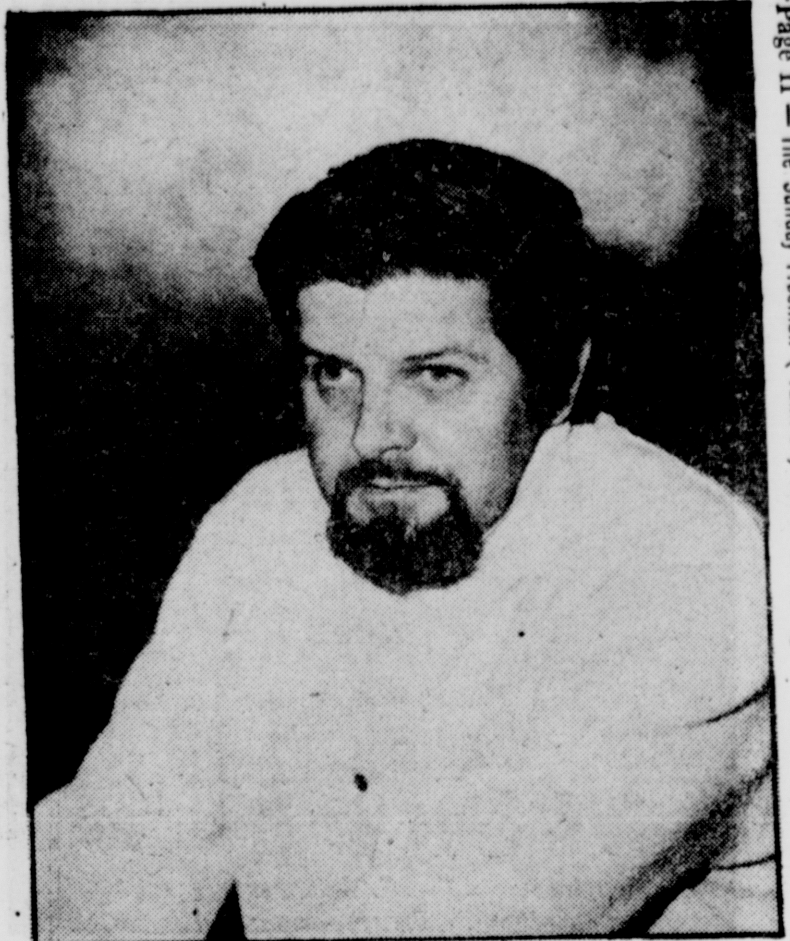

My ideal man
Is many men; for I am
many women.
He can afford the luxury of tenderness
Because he will be so in-nately strong.
He will need me
And he will be there and know when I need him.
We will share and he will care so much That for once I can tell him what is in my soul
and
Where I have failed
And he will not find me smaller for my failings.
He will be wise and fair
And honest with himself and me.
I will like him and
He will like me.
He will be proud of me —
Of what I am and not who I am —
For what I do for him
And for others close to me
And not for what I have done for others not so close.
He will let me be a person —
A woman —
He will let me give,
Knowing I have a need to give,
Knowing I have a need to give
And we will weave a Gentle web of possessiveness around each other,

Not because of our insecurities
But because of our interdependence.
He will listen
And perhaps like what he hears
But if he does not like or agree — treat me as he would
A treasured friend —
A respected friend.
He may not like all those people I like —
But he'll be with them
knowing
That if they have meant something to me at anytime —
They are not a threat to us
But a cementing of our present and our future.
Through a knowledge of our pasts.
He will know our lives did not begin the day we met.
Whoever I am — Whatever he loves —
Began with and is an ac-culation of people and Experiences and living.
But he will know my day begins and ends with him —
The way I treat my friends,
my helpers, my dog,

My work, my play depends On how I feel he feels about me on that day.
day.
We will laugh together
when we are together
And separately when we are not,
Knowing that later, in delicious comfort,
We will share that laughter.
Above all he will like to be with me
And we'll need each other.
Loving, touching, holding, filled with the wonder of One independent and separate soul
Who, through some miracle, found another independent
And separate soul
Melded together
No as one lump of indistinguishable matter
But many, myriad, exquisite facets and textures and shapes —
Joined in beauty —
A definite oneness of inseparable strength — Balanced in stresses and tensions.
Totally resistant
To structural and spiritual failure.

Bill Skilling has added another title to the many he already holds. Totally involved and deeply committed to the new Ulster County Youth Theatre, he's serving as Artistic Director for the group.

Youth Theater Rehearsing for 'Pied Piper of Hamlin

way for Ulster Youth Theater Group's production of Pied Piper of Hamlin. Produced by special arrangement with the Coach House Press Inc., the three-act play is slated for December 6, 7 and 8 at J. Watson
Bailey High School. Curtain is set for 7:30 p.m., with a matinee Saturday at 2:30.

The Pied Piper of Hamlin is a legend based on fact, written by Melvin Bernhardt and based on the poem by Robert Browning. The play was first produced at the Goodmen Theater of the Art Institute on April 13, 1963.

Members of the cast include 27 youths from Kingston and nine from Woodstock.

Ulster Youth Theater Group is notable in that it is the only incorporated society dedicated to the production of children's plays by children. Mrs. H. Clark
Bell serves as chairman; with Bill Skilling, program director of Station WGHQ AM and FM, as creative director; and Elizabeth
Askue, creative assistant.
The Theater Group is opening a door to youngsters with theatrical talents waiting to be developed. It promises to bring self-fulfillment and rewarding hours of theatre to their families, friends and neighbors. The drama workshops offer help for stammering youngsters while at the same time present opportunities for a 15-year-old to develop into a budding Hamlet. For young people eight to 18, it could be the first step towards a career in the theatre.

The historic Loughran
House at 296 Fair Street, Kingston, serves as a permanent home for the Youth Theater. For interested persons, Skilling emphasizes that prior experience in theatre is not necessary or required. The program is intended primarily for inexperienced or potential actors, or those who are simply stage stuck, curious about their ability to perform before an audience, or interested in other aspects of the theatre, such as lighting and production.

Advance sales for Pied
Piper are available at 296
Fair Street Monday through Friday 3 to 5:30 p.m.

Among the top prize winners at the current and prestigious 22nd Anniversary Exhibition of Painting and Sculpture at the Berkshire Art Association was Woodstock artist Bruce Currie. His "Figure With Begonia" was given the Berkshire Community College Purchase Award. The exhibit, featuring the works of more than 100 New England and New York State artists, was juried by Andrew Carnduff Ritchie, now retired as director of the Yale University Art Gallery. The show continues at the Berkshire Museum in Pittsfield, Mass. through Nov. 10.

POTPOURRI

By JOAN L. WOINOSKI

There were 186 invited. But it looked as if 310 came. The occasion was Kay and Bill Gaffken's cocktail party Saturday at their lovely old stone home in Hurley.

Kay looked regal and rather Greco-Roman in a white, one-shoulder, toga-type gown. Guests poured past her and filtered through rooms to the left and right of the foyer. Unless one crisscrossed his steps, he'd have been so busy at one side that he'd never have known who arrived at the other.

Dr. Elbert Loughran had lived there back in '33. Fact is, he pointed out the cozy, little den, complete with fireplace, where he pored over "Gone With the Wind" 'til the wee hours of the morning. And that's like reading 'bout Scarlett O'Hara while LIVING in Tara.

Kay's sister was there with her husband Pat O'Brien. No relation to the film star. Seems tho' that the family was shopping recently at Eyemon, Pa., and got separated in the crowd. Their son walked past the loud speaker and said: "Page Pat O'Brien." They did! And it almost started a riot.

Speakin' of the star, Bank President Jim Norton met him during World War II. When O'Brien came here some months back to talk at Kiwanis, someone must've clued him in 'cause he stopped at the bank first to "renew his friendship" with our own local bank president.

Funeral director Joe Leahy was talkin' a blue streak, demonstratin' each point with both hands wavin'

this way and that, up, down, left, right. One gent watchin' the shenanigans misunderstood: "Look," he said, "he's sizin' her up."

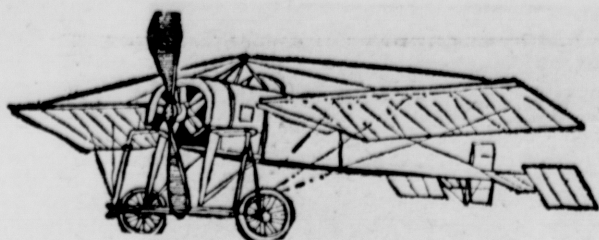

The Joe Smiths were talkin' 'bout their daughter who's in college now, considerin' the medical profession for a career. An excellent seamstress, the lass won Singer Sewing Contest's trip to Europe when she was 12. Oh, well, in either field, a knowledge of stitches won't hurt.

The buffet table was a picture with lighted candelabra and chrysanthemum centerpiece. There was enough ham, beef, turkey, cheese, shrimp to feed a regiment — Union, Confederate, AND Colonists. Jim Thompson was there along with Anne and Tom Wickman, Rosemary and Frank Grimaldi, Bill Ganter, Bob and Bebe O'Reilly, Mrs. John Cordts, Kay and Jack Gilligan, the Renn Carrs, Lou and Elaine Siller, the Bernie Feeney Jrs. and Srs.

AND, the Rev. Msgr. James V. Keating, Bill and Sissy Schiff, the Phil Toffels, Ray Garraghan, Wanda and Ray Armater, Sally Basch, Joe and Jackie Scholar, the Steve Contis, Al and Mary Spada, the Bob Johnsons.

Unless one saw Tommy Davitt, he couldn't've believed it: checkered jacket, striped shirt, polka dot tie. It had to be one-of-a-kind. Bob Mac Kinnon was right on his heels tho' in a shirt with shades of Halloween. Would you believe orange and black dots? Standin' next to each other, they came close to causin' vertigo. If either one had sneezed, he'd have hypnotized the whole lot.

Old Rhinebeck Site of Filming For D.C. Museum.

Old Rhinebeck Aerodrome and Dutchess County have been the scene for filming of a new National Air and Space Museum (Smithsonian Institution) display. Shooting started last week on the "Barnstorming" film. This will be one of the displays used in the 1976 opening of the new museum building on the Mall in Washington, D.C. Old Rhinebeck aircraft were used for authenticity.

Northern Dutchess residents may have been surprised to see a low-flying World War I "Jenny" (Curtiss JN4) trainer and a 1927 WACO 10 with the camera plane. Some of the beautiful 1973 Fall colors and Dutchess County farms will be a feature of this display.

To match the Smithsonian script, the Aerolog, Inc. film crew hope to complete the film before the first snowfall. This display will have two types of films — one as seen by a ground observer; the other as seen by a passenger in an early barnstorming plane, with straight flight and aerobatics.

This is the second National Air and Space Museum display that has used Old Rhinebeck equipment and activities. The first such display is the Smithsonian's present World War I exhibit.

Mary Prevo was one of five Performing Arts of Woodstock cast members to win an award at the N.Y. State Regional Theatre Festival last weekend; was cited for her performance as a school-mistress in "Under Milkwood."

Julia Callahan brought home the Best Actress award from the Regional Theatre Festival in competition with several Ulster and Dutchess County theatre groups. The drama in which she performed, "Under Milkwood," was also judged Best Long Play entered in the Festival.

Mary White was judged Best Supporting Actress at the Region 3 & 4 Annual Festival for her role as Myfanwy Price in MILKWOOD. Another acting citation went to Donna Albright of the PAW cast. The Woodstock theatre group, which won the regional festival twice previously in 1970 and 1971 and the State Festival in 1970, now heads for the State Theatre Festival in Ithaca in mid-November.

If politics makes strange bedfellows — so, too, do "Lovers and Other Strangers," as this scene from the comedy of the same name illustrates. Rehearsing for upcoming Coach House Players production are (L-R)

Coach House Cavorts in Comedy About Couples

Fun will be poked at four different steps in human mating dances in "Lovers and Other Strangers," a lively quartet of plays about various aspects of love and marriage that will be presented by the Coach House Players at the J. Watson Bailey School on November 15, 16 and 17. Written by Renee Taylor and Joseph Bologna, a married-to-each-other writing team, the bill of plays had a cordial reception when it was first presented on Broadway, and was made into a highly successful movie a year later. The four-leaf album concerned with assorted attitudes toward male-female relationship, has been described as being both convulsingly funny and ruefully compassionate toward the problem of everyday people caught up in the complexities of the primal urge.

The first of the quartet deals with the preliminaries to a seduction. Richard S. Neiman plays the part of a young-man-on-the-make, who has brought a newly-met girl played by Joan Cirrito to his bachelor pad, for other reasons than to admire his etchings, and finds himself somewhat flabbergasted by her continuous quotations from numerous experts on sex behaviorism, from Helen Gurley Brown and Simone de Beauvoir to Kahlil Gibran. Richard Neiman, the young man in the playlet, is a salesman with the Burroughs Corporation and lives in West Hurley with his wife and two children. He has previously appeared in "Winnie the Pooh" and "Guys and Dolls" with the New Paltz Players, and as Model in the recent Coach House production of "Fiddler on the Roof." As the glib girl, Joan Cirrito has a complete change in pace after playing the eccentric septuagenarian in Coach House's "Absence of a Cello" and the middle-aged widow in "Middle of the Night." Joan also lives in West Hurley with her husband and three children. Betty Madonna shifts from onstage in many Coach House shows, to direct this segment. Audiences remembering her hilarious and zany performance as the tourist wife in "Don't Drink the Water," are familiar with her talent in the field of comedy.

George and Linda Quartell reflect another aspect of the same subject, as a married couple with a swinging bedroom argument that starts with her being in the mood for love-making and he being more interested in sleep. The argument goes on uproariously to explore a whole storehouse of other differences of opinion and attitudes between them. A married couple in real life, both George and Linda Quartell have appeared in many Coach House shows, but this is the first time they have appeared together. Wendell Scherer brings considerable expertise to his directorial stint of this section. An English teacher and drama coach at the M.J.M. School, he has composed "Voices of War and Peace — American in the 20th Century," for A Reader's Theatre; directed the "Monkey's Paw" for Kingston Cablevision. He attended the Shakespeare Institute this summer where he wrote and directed "The Wisdom of a Fool," a satire on Shakespeare, besides acting in other Shakespearean performances. He has also appeared as Mendel, the rabbi's son, in Coach House productions of "Fiddler on the Roof," in "Black Comedy" and "Wait Until Dark," the latter of which he also served as assistant to the director.

Part Three is a convulsingly funny portrayal of a young man suffering premarital jitters. Michael Alecca will be seen as a groom-to-be afflicted with cold feet and a perspiring forehead as he faces the inexorable fact that his wedding is only four days off. At four o'clock in the morning he raps on the apartment door of his fiancée to try to explain with a whole battery of hysterical reasons why they must call off the ceremony. Mary Darrow is the bride-to-be who has to cope with the panicked young man as he sputters through his desperate reasons in this humanly compassionate vignette that foams with gentle laughter. Michael Alecca is employed as a freelance photographer and resides in High Falls. He spent a summer with the National Shakespeare Company's Theatre for Children and writes plays as a hobby. The prospective bride is played by Mary Darrow, a junior at Ontario Central High School, where she has participated in school activities as a member of the Student Council and in cheerleading. She lives in Woodstock with her parents. Michael Callacher will be at the directorial helm for this section.

The final stanza of the bill on love and marriage is concerned with possible consequences of divorce. Sam Tesseriero and Eleanor Knudsen portray a couple whose mating dance has continued for over 30 years, with their battles at a cease-fire and a proclaimed "contentment" — until their younger son comes to a breaking-up with his wife. Appalled, the parents demand to know why — why? All the younger couple will admit to is that they are incompatible. The older couple tell in true, touching, and laughable terms of their own ways of coming to terms with the problems of matrimony. Their efforts to patch up the barriers between their son and his wife are warm, human and full of humor. Frank Marquette will be playing the son. His wife will be portrayed by Yvonne O'Connor. Both are veterans of many Coach House productions. Bill Sills will have the directorial assignment of this last portion. Jerry Brennan is in charge of production of all four parts of the program.

Associate membership entitles persons to this show plus the exciting mystery, "The Mouse Trap" by Agatha Christie, directed by Steve Callahan which will go on February 21, 22, 23; and the hit musical "Anything Goes" on May 9, 10, 11, with Cole Porter's music, directed by Bill Skilling. Mrs. Edward Finn of Kingston should be contacted on weekdays between 9 and 11 a.m. for ticket information. Single tickets for "Lovers and Other Strangers" will go on sale the week of the show at the J. Watson Bailey Junior High School.

Pre-Columbian Art of Mexico In Mount Show

Rare pre-Columbian artifacts and representative samples of modern Mexican folk art from the collection of Mr. and Mrs. William Stickle are on display in the foyer of Aquinas Hall at Mount Saint Mary College in Newburgh through November.

The exhibit features authentic Totonac stone head sculptures, royal masks and unusually well-detailed full figure stone carvings from Mayan temples and Central Mexico.

Fine museum reproductions include ancient stone royal heads sculptured in the round discovered at a royal tomb at Palenque, and excellent museum copies of Aztec seals.

The modern Mexican art showcase features an original oil painting by renowned Mexican artist Desiderio Escamilla.

The attractive display also includes hand-wrought silver jewelry by modern Mexican craftsmen, an onyx chess set, clay cookware and hand-carved wooden masks from Central Mexico, regarded as prime examples of Mexican folk art.

In addition to the pre-Columbian and modern artifacts, Mr. and Mrs. Stickle have set up a photographic panorama of Mexico in the lobby of Aquinas Theatre at Mount Saint Mary College.

No Sour Grapes on Winery Tours

Fall motorists touring Catskills, Hudson Valley and Finger Lakes Area travel hillsides heavy with the basic ingredient of New York State's wine industry — green, red, yellow, blue and black grapes.

And they can see wine-making at its busiest by visiting any of the nationally-known wineries, where tours are offered to fall visitors. The tours are free and offer an interesting and educational experience. They are scheduled frequently during the day.

Wineries offering tours Monday through Saturday include: Bully Hill Vineyards in Hammondsport, Widmer's Wine Cellars in Naples, Hudson Valley Wine Company in Highland, and Brotherhood Wine Cellars in Washingtonville. Parking fees are charged at Hudson Valley Wine and Brotherhood. Wineries open Monday through Friday are: Gold Seal, Great Western, and Taylor Wine, all in Hammondsport.

Tour guides explain what takes place at area vineyards throughout the year. During early spring, the guides say, field workers tie vines in umbrella fashion to three levels of wire strung between cedar stakes of uniform height and thickness. Summer is a season for tilling, spraying, weeding and patient watching. Approximately 92 days after blooming, the grapes are ready to be harvested and pressed.

Grapes reach maturity during September and October. Early ripeners are Delawares, Elviras and Fredonias, followed by Niagaras, Dutchess, Concords and Isabellas, with Catawbias usually maturing last.

As harvest approaches, winery agents visit vineyards to field test the grapes to determine ripeness and to estimate the tonnage expected from each grower. Samples of the grape varieties are picked and sent to laboratories for supplementary testing. A picking and delivery schedule is agreed on so that grapes arrive at the winery in predetermined amounts as soon as possible after picking.

Grape harvesting is mostly a mechanical operation, but hand-picking still goes on in the older vineyards. The grapes are then rushed to the winery where they are weighed, inspected, washed, destemmed and crushed.

Grapes are crushed according to variety, and each type is pressed separately. As the fresh grape juice, or "must" as it is called by the wineries, runs from the crusher, it passes through glass or stainless steel pipes and into fermenting tanks.

While fermenting, wild yeast cells are destroyed through sterilization and a pure yeast culture, prepared by the winery laboratory, is introduced into the tanks. The fermenting juice is then kept at a constant temperature until its sugar converts to alcohol and becomes wine. After completion of this process, the wine goes through racking, blending, chilling, filtering and aging, all necessary steps before it is ready for bottling.

At the conclusion of the tour visitors are taken to the winery's hospitality or tasting room where samples of champagne, wine or grape juice are served.

From Bard College To 'Adam's Rib'

Blythe Danner, the leading lady in the new ABC series "Adam's Rib", studied at Bard College and earned a BA degree in drama in 1965. Her recognition as an actress occurred when she played the compassionate blonde who fell in love with a blind youth in "Butterflies Are Free," on Broadway.

How do you follow Katharine Hepburn? Blythe Danner has found her own way. When she received the part of Amanda Bonner in "Adam's Rib," she reviewed the original "Adam's Rib".

film with Katharine Hepburn playing the lady lawyer. She also did research in court, studying the form of various lady attorneys. Her determination and strong will has made it possible for her to follow such a powerful figure as Miss Hepburn, even though she hasn't "learned to read a contract."

Interviewed recently by TV Guide, the magazine stated that she is quite different from the average actress. She is rather sweet, friendly, quiet, and afraid of publicity. This may seem a bit ironic that she should be cast as the bold, independent, liberated lawyer, in "Adam's Rib."

Asked how one so timid can handle a role demanding such confidence, she responded: "When you play a role, you escape to fantasy, acting out someone appearing in a script. But when you are a guest on a talk show or are being interviewed by a writer, there is no role, no fantasy. It is the real you. Well, the real me doesn't happen to be good at talking. I also have a fear of being portrayed falsely."

Blythe Danner, who got her theatrical training right here on the banks of the Hudson at Bard College, stars in "Adam's Rib," the series new to TV this season.

The Arts in Brief

The Yasuo Kuniyoshi Fund, Inc. has given its annual award of $100 to Woodstock artist Carole Uehara, a graduate of Pratt Institute and a former student at the Art Students League. The award had its beginnings in 1948 when the world-famed artist, Yasuo Kuniyoshi, organized an informal group among his colleagues in Woodstock. Carrying on fund raising events, they contributed the proceeds to such professional purposes as artists' welfare funds, art conferences, and film festivals. After Kuniyoshi's death, those who worked with him carried on the organization in memory and incorporated it under his name. Now the Kuniyoshi Fund makes an annual award of $100 to a talented and deserving artist chosen by a well qualified jury. The Fund is a tax exempt corporation and contributions made to it are tax free.

Summer's a long way off, but the Hudson Valley Depression Glass Club has already announced next June 8 and 9 as the dates for its big Depression Glass Show and Sale at Middletown's Holiday Inn. The show will feature dealers from six states; will be sponsored by the one-year-old club that now lists 86 members from such local areas as Ulster and Orange Counties and as far away as Pennsylvania. Club meets the last Thursday of each month at Walden's Town Hall on Main Street at 8:30 p.m. For more information, write H.V.D.G. Club, Box 294, Walden, N.Y. 12586.

An exhibit of the watercolors of Woodstock artist Antita Goldberg is currently on view through the month of November at the Woodstock Branch of the Inter-County Savings Bank on Mill Hill Road in the art colony. A former student of the John Pike School of Watercolor, the Art Students League, Woodstock School of Art and Florida's Longboat Key Art Center, she has exhibited locally and in Florida; has been the recipient of prizes and awards for her watercolors. Retired from the Onteora Central Schools staff, she now devotes herself exclusively to her art, which the public is invited to view at the bank.

Crafts people from all corners of New York State met recently in Syracuse to develop plans for the economic development of the crafts industry and to participate in a symposium on marketing handcrafts. Organized as The Crafts Council of New York State in response to requests for aid in marketing by hundreds of crafts-people, the group heard professional craftsmen speak on the successful marketing of their products and the creation of cottage industries in their areas which are successfully finding markets. The Crafts Council is also seeking the active role of the state government in getting federal funds through revenue sharing to be used for training of elderly and other underemployed people. Anyone interested in becoming a member should write to the Crafts Council of New York State, Box 152, Canton, N.Y., 13617, or call George Donovan at 315-386-4581.

Talk It Over: Only Sick People Need Drugs!

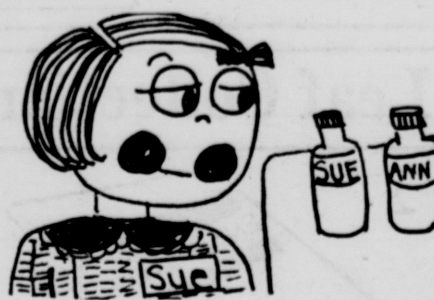

Meet Katy, the national symbol for drug prevention for children. She is sponsored by the Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs. In this parent-child "Talk It Over" Mini Page, she reminds you that only sick people need drugs. This issue is written especially for you to talk over. You can read the big type, and you and your parents or teacher can talk about it. You should also talk about the part printed in the lighter type.

When you are not well, maybe you need to stay in bed and rest. You might need some medicine, also. Talk about the times you have been sick. Did you take medicines? You don't always need medicines to get well. Rest, good food and sleep are cures!

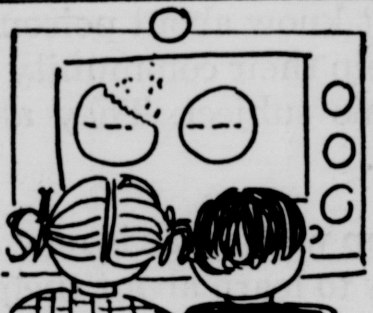

A drug is a medicine. A drug can help make sick people well, but it can also make well people sick. Drugs can be called chemicals. Chemicals can cause pollution. Talk about "Body Pollution."

Never take a drug that has been prescribed for someone else. Each person is different. A drug that could help one person could be bad for another.

Drugs can help us when they are prescribed by a doctor and given by our parents. Doctors are especially trained. They tell parents what to give children. Adults, too, take medicines when they have been prescribed by doctors.

The ads about drugs are trying to get people to buy them. Drugs are just for sick people. The ads you see are trying to sell a product so the manufacturer can make money.

Be careful. Do not mistake drugs for candy. Some drugs have score marks on them. Capsule drugs come in halves. Just the right amount of a drug is important. Too large a dose can be harmful.

Drugs should be kept out of reach in the medicine chest. Never take a drug out by yourself. Talk about what could happen if you ate something that was not good for you.

You should get your drugs from a pharmacist at the drug store. Pharmacists are trained to mix drugs. Never take anything from strangers.

People who take drugs just for fun can become very, very sick. Drugs that are not needed can be dangerous. Never take drugs if you can avoid them.

Try to stay healthy so you won't get sick. Remember, only sick people need drugs.

2. Sprinkle on 2 tablespoons onions.
3. Dot with 2 tablespoons butter.
4. Sprinkle on 1/2 cup cheese.
5. Repeat on top layer. Pour on milk.
6. Bake at 350° uncovered for about 1 1/4 hours.

Would You Like to Be a Pharmacist?

Would you like to be a pharmacist someday? A pharmacist compounds, or mixes, prescriptions and sells them to customers. He or she also gives advice on medicines that do not need a doctor's prescription. The pharmacist offers general information on minor health problems, such as first aid.

Pharmacists help doctors by keeping up with the latest drugs and advising them on what dosage would be best. They also must know the possible reactions if a patient is taking several different drugs at the same time.

Pharmacists must know about poison prevention. Sometimes they help their community by talking to groups about this subject. They also must know about drug abuse.

They must keep up with what is new in drugs and often go to meetings to learn about them. Sometimes they go back to school.

To be a pharmacist you must be interested in people. After you have finished special courses in college, you must pass an exam given by the state in which you wish to practice. In college, you study chemistry and math. You also take some courses that medical doctors take. You also study business courses because most pharmacists would like to own their own drug stores someday.

Super Sport:<sup>TM</sup> Jethro Pugh

Jethro Pugh, ranks among the best defensive tackles in pro football. The six-foot-six, 260-pounder is in his ninth season with the Dallas Cowboys. He also has excellent speed and quickness for a man his size. About the only thing that can knock Jethro down are pizzas and spaghetti. He has ulcers and has to watch his diet. Pugh grew up in Windsor, N.C. and was a star high school player there. Then he became a two-time All-Conference performer at Elizabeth City State in North Carolina. In 1964, Dallas drafted him in the 11th round. It was one of the Cowboy's best bargains ever.

Animal of the Week: The Wood Duck

The drake or male wood duck is a very colorful bird. The hen or female wood duck is a dull brown.

Wood ducks eat mostly plants and build their nests in holes in big trees. They live in the eastern United States, and the far west, but never in the middle states.

Baby wood ducks can swim, eat and find food from the time they are one day old. The young leave their nest no matter how high it is above the ground or water. They flutter down to meet their mother. For the first few weeks they stay with her. They are different from most ducks in that they can walk easily on land.

Entertainment: Meet Capt. Jacques Cousteau

Capt. Jacques Cousteau is the star of the series, "The Undersea World of Jacques Cousteau." He has made many discoveries about life underwater Cousteau was born in France in 1910. He was a shy, sickly child when growing up. He became interested in diving in 1936.

He invented the aqualung, a machine that allows man to dive in water as deep as 300 feet without cables or hoses.

In 1950, he bought an old American minesweeper which he refitted and named the Calypso. He uses it as a floating laboratory.

In 1957, he retired from the French Navy with the rank of captain.

1973 Christmas Stamps Announced

It is the policy of the U. S. Postal Service to issue two Christmas stamps each year so holiday mailers will have a choice.

This year, one of the stamps is adapted from a painting by Raphael, an important Italian artist. This painting hangs in the National Gallery of Art in Washington, D.C.

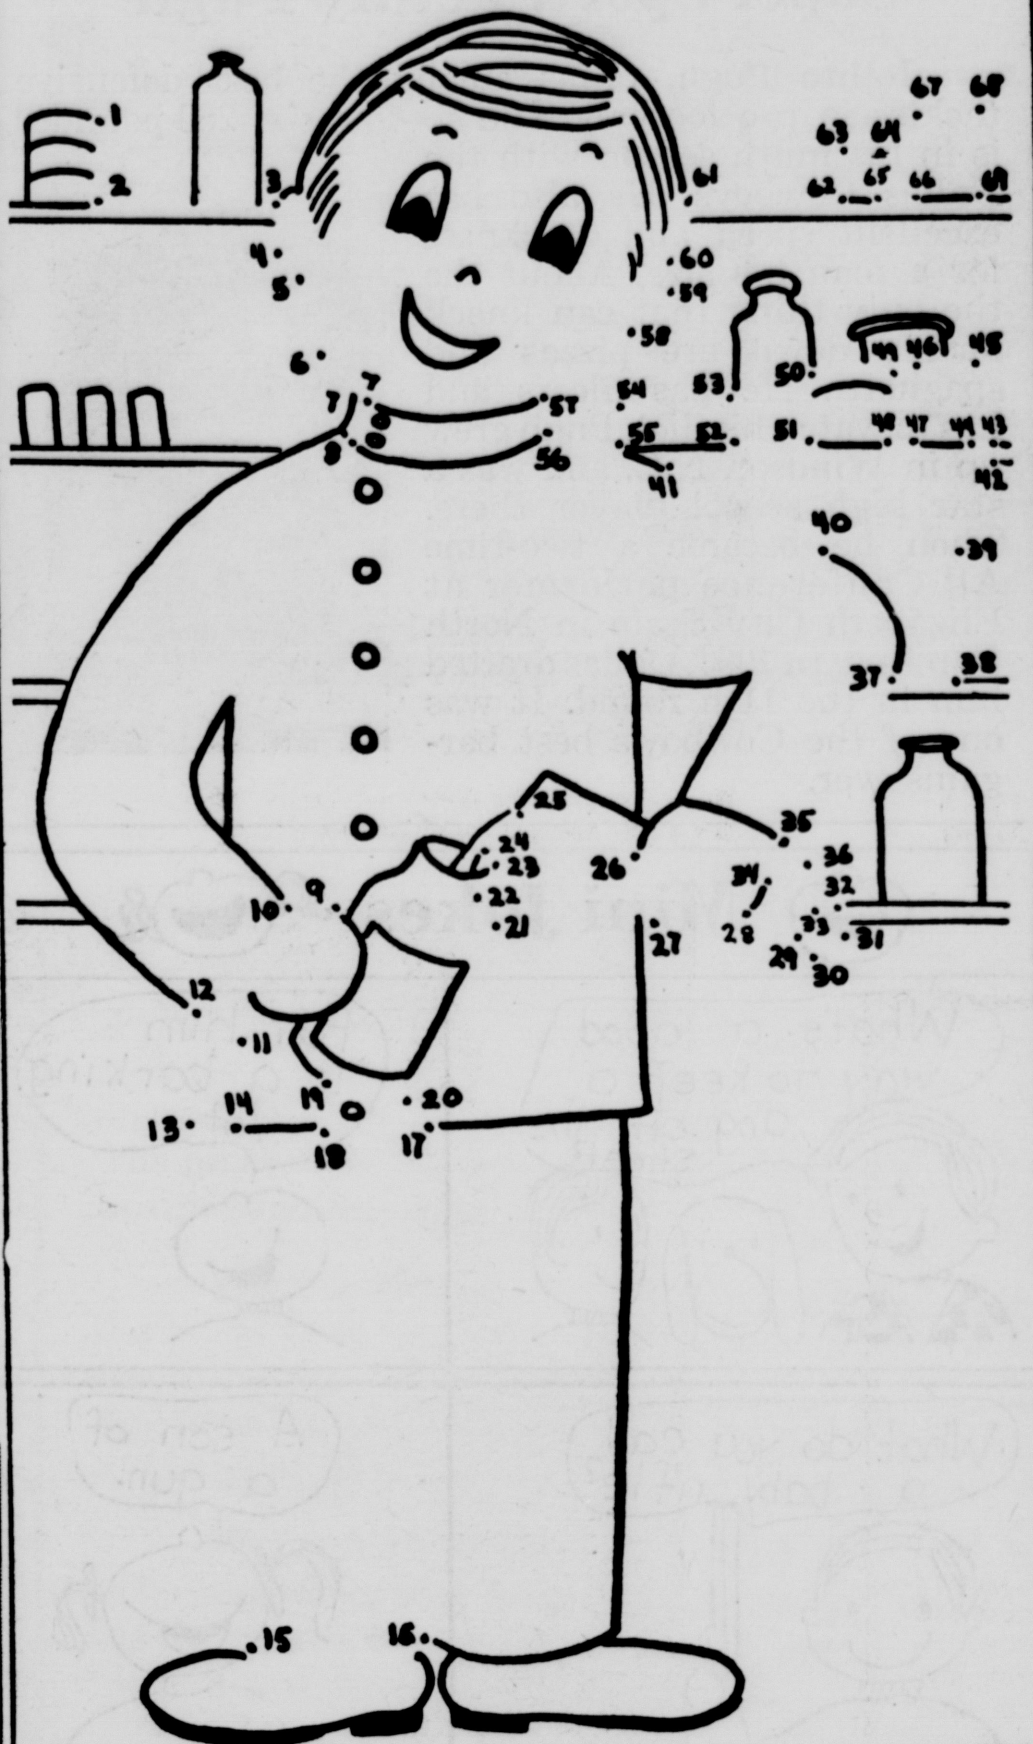

Raphael lived from 1483 to 1520, during a period called the Renaissance, in the 1400's and 1500's. This was a time of reawakening of interest in learning and the arts in Europe. Many changes were brought about as the people became better educated.

Raphael was one of the most popular artists of his time. In addition to doing and supervising many paintings, he was the appointed chief architect for Saint Peter's Church in Rome. He is most famous for his beautiful madonnas.

The second stamp features an old fashioned Christmas tree. Although it is not actually done in needle-point, it is designed to look this way.

First day cancellation requests may be sent to Christmas Stamps, Postmaster, Washington, D.C., 20013. Enclose a self-addressed envelope. Pencil in the right hand corner the stamp you want. Send in eight cents per stamp. Requests must be post marked no later than November 7.

Our Story: LATE ONE AFTERNOON SIR ARN AND PAUL COME UPON A CASTLE. THE FIRST THEY HAVE SEEN SINCE LEAVING PARIS. A GLOOMY PLACE; NO BANNERS WAVE, NO SENTRIES SHOW, ITS ONE GATE CLOSED.

ARN GIVES A BLAST ON THE TRUMPET THAT HANGS BY A CHAIN TO THE MASSIVE IRON-STUDDED GATE. AGAIN AND AGAIN HE SOUNDS, UNTIL AT LONG LAST THE GATE CREAKS OPEN.

SEVERAL ROUGH-LOOKING SPEARMEN LEAD THEM INTO THE COURTYARD AND STAND GUARD AS THE CASTLE'S MASTER LOOKS THEM OVER FROM THE STEPS OF THE KEEP.

SIEUR DE VOLNAY LOOKS HIS GUESTS OVER CAREFULLY. BY HIS COURTLY MANNERS AND HIS RICH ATTIRE, HE JUDGES ARN TO COME OF A NOBLE FAMILY..... AND HE HAS FOUR MARRIAGEABLE DAUGHTERS.

BECAUSE OF THE EVER-PRESENT DANGER OF OUTLAWS AND THE DISTANCE BETWEEN TOWNS, THE GIRLS HAVE SELDOM BEEN OUTSIDE THE CASTLE. TO THEM ARN IS A HEAVEN-SENT GIFT.

SCREAMS AND LAUGHTER COMING FROM THE KITCHEN INDICATE THAT PAUL HAS FOUND AMUSEMENT.

THAT NIGHT ARN DREAMS OF LYDIA, HIS LOST LOVE. BUT IN THE MORNING HE HEARS THE GIRLS LAUGHING AND ASKS PAUL TO TRIM HIS HAIR. AND LYDIA IS FORGOTTEN.

NEXT WEEK - The Reluctant Romeo

ARNIE BRIMBLE! HOW COME THE LONG FACE?

DAGWOOD... I LOST MY JOB, MY WIFE LOCKED ME OUT AND MY PARAKEET FLEW AWAY

CHEER UP, OLD PAL... THINGS COULD BE WORSE

COME ON HOME WITH ME AND YOU'LL FEEL BETTER

BLONDIE, THIS IS ARNIE BRIMBLE... I BROUGHT HIM HOME FOR DINNER

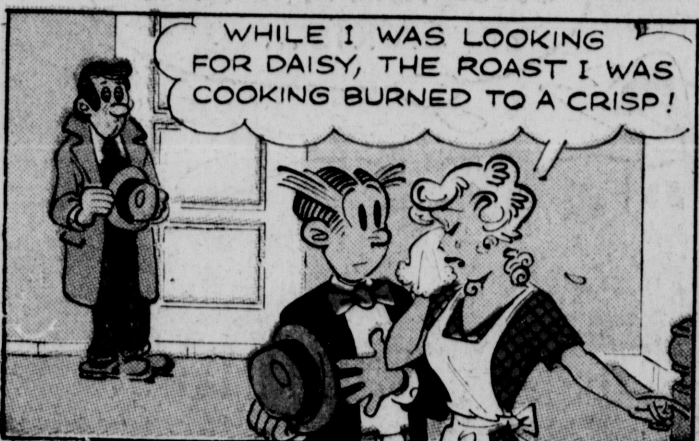

DAGWOOD, YOU COULDN'T HAVE PICKED A WORSE DAY!

THE WATER HEATER BROKE AND FLOODED THE CELLAR--THE SINK IS ALL CLOGGED UP AND THE PHONE IS OUT OF ORDER

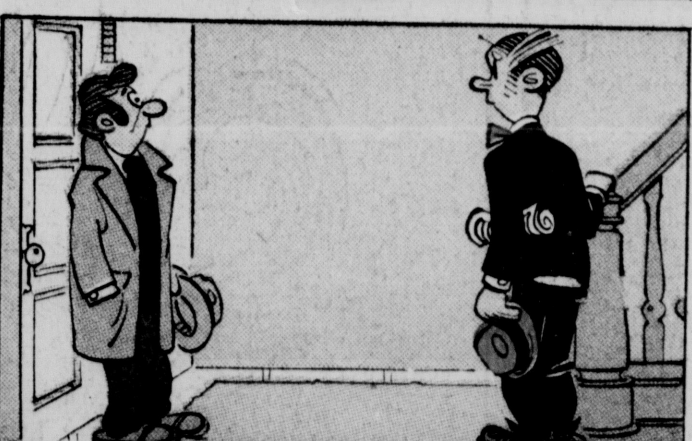

DAISY DISAPPEARED AND I CAN'T FIND HER ANYPLACE!

OH, BOO-HOO... I'M GOING UP TO BED AND CRY MYSELF TO SLEEP--BOO-HOO
